GIBSON OFFERS U. S. PROPOSAL FOR DISARMING

GERMANY PROCLAIMS REAL MILITARY CUT

Session Accords Welcome to Brazil's Representative as Parley Aid.

Geneva, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—America's nine-point program of disarmament, including a surprise indorsement of the principle of budgetary limitation on expenditures for war supplies, was presented before the disarmament conference today by Ambassador Hugh Gibson, acting chief of the American deleagtion.

The American spokesman shares the day's session with Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, of Germany, who pledged his nation to general disarmament "of an unmistakable nature, such as the League of Nations covenant envisaged," and with Jose Carlos de Maceno Soares, Brazilian delegate and first of the representatives of the smaller powers to be heard.

Mr. Gibson, as one of America's best-known diplomats internationally, and Dr. Bruening, the most conspicuous statesman of Germany since the late Dr. Gustav Stresemann, were listened to with concentrated interest and evoked applause unusual for such a reserved body.

Welcome Accorded Brazilian.

The demonstrative welcome accorded the Brazilian representative obviously was intended to show Latin-America that the other nations sincerely appreciated its work in the conference.

Mr. Gibson spoke with great deliberation and emphasis. When he returned to his seat members of other delegations rushed up to shake his hand and to express their appreciation of the program he had presented.

Soft snow whitened John Calvin's city as the American and German statesmen, representatives of the victors and the vanquished in the World War, called upon the world to disarm.

The American declaration made no mention of extending the present armaments truce, and there was no reference to the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Points Presented by Gibson.

In addition to the principle of budgetary limitation, the Gibson program included these points:

1. The American Government advocates consideration of the draft convention as containing the outlines for a convenient basis for discussion, while expressing its entire willingness to give full consideration to any supplementary proposals calculated to advance the end we all seek.

2. We suggest the possibility of prolonging the existing naval agree-

Body of Slain Girl Found in Bathtub

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The body of the second girl slain apparently by a fiend in New York within a week was found tonight after a watchful postal clerk noticed the word "murder" scribbled in the corner of a postcard.

Detectives, entering the vacant top floor apartment at the East 112th street address mentioned in the postcard, discovered the partly clothed body of Marie Rosales, 13, lying in a bathtub. The girl had been assaulted, police said, and killed with a metal gas burner. Her skull was fractured and her face lacerated.

The postcard that led to the discovery of the Rosales girl's body was addressed to "Janitor, 10 East 112th street," it said: "Go to the top floor. You'll find something that will interest you." In a corner was written "It's a murder."

American Missionaries Periled by Chinese Reds

Peiping, Feb. 9 (U.P.).—Eleven American missionaries are surrounded by Communist armies in southern Kiangsi Province and in grave danger, the United States Legation was informed today.

The missionaries are at Kancho, according to a message which appealed for military aid. The legation is urging the provincial authorities to send troops to rescue the missionaries, who are Catholic.

Sniper Blamed Again As Bullet Misses Goal

Copper-Coated Slug Crashes Through Windshield of Unoccupied Auto Near Yacht Club; Suspects Taken in Shooting Series Released.

Fear that the sniper whose indiscriminate shooting has taken the life of one man, had resumed activities was felt last night when it was reported a .32-caliber copper-coated bullet crashed through the windshield of an automobile parked near the Washington Yacht Club.

No one was in the automobile at the time. John P. White, of 1254 Oates street northeast, the owner of the automobile, told police that the bullet tore through the windshield of the automobile and shattered itself against the frame of the reflecting mirror inside the car.

The bullet was shattered by the impact. Fragments of the bullet were turned over to Fourth Precinct police. The bullet will be turned over to Lieut. John H. Fowler, ballistics expert of the Police Department, but because of its smashed condition its use for identification purposes is doubtful.

Residents of the 200 block of Upshur street northwest were aroused last night about 9 o'clock at reports that there had been another shooting. Police were called to 215 Upshur street by chain-store clerks who heard a crack of the plate glass window. Police found that the glass had been struck by a stone flipped from the tire of a passing automobile. There was a slight crack across one corner.

The first tangible link between the shooting of Gorton T. Backus and the killing of Paul Riedel began to emerge last night while Lieut. Fowler began his photography of the bullets that struck each man. A series of highly magnified exposures of the two bullets, made under a comparison microscope, strongly indicate that they were fired from the same pistol.

So far, Lieut. Fowler has confined his work exclusively to a comparison of the bullets in the Backus and Riedel cases. The bullet which struck Helen Andrews while walking at Fifth and Aspen streets on Thursday night

HOUSE WILL DEBATE RUM CRUISES TODAY

To Consider Two Bills Aimed Against Wet, Foreign-Owned Vessels.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The effect of prohibition on the American merchant marine will be considered in the House today, and a lively debate is in prospect.

The House will have before it two bills, both designed to curb the operations of wet, foreign-owned liners in American waters.

One would abolish the so-called "whoopee cruises" or "cruises to nowhere" now being sponsored by the foreign steamship companies. Last summer a wealthy Japanese importer, of New York, disappeared on one of these cruises.

The other bill would prevent the big foreign liners, like the Mauretania and the Olympic, from competing with American passenger ships on such runs as that from New York to Havana.

It was stated at the hearings on the bills, and no doubt it will be repeated in the House today, that prohibition is largely responsible for the fact that Americans so far forget their patriotism as to wish to travel on foreign ships.

Not that liquor can not be obtained on an American vessel. It is always obtainable, according to shipping men. They point out, however, that the liquor is bootlegged by stewards and costs nearly twice as much as it does on a foreign vessel.

The foreign vessels have handsome bars and well-trained bartenders; the liquor is abundant and reasonably priced, and the passenger doesn't feel like a scofflaw when he partakes of it.

Moreover—and this, according to the shipping men, is important—the foreign ships have beer, a commodity that is lacking on American vessels.

Representatives here of the foreign-owned passenger companies grant that prohibition has a lot to do with the popularity of their ships. But that, they insist, is merely one factor. The truth, they say, is that the foreign ships, in most cases, are larger and more comfortable.

At any rate, Representative Davis

DISTRICT IS TERMED RUM DEALERS' HAVEN

"Model" Washington lost its halo, and the Howell "home raid" bill, its dignity, at hearings before the Senate District committee yesterday.

It was Senator Robert B. Howell, author of the bill, who knocked the National Capital's halo askew, while Senators Millard E. Tydings and Thomas P. Gore, committee wits, launched shafts at his measure.

Witness baiting and wisecracks, laughter and applause were in order as committee members, in rare form, called up the bill that would make Washington policemen prohibition officers, and Capital homes liable to entry.

Senator Howell opened the attack with a description of Washington liquor conditions that would give no comfort to Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock.

"Washington is a bootleggers' sanctuary," said Senator Howell. "Here professional high-class bootleggers live a charmed life."

He charged persons of diplomatic status sell liquor unmolested here; that Washington hostelries are "hotbeds" of liquor violation; that it is difficult and often impossible to obtain liquor convictions here.

It was while Senator Howell was engaged in imaginary but graphic description of being spied upon while

Il Duce Will Visit Pope Tomorrow, Anniversary

Rome, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Premier Mussolini announced definitely today that he will visit Pope Pius at the Vatican on Thursday, third anniversary of the Lateran treaty.

It will be the first time the two have met, and the premier will be accompanied by several government officials. Not since 1870 when the Pope became a voluntary prisoner in the Vatican has the head of the church met an Italian premier. The anniversary of the signing of the treaty is a national holiday in Italy.

Hoover Moves to Curtail Visits and Handshakings

White House Receptions for Conventions Will Be Suspended While Pressing Affairs Continue to Demand Entire Attention of President.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

With the pressing affairs of the Nation making constantly increasing demands upon his time and energy, President Hoover moved yesterday to curtail sharply some of the purely decorative functions of the presidential office.

For a time, at least, the old American custom of formal White House receptions for visiting conventions will be suspended, and an effort will be made to limit the list of daily callers at the executive offices to those who have specific matters of public business to discuss.

The basic idea behind the White House announcement appears to be that in times of stress a President becomes more useful in about the degree that he ceases to be purely ornamental.

"Shaking hands with literally tens of thousands of people in the course of a season constitutes a demand that would impair proper consideration of matters of the greatest moment to the Nation," the announcement said in part. "Mrs. Hoover will be delighted, whenever possible, to extend the courtesies of the White House to visiting organizations, the officials and members of which desire to be received. The President, however, must request to be excused from participation."

That the Chief Executive ever must be ready to pose for mass pictures, shake hands with quarter-acre delegations or to receive the voluminous resolutions of the hundreds of trade and civic conventions which meet in Washington every year, is one of the most deeply rooted traditions of American folklore.

Mr. Hoover apparently is opposed to disturbing this pretty custom. More recently, however, scores of conventions have sought to present the

FINANCE BODY'S ISSUES MAY BE SOLD TO PUBLIC

IS STEP IN CAMPAIGN TO COMBAT HOARDING

(Associated Press.)

As part of the campaign to pull money out of hiding and promptly turn it into the stream of credit, the administration is seriously considering selling Reconstruction Finance Corporation debentures directly to the public in small denominations.

With this in mind, Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, president of the corporation, and Col. Frank Knox, head of President Hoover's antihoarding campaign, have been in frequent conferences. Col. Knox also has discussed the matter with President Hoover and Treasury officials.

Before leaving for his home in Chicago yesterday Col. Knox declined to discuss the plan of his new organization beyond saying that it would be "one you can get your teeth in."

"This is no campaign full of blue sky and beautiful phrases," Col. Knox said. "We are going to sell a principle. Besides that we are going to have something genuine to offer later on."

Railroads' Need Shown.

Meantime, applications for corporation loans continued, and a railroad report showed the need of the carriers for a part of the corporation's $2,000,000,000 resources.

Issued by the Bureau of Railroad Economics, maintained here by the railroads, it disclosed that class one roads in 1931 had a net railway operating income of $531,095,960, or a return of 1.93 per cent on their property investment. The net railway operating income for 1930, the report said, was $884,856,141, or a return of 3.36 per cent on the property investment.

The compilation was based on reports from 171 class one railroads representing a total mileage of 242,847 miles. The decline was blamed on a steady reduction of traffic "largely resulting from business conditions that existed during the year."

Passenger revenues, the report said, had been the smallest since 1904. Revenues from that source amounted to $551,054,239 a decrease of $178,565,065, or 24 per cent, compared with 1930.

Organization Being Completed.

The Reconstruction Corporation worked steadily yesterday toward completion of its Washington organization and the setting up of agencies in the various financial centers so that applications for funds can receive prompt consideration.

Gen. Dawes was in New York to meet his wife, who was arriving from England on the Berengaria. He expected to return late last night and

Roosevelt's Name Is Filed in Dakota

Petitions Signed by 2,400 Are Accepted; Primary to Be Held March 15.

Bismarck, N. Dak., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's name was filed today for the State primary election as a Democratic presidential nominee. The Republican candidacy of Representative L. T. McFadden, of Pennsylvania, was also filed. Joseph I. France, former United States senator from Maryland, recently filed as a progressive Republican.

The State preferential primary election will be held March 15 and the dead line for filing names of candidates is February 13. Secretary of State Robert Byrne accepted Roosevelt petitions signed by 2,400 persons, six times the required number.

The petitions were submitted by F. W. McClean, of Grand Forks, secretary of the State party, to whom Roosevelt gave filing permission last month.

Britons Spur Efforts To Bring M-2 to Top

London, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—British naval authorities were hopeful today that the sunken submarine M-2 could be brought to the surface within the next twelve hours.

Speedy success of the operations over the craft were threatened, however, by the weather which showed signs of turning stormy. The M-2 sank on January 26, off Portland Bill, in the English Channel, with a loss of 61 lives.

455 MILLIONS ADDED TO TAX BOOST NEEDED

Treasury Reveals More Required to Balance 1933 Budget.

FAULTY ESTIMATES ARE GIVEN AS CAUSE

House Committee Working on Plan Says New Sum Hard to Find.

(Associated Press.)

A weary and harassed House committee yesterday heard the unpleasant news that the tax measure it is framing must yield an additional $455,000,000 to balance the lop-sided budget by the end of the 1933 fiscal year.

The Treasury told the House ways and means committee some time ago that $920,000,000 was the sum needed to put the Government's finances in order, but later this was revised to $786,000,000.

Through weeks of hearings the committeemen have had the latter figure in mind, but yesterday Ogden L. Mills brought them further gloomier information on the tax situation.

He gave it to the committee as it met behind closed doors to draft the bill, explaining it was based on "January lows and January lows are lower than we expected them to be."

Called Hard to Find.

From the committee immediately came word that the added $455,000,000 would be hard to find.

Meantime, other developments at the Capitol brought to mind the shift in personnel of the men who have been directing the Nation's fiscal policy.

Mr. Mills has been named Secretary of the Treasury, succeeding Andrew W. Mellon, who becomes Ambassador to Great Britain.

The Senate finance committee yesterday approved Mr. Mills' nomination without dissent, at the same time acting favorably on the choice of Arthur A. Ballantine to succeed him.

Confirmation went over until today, however, on the request of Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, but there was little doubt that the Senate would approve both.

Mellon Ends Cabinet Service.

The day also saw Mr. Mellon attend his last Cabinet meeting. He has been a familiar figure at them for eleven years and has talked Government problems over with three Presidents—Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

In response to the handclasps and farewells of his associates, Mr. Mellon smiled and expressed his appreciation in his low voice. He expects to take a vacation in the South before going to London.

A table submitted by Mr. Mills yesterday showed a falling off in customs and internal revenue, which is expected to increase the deficit by $321,000,000.

This and the new estimates on the Treasury program make it necessary

5 Adrift 4 Hours On Ice Floe Saved

11 Other Fishermen on Saginaw Bay Have Narrow Escape.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Five fishermen from Sebawaing, adrift for four hours on an ice field in Saginaw Bay, were rescued late today, when one of their number reached shore and returned with a rowboat for his companions.

Grover Pritcher, rescuer, was on a separate ice cake, which drifted into water so shallow that he could wade ashore. The men he rescued were Charles and Fred Stannips, Fred Wender and Barney Gates. The men suffered no ill effects.

Eleven other fishermen were trapped when the 6-inch ice through which they were fishing cracked and drifted into the bay. They were rescued, however, before they had gone far. Then State officers attempted the rescue of the other five. Their field was drifting at about 5 miles an hour, however, and they went out of sight. They finally were brought to shore at Oakhurst Beach.

Mother and 5 of Her 10 Children Die in Flames

Hazleton, Pa., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Carmen Romanelli, 38, died today with five of her ten children in a fire that wrecked her home in Treschon, a mining village near here. Her husband, five other children, and a boarder, Dominick Morratt, escaped. A spark from an overheated flue caused the fire.

Hoover Chooses Grew Ambassador to Tokyo

Envoy to Turkey Is Due to Relieve Forbes in About 2 Months.

(Associated Press.)

While Chinese and Japanese stubbornly battled at Shanghai, President Hoover yesterday named Joseph Clark Grew as Ambassador to Tokyo.

A career diplomat of more than a quarter century's service, he will be confronted in his new post with one of the most serious and delicate international situations of recent years.

He will succeed W. Cameron Forbes, whose intention of resigning was made known before the present trouble developed. Mr. Grew at present is Ambassador to Turkey.

The crisis at Shanghai yesterday drew to Secretary Stimson's office a succession of diplomats eager for the latest word on the situation. The callers included Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador; Nobile Giacomo Martino, the Italian Ambassador, and Dr. Hawkling Yen, Charge d'Affaires of the Chinese Legation.

Both the British and Italian Ambassadors said later that no immedi-

HOOVER HEARS PLEA FOR DIRECT RELIEF

(Associated Press.)

Organized labor carried a demand for Federal relief for the unemployed direct to President Hoover and Congress yesterday on the eve of a Senate vote on the controversial issue.

Proclaiming the existence of a "real national emergency," 100 labor leaders, headed by President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, asked for enactment of the La Follette-Costigan bill to appropriate $375,000,000 to help the jobless.

The delegation, constituting an unusual concentration of federation officials and executives of affiliated unions, presented their demands to Mr. Hoover, Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner.

"The destructive consequences of widespread, continuous, distressing unemployment have reached an acute stage," the labor heads said in a petition presented to the officials.

"Relief of a most definite and adequate nature must be supplied in order to relieve hunger, distress and human suffering."

The President received the petition without comment. Vice President

Gold Standard Dropped By Ecuador's Decision

The suspension will be effective until next November 10, and the central bank has been ordered to call in all its foreign deposits for conversion into gold.

TOKYO YOUTH KILLS INOUYE, STATESMAN

Says He Assassinated Liberal Leader for Policies Hurting Peasants.

Tokyo, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Junnosuke Inouye, eminent financier, Liberal statesman and leader of the Minseito (opposition) party's campaign for the general election February 20, was assassinated tonight by a youth who is at least indirectly connected with the reactionary "patriotic" elements responsible for most of the political murders that have blackened Japan's recent history.

While the Manchurian campaign was in full swing, especially during the latter part of 1931, it was generally believed that both M. Inouye and Baron Shidehara, then foreign minister, were opposed to the use of military force. Both of them were said to be in danger of their lives.

M. Inouye, 63 years old and three-times finance minister of Japan, was killed as he alighted from his motor car in front of a primary school house in the Mongo ward of northern Tokyo, where a Minseito rally was to be held.

All the shots struck the former minister in the left breast and he fell to the pavement, killed instantly.

Bystanders seized Tadashi Konuma, 23 years old, who comes from a farming district in the Ibaraki prefecture northeast of Tokyo. Police said he fired the shots.

The body was taken to the nearby Imperial University Hospital. In a

District Librarian Praises Washington Essay Contest

George F. Bowerman Commends Competition Because of Stimulation of Interest of Young People in Life and Work of Great Leader.

Earnest indorsement of The Post Washington Essay Contest was given yesterday by George F. Bowerman, librarian of the Public Library of the District of Columbia. In his statement, Dr. Bowerman declared that increased demand by the young people of Washington on the library for material on George Washington was to be traced to the stimulation of interest through The Washington Post's prize essay contest.

"In anticipation of the large demands that the celebration of the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington would surely bring to the Public Library," declared the noted educator, "we largely increased our supply of George Washington books and pamphlets, the latter secured largely from the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. Reports from our children's room in the central library and the branch libraries show that the calls are so numerous that our resources are being severely taxed. Such demands have been partly stimulated by the general publicity given to the celebration, partly to the fact that in certain grades of the public elementary schools special attention is at this season being given to George Washington, but also, to a very considerable extent, to the stimulation of interest through The Washington Post's prize essay contest.

"The Public Library is glad," concluded Dr. Bowerman, "to see the demands for literature on George Washington on the part of young folks and is doing its best to meet them. For this reason I am glad, both as a member of the District of Columbia George Washington Bicen-

SHELLS STILL FALL UPON NEUTRAL ZONE

U. S., England, France and Italy Are Urged to Make Efforts for Peace.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Shanghai (Wednesday), Feb. 10, (A.P.).—Chinese cavalry were reported to have ridden on Japanese machine gunners in a deadly saber attack today only to be beaten off by bullets, as the Japanese reinforced their fighters for a new lunge on both the Chapei and Woosung forts.

Another day of fierce fighting at Chapei and the Woosung forts had failed to dislodge Chinese troops, who held to their positions, despite shellings from Japanese big guns and bombs from attacking airplanes.

There were unconfirmed rumors that a Japanese bombing plane had been disabled over Chapei by machine-gun fire in a battle with a Chinese pursuit plane. The Japanese plane was said to have escaped, although obviously hit by the Chinese fire.

Inflict Severe Casualties.

Reports of the sensational cavalry attack on strong Japanese machine-gun emplacements in Kiangwun, part of the battle front in the Chinese section of Shanghai, lacked eyewitnesses to verify them. But it was said that the horsemen inflicted severe casualties before they were beaten off.

Shells and bullets from the Chapei battle area continued to fall in the International Settlement. Bullets thudded constantly against the walls of the Shanghai municipal police station on Dixwell road, in the no man's land of Kongkew, and the station was ordered evacuated.

The small body of foreign police was reluctant to quit the station, which for the past week has been the only occupied building in that sector of the International Settlement. They said they would continue patrolling the district during the day.

Additional Bluejackets.

The Japanese naval command was reported to be landing additional bluejackets at Woosung, while vernacular newspapers said the Chinese

Escape of Trapper Hidden by Blizzard

Aklavik, Northwest Territory, Feb. 9 (U.P.).—A terse wireless message crackling through the Arctic revealed today that Albert Johnson, "Bush Crazy" trapper, had escaped from his ice-barricaded fort and eluded a squad of Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Capt. W. R. May flew from the Rat River stronghold of the madman yesterday with the body of Constable E. Millen for burial here. Johnson killed the constable in a weird battle on January 30.

The captain flew back to his base on the river prepared to lead an aerial hunt for Johnson tomorrow. Reports from the red-coated officers on the chase indicated that Johnson beat off their attack long enough to escape into a blizzard and lose himself in the barren hills nearby.

EXCESS INCOME FOR 446 ROADS CITED BY I. C. C.

CARRIERS' EARNINGS FOR DECADE LISTED

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday announced that 446 railroads had recapturable earnings during the ten years ended with 1930 and that these were estimated at $361,465,815.

The commission made its estimates public after Commissioner Joseph B Eastman had handed them to the House interstate commerce committee during hearings on the recapture repeal bill.

The railroad tribunal is advocating repeal of the law on the ground that it is virtually unworkable. The law provides that when a r ailroad's earnings are in excess of a "fair return" on its property investment, one-half of the excess must be given over to the Government. The commission has ruled 5¾ per cent is a fair return.

Only $10,679,085 Paid.

The commission's statement showed that only $10,679,085 had been paid by the roads and that only a small portion of this money is not subject to protest.

The commission has been able to carry only two cases to a conclusion and was reversed by the United States Supreme Court on the first of these. The second has never been finally adjudicated.

Included in the recapture class are 90 class 1 railroads; 138 class 2; 134 class 3, and 84 class 4. Class 1 roads are those with gross earnings above $1,000,000 annually; class 2 those with gross earnings between $100,000 and $1,000,000; class 3 those with gross earnings under $100,000 and class 4 terminal and switching roads not included in the other classes.

Class 1 roads are estimated to have had $336,443,378 of recapturable income; class 2 roads, $15,929,742, and class 3 roads, $2,259,036.

Coal Carriers Lead.

The great coal-carrying roads serving the Pocahontas coal-mining region accounted for 26 per cent of the estimated total. These are the Chesapeake & Ohio, estimated to have had $47,779,611 of recapturable income; the Norfolk & Western, $42,106,462; the Virginian, $7,364,770, and the Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio, $703,801.

Fifteen railroads controlled by the United States Steel Corporation accounted for $43,258,641 of the total, and four controlled by the Van Sweringen brothers, of Cleveland, $66.771,-355.

The Steel Corporation roads and the sums estimated recapturable include:

The Bessemer & Lake Erie, $11,370,-624; Birmingham Southern, $236,077; Carbon County Railway, $21,995; Donora Southern, $14,773; Duluth & Iron Range, $1,670,203; Duluth, Missabe & Northern, $25,462,836; Elgin, Joliet & Eastern, $9,374,365; Etna & Montrose, $18,208; Hannibal Connecting Railroad, $29,455; Johnstown & Stony Creek Railroad, $24,868; Lake Terminal Railroad, $58,589; Newburgh & South Shore, $61,132; Northampton & Bath Railroad, $78,660; Union Railroad (Pittsburgh), $3,814,-226, and Youngstown & Northern, $22,630.

The Van Sweringen roads include the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Pere Marquette, estimated to have $4,933,-075 of recapturable income; the Hocking Valley, $5,241,114, and the Nickel Plate, $8,817,555.

Other Large Roads.

St. Louis-San Francisco, $19,556,-512; Southern Railway, $15,838,881; Reading Railway, $13,749,555; Bessemer & Lake Erie, $11,370,624; Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, $11,015,315; Atlantic Coast Line, $9,722,431; Union Pacific, $8,363,047; Missouri, Kansas & Texas, $7,556,520; Terminal Association of St. Louis, $4,893,664; New York Central, $4,842,577; Texas & Pacific, $4,183,231; Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, $3,969,082; Kansas City Southern, $3,712,402; Chicago River & Indiana, $3,360,573; Wheeling & Lake Erie, $3,319,671; Baltimore & Ohio, $3,211,587; Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac, $2,891,766; Delaware & Hudson, $2,476,627; Wabash Railway, $2,367,155; Belt Railway of Chicago, $2,363,800; Detroit & Toledo Shore Line, $2,270,903; Gulf Coast Lines, $2,094,974; New York, New Haven & Hartford, $1,966,710; St. Louis-Southwestern, $1,955,924.

16-Year Fugitive Is Granted Pardon for Act of Kindness

Man Traced by Fingerprints After Aiding Needy Friend Get Fuel Is Written Off Ohio Books; Has Long Been Respected Citizen.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The State of Ohio today wrote off its books the charge that Lamont Signor is an escaped convict.

In issuing a full pardon to Signor, a member of the Pine Hill, N. J., school board, George White relinquished any claim Ohio may have to him.

Signor escaped from the London prison farm, a branch of the Ohio penintentary, sixteen years ago and was not heard of until last week when he was arrested at Auburn Terrace, N. J., on a charge that he and another man were stealing wood from a farmer. The wood was for a destitute man, who, it was said, was in danger of suffering if fire was not provided.

Gov. White heard Signor's attorney, C. Lawrence Gregoria, tell that his client had led a respectable life since he went to the New Jersey community nine years ago. Then he said:

"Under normal conditions, the wood stealing would have attracted my attention, but in times like these, I see no reason for bringing him back to Ohio for helping a destitute friend."

Signor's record was discovered shortly after his arrest in New Jersey. His fingerprints showed that in reality he was Howard Penny, convicted for theft of a typewriter.

He was sent to prison in 1912. In June of 1916, he was transferred to the London farm, and the same day he walked away. He went south and joined the army. Later he married and settled down at Auburn Terrace, where he was elected a member of the Pine Hill School Board.

His arrest last week caused his withdrawal in the race for renomination for the school board but Gregoria indicated today he would reenter the contest.

Clementon, N. J., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—News of the full pardon granted by the Governor of Ohio to Lamont Signor, of Pine Hill, who escaped from a prison farm in 1916, was received with satisfaction by his friends and neighbors.

Signor still has hanging over him here a charge of trespass which led to his identification as a former prisoner after living in this vicinty for nine years. This charge was brought recently by a nearby farmer, when Signor was alleged to have been helping an unemployed neighbor gather wood on the farm. The neighbor was charged with trespass and assault and battery.

Despite the insistence of neighbors that Signor had "been punished enough," Joseph Radmilovich, the farmer refuses to drop the charges, although admitting Signor had no part in the alleged attack.

Signor, 53, was arrested by State police who in many cases fingerprint their prisoners. Signor's fingerprints were sent to Trenton and Washington and led to the discovery that he was an escaped prisoner.

News of the granting of his pardon caused Signor to break down and weep. For several minutes he could make no comment.

His wife and sister were in the parlor with him and they too were unable to hold back the tears. Finally, Mrs. Signor, regaining her composure said, "Why daddy, you'd think you had been convicted instead of pardoned."

LIVELY HOUSE DEBATE IS DUE TODAY ON 'WHOOPEE CRUISES'

(Democrat), of Tennessee, chairman of the House merchant marine committee and author of the bills taken up today, contends that the competition of foreign ships has "proven disastrous to American shipping companies engaged in coastwise and West Indies business."

The "cut-throat" competition of such foreign firms as the Cunard line, Mr. Davis says, is "annihilating" American business in the New York to Havana run.

Would Amend Act of 1886.

The Davis bill aimed at the so-called "voyages to nowhere" would amend a navigation act of 1886. That act, designed to protect the American coastwise steamship companies from alien competition, decreed that no foreign ship could carry passengers from one American port to another American port.

There was nothing in the act, however, to prevent the "whoopee" ships from taking a crowd of merrymakers out of New York and, after a brief cruise outside the 12-mile limit, carrying them back to New York.

The Davis bill corrects this, making it illegal for a foreign vessel on a continuous cruise to terminate the cruise at the American port of departure. The penalty prescribed is $200 per passenger.

Is Aimed at Lines.

The second Davis bill is aimed at the Cunard line, the White Star line and others, which, according to the author, are annihilating the American passenger lines engaged in the West Indies business.

This bill authorizes the Shipping Board to determine whether the foreign vessels are "fighting ships"—that is, ships engaged in "unwarranted and excessive" competition with American ships.

If the Shipping Board should certify to any collector of customs that a foreign ship is a "fighting ship," then the collector would refuse to issue clearance papers for the voyage.

HOOVER HEARS LABOR'S PLEA FOR DIRECT RELIEF TO IDLE

Curtis promised to present it to the Senate today, and said:

"We all realize the seriousness of the situation. I hope action will be taken to relieve the awful situation that exists throughout the country."

Garner said the group's plea for adequate funds to meet unemployment relief needs "appeals to every human heart," adding:

"I am sure I speak for the members of the House when I say we don't want to see anybody starve or freeze in this country. The best way to approach it is the question." He said he thought that organized labor in America "is the most conservative in the world," lacked "Russian principles," while holding views that are safe and sound.

In addition to asking for direct relief, the labor heads demanded legislation to provide work opportunities and other legislative reforms, including enactment of an anti-injunction bill.

Stressing the demand for immediate relief, the labor leaders said workers have exhausted their resources and are "facing the future with impaired morale and physical deterioration."

"Local relief agencies have found the task too great," they said. "Adequate relief can not be and is not being supplied. Men, women and children are hungry, cold and undernourished. They are appealing for food, warmth and shelter.

"The tragic feature of this uncivilized, inhuman condition, is reflected in the fact that millions of children are suffering from hunger and cold every day and that many thousands are unable to attend school because of a lack of food, clothing and shoes."

The petition asked that "the entire resources of the Nation" be utilized to meet the emergency.

"Surely Congress can not afford to subject itself to the charge that it speedily appropriated billions for capital and nothing for the hungry," the labor heads said. "Human values and human needs should be given first, rather than secondary consideration."

The petitioners said more than 60,-000,000 people live outside the zones where relief agencies exist, and their plight is "shocking."

"It is our solemn judgment," they said, "that the time has arrived when the Congress should arise to the occasion."

As the labor leaders were presenting their demands, Senate Democrats were pleading for the sponsors of the La Follette-Costigan bill to join with them in enactment of their $750,000,-000 substitute measure.

They predicted the direct relief measure would be vetoed by President Hoover and contended their bill for road construction and relief loans to States came within established governmental policy.

SACASA RESIGNATION HINTS HIS CANDIDACY

Nicaraguan Minister to U. S. Believed to Have Quit to Run for President.

(Associated Press.)

Announcement of the resignation of Dr. Juan B. Sacasa as Nicaraguan Minister to Washington, was received here as assurance of the envoy's intention to renew his fight for the presidency.

Dr. Sacasa was a candidate in the election of 1924 and although the Liberal party, which he headed, claimed a majority of votes cast, the result was not recognized by the United States.

Upon leaving Washington for Managua January 15 last, Dr. Sacasa, announced he would begin his campaign to obtain the Liberal nomination at the party convention next spring.

It was said that he will have the support of President Moncada, who defeated the Conservative candidate in the 1928 election and who sent Sacasa to Washington as his envoy, with such powerful backing, it is believed likely Dr. Sacasa will be nominated.

Reports from Nicaragua indicate the Conservatives would again select former President Adolfo Diaz to carry the party's hopes in the November election.

If this happens, two old and bitter rivals will again oppose each other at the polls.

It was Dr. Sacasa who steadfastly refused to recognize the Diaz regime. He yielded only after Henry L. Stimson, then President Coolidge's personal representative, promised American supervision and guarantee of a fair election.

Accordingly, Moncada, with Dr. Sacasa's active support, defeated Diaz and the Liberals took over the government.

This year, too, United States Marines will assist the Nicaraguan national guard in supervising the elections.

The 1,000 Marines now in Nicaragua will be reinforced by 300 more, and President Hoover has sent Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward to head the election board, a position formerly held by Gen. Frank McCoy.

According to agreement, the Marines will be withdrawn following the November election, and the American trained National Guard will carry on alone.

Court Aids Doomed Man; Flays Police

Reverses Death Sentence; Criticizes Brutality in Confession.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Reversing a death sentence, the court of appeals today pointedly critized New York police for their treatment of Vincent Mummiani, the convicted man.

The opinion, prepared by Judge Irving Lehman, said:

"The growing number of instances in which officers of our police forces stand accused at our bar of threats and brutality in the extortion of confessions is a cause of deep concern to all judges of our court."

Mummiani was convicted of the murder of Dominick Buoncore in a Manhattan restaurant on September 9, 1930. He was not arrested until the following February. The court's reversal gives him a new trial.

Smith Stand Termed Unimportant to Drys

(Associated Press.)

Edwin C. Dinwiddie, executive secretary for the national prohibition board of strategy, said yesterday the statement by Alfred E. Smith had "no special significance for the drys of the country."

"In fact it has been anticipated and discounted in advance," Mr. Dinwiddie's statement continued. "It only presents an internal question for the Democratic party."

LABOR FORCES FIGHT NAMING WILKERSON

(Associated Press.)

Organized labor threw its full strength yesterday against the confirmation of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, of Chicago, as a circuit judge, termnig him a "partisan advocate of the policies of employers who seek to destroy labor organizations."

Labor's views toward President Hoover's nominee to fill the vacancy on the Seventh Circuit were expressed before a Senate judiciary subcommittee by Donald R. Richberg, representing the Railway Labor Executives Association and the American Federation of Labor.

Citing a number of decisions handed down by Judge Wilkerson from the district bench, Mr. Richberg said that the judge "in his blind partisanship and antagonism to labor unions" has "not followed the law as laid down by the Supreme Court, but has attempted to write new law; had violated existing law and has sought to assume and to exercise judicial power never conferred upon his court."

Mr. Richberg testified also that as a practicing lawyer Judge Wilkerson "was very active in prosecuting injunction suits against labor organizations," and that as a district judge "he exhibited in case after case a bias and prejudice against labor organizations inconsistent with judicial fairness.

"To elevate a judge holding such views to higher authority," Mr. Richberg said, "is to aid in nullifying the thirteenth amendment." Mr. Richberg's chief complaint against Judge Wilkerson was directed at his activities in the "Daugherty injunction case," in which he issued an injunction against the striking railroad shopmen in 1922.

CAPITAL CALLED BOOTLEGGERS' SANCTUARY AT SENATE HEARING

"I wouldn't admit that, senator."

Later Senator Gore registered again when he referred to increased local holdups as a "campaign against hoarding."

Even Crusader Rufus S. Lusk, bitter opponent of the bill, and Senator Howell, indulged in a humorous tilt.

Washington police, said Mr. Lusk, are enforcing prohibition "in as gentlemanly a manner as possible."

"It might be termed ladylike," said Senator Howell.

Former Representative William D. Upshaw, ardent Georgia dry, brought the sallies to a crowning climax.

"Liquor," he said, "will make a Democrat think like a Republican. It will make a Democrat smell like a Republican."

John B. Hammond, of Iowa, counsel for the National Civic League, suffered most from the witness-baiting of Senator Tydings, wet Maryland opponent of the Howell bill.

Mr. Tydings brought out that the witness' home State, where he claimed to have "cleaned up" conditions, was one of the most flagrant prohibition offenders cited in the Wickersham report.

Mr. Hammond told the committee conditions used to be so bad in Washington "that the man in the moon held his nose when he rose over the city." He said the situation is better here now.

Hit by Wets and Drys.

The Howell bill suffered as much at the hands of the dry witnesses, who declared it did not go far enough, as from the wets, who said it went entirely too far.

Mr. Hammond said Howell wrongly assumed that the Sheppard act is not still a part of the District code. He declared that act far superior to the Howell bill, which he branded a "weakening and backward step in prohibition."

He asked the committee to substitute a resolution placing the Senate on record indorsing the Sheppard law. The old Sheppard act not only legalized search and seizure without evidence of sale, but contained more drastic provisions than the Howell bill.

Others aligned against the Howell measure included Miss Elizabeth Harris, of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform, and C. W. Browning, adjutant of the District department of the American Legion.

Miss Harris declared her organization as much opposed to bootleggers as the drys.

"But rights of private citizens should have priority over curbing bootlegging activities," she testified.

Mr. Browning said the legion believes legislation similar to the Howell bill "merely enhances the value of the universally used contraband."

Senator Tydings several times clashed with Senator Howell during the dry senator's opening defense of his bill.

"Your bill would permit any busybody, who has nothing more than a suspicion, to subject his neighbors to humiliating search of his premises," declared the Maryland senator.

Statement Is Challenged.

Mr. Tydings declared that under the present law a District policeman can enter a house if he has prima facie evidence of liquor possession. Mr. Howell denied the truth of his statement. He said a conviction can only be had in Washington now through use of a stool pigeon and marked money.

Presentation of a "gin" graph of Washington, was a feature of the testimony of Mr. Lusk. The graph purported to show a rapid decline in gin prices here to a level below preprohibition prices. He declared the price has fallen with increasing rapidity since the President told Mr. Howell he wanted to make a "model" city of Washington. According to Mr. Lusk, the peak price was reached here in 1920.

O. R. Miller, president of the National Civic League, was another witness for the drys.

Attended by Cannon.

"It isn't a question of whether the people of Washington want more enforcement," he said. "If the District police won't enforce prohibition, it's the duty of Congress to see that they do."

Bishop James Cannon, jr., listened to part of the testimony. Every seat was taken when he arrived, so he sat on a flat-topped desk. He left before the hearing was over. Senator Arthur Capper will call another meeting of his District committee to vote on the Howell measure.

(Associated Press.)

Senate committee hearings on a bill to legalize the manufacture of 4 per cent beer entered the second month yesterday with half a dozen new witnesses—some for it, some against it—adding their testimony to the record.

Senator Metcalf (Republican), Rhode Island, chairman of a special manufactures subcommittee conducting the hearings, said at least one more session would be necessary to accommodate those still desiring opportunity to be heard. The group recessed until Friday.

Beer Bill Opposed.

The bill by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, to legalize 4 per cent beer was opposed before the manufactures subcommittee by Whiting Williams, of Cleveland, a writer on industrial subjects and consultant to employers; E. S. Bradford, director of the bureau of business research of the College of the City of New York; E. B. Dunford, Washington attorney, representing prohibitionist organizations here; and Alfred Calvert, Washington printer.

Testifying in favor of the bill were Gustave Hafer, of the Farmers Feed Co., New York, and Philip M. Rose, president of the Manufacturers and Dealers League, New York, both of whom said the legalization of beer would improve economic conditions.

Increase in Difficulty.

Williams expressed the view that the beer bill would "increase the difficulty of enforcement and at the same time lessen the amount of money available for more constructive purposes of industry."

Dunford, who said in answer to a question that he is attorney for the Antisaloon League, advanced the contention that the bill would lead to the evils of the old saloon and that, in addition, it would cause drinking of beer by women and children in the home.

In his absence Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of directors, conferred with callers who came to learn the methods to be followed by the huge credit organization.

In another part of town Col. Knox was inundated with offers of support from various types of organizations. He talked with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange.

Both men assured Col. Knox their organizations would back the movement to the limit.

"We are going to convince the man who is hoarding money that it is to his disadvantage," Col. Knox said. "We will endeavor to show him how vital it is to keep money in circulation. How if he holds out ten dollars it means a $100 shortening in credit. As that shortening spreads it may eventually cause him to lose his job."

Col. Knox said he had talked with President Hoover over the telephone and conferred with Acting Secretary Mills, at the Treasury Department. He expects to return to Washington shortly.

has not yet entered into the microscopic examination.

It is likely that at least three days more will be required to complete the ballistics examination of all the slugs involved in the series of shootings.

A number of suspects who were arrested yesterday have been released. Several were taken into custody, and after questioning, the police were convinced that they had no connection with the shootings.

James J. Sullivan, who gave his address at 616 U street southeast, was taken into custody at Good Hope road and Fifteenth street, and a .32-caliber and .25-caliber gun found in his possession. After being grilled for several hours he was booked for investigation. The guns were examined by Lieut. Fowler and were found to be not linked with the shootings.

Benjamin Hayes, 20 years old, who walked into headquarters yesterday and confessed he stole $296 from a man in Wheeling, W. Va., was questioned in connection with the shootings. The police later learned that he is wanted in Wheeling for complicity in a $1,300 robbery.

Inspector Frank S. W. Burke said last night that the police are "without any tangible lead as to the identity of the man or men who have committed the shootings. All of the automobiles having Maryland tags similar to those described by witnesses have been eliminated from suspicion."

Police yesterday sent out a lookout for a 1926 Buick coach, motor number 1656552, District of Columbia license tags K-9337. The automobile, blue in color, and recently simonized, was stolen Saturday from Eighteenth street and Oregon avenue northwest, from John H. McPherson, of 1830 Eighteenth street northwest. The machine may now be bearing Maryland license plates, according to the lookout.

Omaha's Sniper of 1926 Killed 2; Was Executed

Police squads' unceasing vigil in an effort to capture Washington's sniper killer are similar to methods adopted in Omaha, Nebr., in 1926, when terror stalked the streets there in the guise of the "sniper maniac."

In the Nebraska city, two men were slain within a few days, both by bullets from a .22-caliber gun. Although they were killed in a populous section and with other persons nearby, no shots were heard.

Following the two murders, the elusive slayer fired shots into store windows and at persons in the street, yet no one saw him or heard the noise of his weapon.

Some weeks after the first killing, a railroad policeman was wounded by four shots from a noiseless gun. He fired once in return and also caught a glimpse of the "ghost" killer.

On the second day following, a railroad worker saw a man answering the description given by the wounded victim. He enlisted a posse of citizens who captured the killer.

Strapped to his body was a .22-caliber automatic pistol, equipped with a silencer. He admitted the crimes very coolly and said that his luck had failed him and he was taking his vengeance on society.

He was executed. His name was Frank Carter.

$455,000,000 ADDED TO NEW TAX NEEDED for the committee to draft a $1,241,-000,000 tax bill, of which almost a half billion dollars must come from sources not suggested by the Treasury.

Proposed Tax Yields.

Mr. Mills also submitted estimates on possible yields of taxes on petroleum imports, gasoline, electricity, gas and sundry other commodities. These were not divulged.

Acting Chairman Crisp of the committee said he hoped the measure would be completed by March 1, but indicated that it would be difficult to find the needed revenue.

Explaining the Treasury's situation, the Georgia Democrat said:

"On the basis of the estimates submitted to Congress in the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury, additional revenue in the amount of $920,000,000 was necessary to balance the budget for the fiscal year 1933, exclusive of debt requirements.

"On the basis of revised estimates which take into account developments since the autumn of 1931, it appears that further additional revenue in the amount of $321,000,000 will be required to meet this same objective.

"The revenue proposals made by the Secretary of the Treasury in his report were estimated at that time to yield $920,000,000. Revised estimates reduced that total to $786,000,-000, indicating that an additional $455,000,000 must be provided for, either through increases in taxes or reduction in expenditures."

Salvation Army Cites Gain n Homeless Men

Alarming increase in the number of homeless transient men in the lower age brackets is stressed by Maj. James Asher of the Salvation Army, in the report on care of transient men for January, made public yesterday. Out of 2,509 given aid during the month, the report shows 1,474 were less than 31 years old and of this number 550 were less than 21.

The Salvation Army during January gave out 12,726 meals, 6,801 lodgings, 658 garments and 247 pairs of shoes.

ANNAPOLIS WOMAN BELIEVED KIDNAPED

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Feb. 9.—Police here are waiting until Mrs. Esther Sands, young Annapolis mother of two small children, whose husband believes she was kidnaped early last night by a "foreigner," returns to Annapolis before conducting further investigation into her disappearance. The police said they expected her to return, unharmed, before the end of the week.

The police were told that Mrs. Sands last was seen in Annapolis at the Bladen street station of the W., B. & A Railroad at 8:40 p. m. yesterday. According to their informant, Mrs. Sands, accompanied by a "tall, slender man," got aboard the train, which arrived in Baltimore shortly before 10 p. m. At Greene and Paca streets, the police were told, Mrs. Sands and her companion left the car and walked north on Greene street.

A search for a man answering the description was conducted in the city today without avail.

Charles H. Sands, jr., moving picture operator, husband of the missing woman, believes she has been kidnaped, in view of threatening letters she is alleged to have received. Mrs. Sands is described as 5 feet 4 inches tall, light blue eyes and bobbed brown hair, and when last seen wore a black coat, a black fur and hat and crown slippers and stockings. She has a small mole under her chin.

Sands also said his wife had been accustomed to meeting him after he finished work at the theater, around 11 o'clock, and when she did not appear he became alarmed and, not finding her with his parents, he went home. Sands said furniture in the house was disarranged, indicating a possible scuffle; that the pistol he had given his wife was lying on the floor. One chamber of the weapon was empty. Nearby a bullet hole through the carpet and floor was discovered.

ROBERT PATTERSON LAMONT.

UNLESS Robert Patterson Lamont, Secretary of Commerce, changes his ways and emulates the predecessor who appointed him, he probably shall drift out of public consciousness without having made a definite dent in the mind of the hoi-polloi.

But anyone who thinks that Robert P. Lamont is just one of those persons whose names are seen now and then in the newspapers because he has been named Secretary of Commerce as a sort of a political reward is counting without his host.

Go into the business world and ask about Robert P. Lamont. His influence will be found in surprising quarters; it will be found that his judgment is respected where the judgments of more spectacular figures in the public life are disregarded, because of this or because of that.

There has not been for years a man who occupied the post of Secretary of Commerce who has had such widespread confidence of the financial, industrial and mercantile life of the Nation. It is significant that Secretary Lamont has been no Pollyanna about the depression, and that he hasn't taken up the verbal sword to slay the dragon, the death of which requires more than rhetoric.

Other Secretaries of Commerce used to hold regular conference with the newspaper reporters. Mr. Lamont does not. His secretaries are polite and, if you really insist on seeing him, you may.

Secretary Lamont was born in Detroit, Mich., on December 1, 1867. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1891. Three years later he married.

To list the large industrial and business enterprises in which he subsequently has been interested would require almost a book.

This might be added as a postscript: When this man, who had made his mark in the strifing world of finance and business, took over the job of being Secretary of Commerce he asked the advice of those executives who comprise the backbone of the department and was taught by them. If one of them told him his ideas were all wrong—as some did—he didn't get angry, he wanted to know why. Maybe he agreed and maybe he didn't. But he wanted the information.

VENUE CHANGE PLEA IS SEEN IN HONOLULU

Fortescue Counsel to Learn Temper of Community Before Acting.

Honolulu, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The possibility that defense attorneys will attempt to obtain a change of venue in the trial of Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three other defendants, charged with the murder of Joseph Kahahawai, young Hawaiian, was indicated today.

After a conference of opposing attorneys in the case Judge A. M. Cristy set the trial for March 10 in his own court. The trial motion was made by Barrys Ulrich, assistant attorney general prosecuting the case, and was unopposed by Montgomery Winn, chief of defense counsel.

There was an understanding, however, that the rights of the defense to apply for a change of venue would not be impaired in event it was shown the defendants could not have a fair trial in the territory.

Mr. Winn added that an attempt would be made "to ascertain the temper of the community" before definite plans to transfer the trial elsewhere would be made.

The other defendants are Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, of the Navy, son-in-law of Mrs. Fortescue and husband of Mrs. Thalia Massie, alleged to have been attacked by Kahahawai, and E. L. Lord and Albert O. Jones, enlisted men of the U. S. Navy.

AL CAPONE'S APPEAL HEARINGS ARE BEGUN

Gangster Is Not in Court as Attorneys Rap Charges Against Him.

Chicago, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today took under advisement the arguments attacking the conviction and sentence of "Scarface Al" Capone as an income tax dodger.

In three hours of technical debate that never once brought up the name of Chicago's most notorious gangster, another chapter was written in the lengthy record of the Government's battle against Capone and his fellow-hoodlums.

The arguments were much the same as those which failed to impress the lower court, based principally on the alleged insufficiency of the indictment under which Capone was tried.

Capone was not in court but remained in the county jail, where he has been since October 24, when he was sentenced to eleven years and fined $50,000 for violating the income tax laws.

Judges Samuel Alschuler, Evan A. Evans and Will M. Sparks heard the appeal arguments. They gave no indication when a decision would be announced, but they had previously expressed the desire to expedite the case.

Attorneys Albert Fink and Michael Ahern argued on Capone's behalf that the indictment was invalid because it was too vague and too general in its charge that the gangster "attempted to evade and defeat the income tax." It was impossible, they said, to present a good defense when the charges against a man were of such a general nature. They did not attack the evidence introduced in Capone's trial, although they said the verdict of the jury was inconsistent inasmuch as Capone was acquitted on substantially the same charges as those on which he was convicted.

Judge Evans remarked that inconsistencies were "one of those anomalous things we run across in jury verdicts."

CHURCH GIFT MADE BY INDIAN RETURNED

Jackson Barnett, Mentally Icompetent, Will Get Big Sum Back.

New York, Feb. 9—(A.P.).—Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe today signed a final decree directing the Chase National Bank, as successor trustee to the Equitable Trust Co., to pay over to the Secretary of the Interior for Jackson Barnett, octogenarian and mentally incompetent Creek Indian, the sum of $696,050.40, including $225,050.40 in cash and Liberty Bonds of par value of $470,000.

The order is the aftermath of a decision rendered by Federal Judge John C. Knox in 1927 in which a gift of $550,000 by Barnett to the Baptist Home Mission Society, made in February, 1923, was set aside.

A gift for a like amount was made by Barnett at the same time to his white wife who married him in Kansas and later married him in Missouri. A suit to set aside the gift to Mrs. Barnett is still pending in the courts in Washington, D. C.

Barnett is a full-blood Creek Indian, who became wealthy through the discovery of oil on a 160-acre plot which was allotted to him when tribal lands were divided among members of the tribe. In 1920 while in his early seventies Barnett married his present wife after a runaway trip to Kansas. In December, 1922, according to U. S. Attorney George Z. Medalie, he was induced to put his thumb mark on an instrument giving $1,100,000 in Liberty Bonds to the Baptist Missionary Society and to his wife, that amount representing an investment of accumulated royalties from an oil and gas lease on his land.

Half of the bonds' value was given to Mrs. Barnett, the other half was placed in trust for the society with the Equitable Trust Company which was later succeeded by the Chase National Bank as trustee. The gift was consummated in February, 1923, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, Albert G. Fall.

Grain Rate Study Reopened by I.C.C.

Economic Conditions and Bearing on Freight Costs Taken Up.

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday reopened the Western grain rate case. The new investigation will go into the situation brought about by changed economic conditions. The commission several weeks ago rescinded an order putting into effect revised rates after the Supreme Court held the railroads were entitled to a hearing.

The investigation is part of the general study of freight rates started in 1926, after Congress directed the commission to work out a proper basic structure for the country with special reference to assisting agriculture. The commission revised grain rates downward and the railroads sought to prevent the changes going into effect on July 1, last.

A Chicago Federal court refused to make a temporary injunction permanent and the commission ordered the lower rates into effect August 1. The railroads complied with the order but appealed to the Supreme Court which overturned the order.

Hamburg's Beer Strike Protests Cut in Price

Hamburg, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Hamburg is undergoing a "beer strike." Of the city's 4,000 saloons, 2,100 have agreed not to sell beer in protest against a decree by Carl Goerdeler, the nation's price czar, ordering a price cut.

The establishments participating in the movement agreed to adorn their doors with signs reading: "During the beer strike no beer will be sold." Wines and other drinks not hit by the decree are being handled as usual.

WALLACE, NOVELIST, ILL WITH PNEUMONIA

Famous English Writer Is in Serious Condition at Beverly Hills.

Beverly Hills, Calif., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Edgar Wallace, 56, who rose from a home in the slums of London to world-wide fame as an author, was stricken here today with double pneumonia.

Attending physicians said Wallace had a chance for recovery if his vitality could outlast the disease. They said he had been in excellent health prior to the illness.

Wallace, one of the most prolific of modern wrters, came here three months ago to write film scenarios. Arriving on Friday, he met studio executives, asked them what they wanted, and upon learning their wishes, appeared Monday with a 60,000-word novel. Hollywood still gasps at the amazing productive speed of the Englishman.

Wife Is Notified.

Wallace contracted a slight cold last week during unseasonable weather. He suffered a severe headache on Sunday and by Monday had developed a high fever. Influenza grew out of the cold and his condition suddenly became worse today, pneumonia settling in both lungs.

His wife, who is living at the family home in London, with their four children was notified and made immediate arrangements to sail on the Majestic for the United States tomorrow.

One of Wallace's newest plays, "The Green Pack," is being shown for the first time in London tonight and following the performance, Mrs. Wallace notified studio executives here she would talk with them by transatlantic telephone. The children will remain in London.

Wrote 200 Novels.

Mystery stories and "thrillers" have been the specialty of the writer, and he is known to have written more than 200 novels, about 200 plays and between 1,300 and 1,400 short fiction stories. He first began to write while a youth serving with the English army in the Boer war and gained attention by aping Kipling.

Later he became a newspaper correspondent for the London Daily Mail and Reuters. British news service. Fiction soon drew his attention and while a comparatively young man he laid aside all other activities.

Hunt for Hoarded Dollar New Hide-and-Seek Game

By JOHN J. DALY

IN a national campaign to get the American groundhog dollar out of its hiding place, to bring hoarded money back into circulation, one method suggested is a house-to-house canvass. Presumably, the question to be asked housekeepers is: "Have you a hoarded dollar in your home?"

That, baldly stated, is an embarrassing question.

There are two classes of people in this country, those who have hoarded dollars and those who haven't. Those who have no dollars are trying to get dollars from those who have, and those who have are holding out—hoarding. In this game of hide-and-seek, the dollar is buried, hoarded, hidden away. It hinders progress, stops commerce, puts fetters on industry.

The way to solve the national problem is to get the American dollar out of the trenches by Easter.

* * * *

AS the promotor of the campaign, Col. Frank Knox told the President and the press, at the White House, "What we are suffering from is a national headache induced by eye-strain from looking toward Europe as the basis of our troubles."

To relieve the eye-strain, and get rid of the headache, the Nation is now advised to look for the hoarded dollar at home.

If the dollar is brought out of hiding, according to expert testimony, 90 per cent of our economic ills will vanish. Europe will be forgotten, and so will Asia and Africa, along with the Orient. The return of the missing dollar would mark the passing of poverty, as it is now known, and the dawn of a new prosperity.

Like water, after the well runs dry, we never miss the good old American dollar till it vanishes into thin air, in the hoarding houses. Time now to woo it back, and put it on the pedestal, so that a national holiday may be declared, flags flying and bands playing to mark the return of the wanderer, the theme song being, "Darling Bill, Come Back to Me."

* * * *

OH, that dollar! How we love it,
Placing nothing else above it.
Though we jostle it and shove it,
Still, we love it.

Call it dirty, call it evil,
Call it counterpart of devil.
Say it isn't on the level,
Yet we revel;

Revel in the race for dollars,
Putting human necks in collars,
Making madmen out of scholars—
Hear their hollers!

Transportation, trade, and commerce,
Industry, and even farmers
Get down on their knees, and psalmers,
Turn to charmers.

When they sing of legal tender,
Anthem of the money lender,
Of the miser and the spender.
And its splendor!

Rich and poor, they've all adored it,
Though its critics have deplored it,
Saying, "Pride can not afford it,"
As they hoard it.

Oh, that dollar! How they love it,
Trying hard to get above it,
As they say, "Thou shalt not covet,"
While they love it.

WOMAN'S BODY CAST UP ON LONG BEACH

Corpse of Wife Is Found Near Spot That Yielded Starr Faithfull.

Long Beach, N. Y., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The gently rolling surf here cast up another woman's body today not far from the spot where the mysteriously-dead Starr Faithfull was tossed ashore last summer.

Detectives, scenting another colorful mystery, rushed to the spot, and the woman was identified after a few hours as Mrs. Adele Sieck, of Bronxville.

An autopsy revealed no signs of violence and established she died of drowning either by "accident or suicide." She apparently had been in the water about two days, but her clothing was not disarranged. Nearby were her coat and pocketbook.

Her husband, J. H. Sieck, of the banking department of Burroughs Adding Machine Co., said she recently suffered a nervous breakdown and underwent treatment in Baltimore, returning to Bronxville February 2.

Early yesterday, he said, she eluded her companion, saying she was going to a hairdresser, and took a train for New York. She apparently went directly to Long Beach, where she formerly lived and where she loved to stroll along the boardwalk. Residents along the shore remembered seeing a woman of her description walking with a small brown dog.

Late last night her husband, alarmed at her absence, notified the Bronxville police and a quiet search was in progress when news came of the finding of the body. A commuter's ticket and other articles in her bag gave the first clue to her identity.

Her body was taken to the same morgue where that of Starr Faithfull lay while authorities sought vainly to solve her death.

Treason Is Hinted In Memel Dispute

Lithuanians Charge Grave Breach of Law to Deposed Official.

Kovno, Lithuania, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The Lithuanian government today maintained that Herr Otto Boettcher, deposed president of the Council of Memel, had committed a grave breach of law possibly involving a charge of high treason.

Herr Boettcher was deposed and arrested last Saturday by Lithuanian authorities, but later released subject to orders of military officers. Memel is a city in Southwestern Lithuania near the German border and its population is mostly of German descent. The Lithuanians charged Herr Boettcher had negotiated with a foreign government, presumably Germany. A League of Nations commission has designed Memel as an international city under Lithuanian supervision.

At Memel today M. Merkys, the Lithuanian governor, named an appointee to a new all-Lithuanian council to replace Herr Boettcher. The appointee was duly installed despite the refusal of the president of the Diet to be a party to "Lithuania's tactics."

Wisconsin Youth Held As Kidnaper of Boy, 8

Vicksburg, Miss., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Fred Howard, 19, of Manitomoc, Wis., is held here awaiting grand jury action on a charge of kidnaping 8-year-old Alton Joseph, of Vicksburg, about two weeks ago. In default of $5,000 bond, he is in Warren County Jail. The grand jury convenes March 28.

Howard was arrested at a house where the Joseph child was found after a 24-hour search by police.

Change in Libel Action On Medical Board Fails

Davenport, Iowa, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye, of the Minnesota District, who is hearing the $500,000 libel action brought against the American Medical Association by Norman Baker, of Muscatine, today ruled against a proposed amendment to Baker's pleadings.

The amendment would have permitted him to claim special damages on the grounds that his broadcasting station, KTNT, his institute for treatment of cancer and other diseases, and other enterprises had been closed because of the medical association's activities against him.

U. S.-BRITISH BLOC ON DISARMING SEEN

Geneva Conference Expected to Utilize Work Done in Previous Parleys.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

American disarmament proposals laid before the general conference at Geneva yesterday foreshadow the formation of an Anglo-American bloc to carry through the cardinal points shared by the United States and Great Britain. The nine-point program of the United States contains several issues similar to the British program made public on Monday by the chief British delegate, Sir John Simon.

Cooperation between the British and American delegation at the Washington conference of 1921-1922 enabled the delegates of the five great powers to sign the treaty which stood as the high-water mark of armament limitation up to the London conference. In London again Secretary Stimson and Prime Minister MacDonald closely worked together.

The two countries by their respective armament proposals have the following identic aims:

First, the abolition of the submarine; second, abolition of gas and chemical warfare; third, proportional reduction of the existing tonnage of ships; reduction and limitation of weapons of agression, such as mobile guns and long-range weapons of attack.

Lindsay and Stimson Confer.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, called at the State Department yesterday and remained in conference with Secretary Stimson for almost an hour. Various aspects of the disarmament problem were touched upon in view of the intentoin of Secretary Stimson to leave for Geneva as soon as a situation arises there requiring his presence.

The French program put forward by Andre Tardieu has been regarded with some wonderment here, as going so far beyond the limits of practicability that not even the original founders of the League of Nations, Woodrow Wilson and Leon Bourgeois, ever ventured seriously to propose it for consideration by the other nations.

The proposals of the Italian government will be announced by Mussolini's minister of foreign affairs, Dino Grandi, today at Geneva, and considerable interest is attached to the Italian pronouncements in view of the visit which youthful Signor Grandi paid to President Hoover and Secretary Stimson last year. When the Japanese delegates have given their disarmament program, the delegates at Geneva will be ready to settle down to work, as the Japanese proposal will complete the "Big Five." In view of the developments at Shanghai and in Manchuria, the Japanese disarmament formulae will be followed with more than usual concern.

Poison Gas Negotiations.

Efforts to outlaw poison gases in international conferences have had various results. The Washington Conference Treaty contained an article which provided: "The signatory powers declare their assent to the prohibition of the use in war of asphyxiating, poisonous or other gases * * *."

This was duly signed by the representatives of all the powers there present, but it failed of adoption, since it was never ratified by the French Parliament. However, the United States Senate failed, likewise, to take action on a subsequent proposal put forward by the late Representative Theodore A. Burton before the conference on traffic in arms at Geneva in 1925. The proposal was accepted by all the delegates, but after the treaty had been referred to the Senate foreign relations committee it expired and was never reported out. Consequently the proposal was never legalized by any of the powers who had ratified it.

Additional anxiety for the success of the present conference is due to the fact that unless France and Italy are able to compose their differences over comparative naval strength in the spirit and letter of the London Treaty it will be necessary to summon another costly and lengthy international conference in 1935.

Laval Wins Delay On Orient Debate

Chamber Vote of 300-267 Turns Back Effort to Force Issue.

Paris, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Premier Laval, asserting that France had done its duty in collaborating with the United States and other powers in the Far East tonight turned back a move to force an immediate debate in the Chamber of Deputies on French activity in the Orient.

No one ever denied that the French were cooperating with the other powers, he said, and both Japan and China acknowledged the impartiality of the French action.

Solution of the problem should be left in the hands of the League of Nations, he declared, and on the vote the Chamber gave him a margin of 300 to 267 for postponing the debate.

Jobless Man Near Death; Poison Reported Cause

A man, believed to be suffering from the effects of a deadly poison, was in a serious condition at Emergency Hospital last night. He was taken there by a taxi driver, who found him in a semiconscious condition on the sidewalk at Eleventh street and Massachusetts avenue northwest.

After he had received emergency treatment, the man told physicians that his name was Eugene D. Orrel, 33 years old, of 1431 Ames place northeast, and that he had swallowed three poison tablets. Police said he had a note in his pocket addressed to "Lottie," declaring that he was sorry if he had made her any trouble, and explaining that he had been unable to get work for some months.

China's Foreign Minister Attacks Japanese Plan

Nanking, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Lo Wen-Kan said today the Japanese proposal to establish demilitarized zones around China's principal commercial cities was "highly absurd."

The foreign minister declared the plan was "an additional effort to gain additional territory as a military base to be used against the Chinese."

Hunting Decided Life Work Of Ambassador to Japan

Inspired by Consul's Benevolence and Praise of Roosevelt, Joseph Clark Grew Entered Service Three Decades Ago; Popular in Turkish Post.

(Associated Press.)

Joseph Clark Grew, whom President Hoover has named Ambassador to Japan, might never have been career diplomat if he had not been a hunter of big game in the Far East.

His book on tiger hunting in China, India, and the East Indies came to the attention of President Roosevelt, who gave his support to the young Harvard graduate with the remark: "A young chap who shows such pluck in trailing big game is the sort of men we want in our foreign service."

Mr. Grew comes of a banking family in Boston. His father planned that he should go into the publishing business after doing some traveling and hunting. Fever attacked Mr. Grew while he was hunting in India. As he lay delirious in the Bombay Hotel, the American consul took charge of him and nursed him back to health.

That was Mr. Grew's first experience with the American foreign service. He asked the consul why any one should elect to live in such a hot, uncomfortable place. The consul explained that foreign service men have elected to serve their Government wherever they are sent, just as Navy and Army men devote themselves to the Nation's welfare.

Mr. Grew was touched by the earnestness of the young consul who had taken care of an American wholly unknown to him and decided to make a career of foreign service. His first work was a clerk in the consulate general at Cairo.

In 1904, after examination, he was made third secretary at the legation in Mexico City. Then he was sent to Leningrad, Berlin and Vienna.

In 1917 he was made chief of the division of Western Europe in the State Department. He was secretary general of the American Commission at the Versailles peace conference and later counselor of the Paris Embassy. In 1920 he was made Minister to Denmark and transferred to Switzerland a year later. From that post he was recalled to Washington to become Undersecretary of State. He represented the United States at the Lausanne conference which negotiated peace with Turkey and since 1927 has been United States Ambassador to Turkey.

Ambassador Grew is a senior man among the career diplomats of the American foreign service. He has long been rated by his service colleagues as an expert in the technique of international relationships, by temperament peculiarly adapted to the nonspectacular methods of smoothing out difficulties before they arise. His personal negotiation of the treaty with Turkey that restored regular diplomatic relations after the World War accounted for his assignment as Ambassador to Turkey by President Coolidge even before the treaty was confirmed by the Senate.

Selection of a career man for the Tokyo post, aside from the bearing it may have on the immediate Sino-Japanese clash and peace efforts in the Far East presumably reflects special difficulties encountered by the Administration previously in getting qualified men outside the foreign service for that embassy. President Hoover had not succeeded in filling the post when the London Naval Conference made it desirable that an Ambassador be available at the Japanese capital in that connection. Undersecretary William Castle, jr., went to Tokyo as special Ambassador for that purpose.

Mr. Grew is a man of independent means. His devotion to the career service arises out of his desire for constructive life work, as is the case with a majority of the career men. The Tokyo assignment requires personal means to supplement government salary and allowances. Political appointees who have held the post have found it a heavy financial burden.

Since Mr. Grew went to Turkey in 1927 relations with that country have run so smoothly that he has rarely figured in the news. Two of the incidents of his service as Ambassador brought him special mention in the Turkish press. Once he rescued two Turkish girls, stranded on a lonely road by a smashed motor car. Another time he leaped into the Bosphorus in an attempt to rescue a Turkish woman, who had hurled herself into the water. She died despite Mr. Grew's efforts at resuscitation; but the incident rendered the Ambassador an even more popular figure in Turkish eyes.

CHINESE CARRYING SABERS BEATEN BACK BY JAPANESE

also were adding to the troops on both the Capei and Woosung fronts with a determination to resist Japanese operations on a more extensive scale.

Chinese machine gunners still protected the banks of Woosung Creek against the invaders, who labored incessantly to throw up a bridge across a stretch 200 to 300 feet wide.

Leaders of Chinese commerce and banking sent telgerams to Henry L. Stimson, American Secretary of State, and the prime ministers of Great Britain, France and Italy urging them to attempt to settle the dispute between China and Japan "in accordance with the ideals of the League of Nations, the Kellogg pact and the Nine-Power Treaty."

Sun Is Shining Again.

Otherwise, they said, they feared "a world catastrophe."

The sun shone for the first time this week through the lifting fog. Immediately the battles of Chapei and Woosung flared up again.

Four Japanese airplanes came up to Chapei from the lower Yangtze River. Two flung bombs on the Chinese lines while the others flew over wide areas, including the International Settlement, despite repeated protests from the foreigners that all airplanes keep away from the foreign quarter.

Reports Are Contradicted.

Rear Admiral Shimada, speaking for Vice Admiral Nomura, Japanese commander in chief, said Japanese naval officers were unaware of any truce negotiations, thus contradicting reports that peace parleys between the Japanese and Chinese were going on and were likely to culminate shortly in a cessation of hostilities.

Admiral Shimada, commenting on Washington reports that the Japanese were willing to withdraw into Hongkew if the Chinese withdrew 20 miles from Chapei, said, "Any truce presupposes a Chinese withdrawal from areas immediately surrounding Shanghai."

He reiterated the Japanese declaration that their fight was a defensive one and would cease whenever Japanese lives and property in Shanghai were safe.

Desire for Fewer Casualties.

The failure of Japanese forces to occupy Woosung and Chapei was attributed by Admiral Shimada to a desire to keep the Japanese casualties to a minimum.

"The Japanese are withholding their defensive movements unless they can be accomplished without material loss of life," he said.

"We could occupy the Woosung forts any time we pleased if we were willing to sacrifice the lives.

"But there is no need for immediate capture. The forts have been silenced, preventing for the time being at least further molestation of Japanese shipping in the Whangpoo River.

Says Object Accomplished.

"Our main object at Woosung has been accomplished with the silencing of the forts. Our intention now is to clear the area of all Chinese soldiers, thereby averting the possibility of future attacks on Japanese lives and property from that quarter.

Chinese troops have converted Woosung village into a fortress, "which we intend to take when the occupation is possible without fool-hardiness," the admiral said.

The Japanese plan, he said, was to weaken the Chinese positions at Woosung by bombarding them from warships and airplanes, following up when the attackers thought the time was ripe.

He denied widespread reports that Japanese bluejackets were intent upon razing Chapei. Instead, he said, they continued to bombard Chapei in an effort to clear out the Chinese troops concentrated there. He admitted that the destruction of property in that devastated area had been "heavy."

Aim for Protection.

"Our aim is to protect Japanese lives and property and this will not be accomplished until the Chinese are forced back a safe distance from the borders of the International Settlement," he said.

"The Japanese police concerning Chapei is similar to that in Woosung, namely the restricting of operations to an extent in which Japanese casualties are held to a minimum."

Gen. Chiang Kwang-Nai, commander-in-chief of the nineteenth route army defending Shanghai, issued a manifesto saying he was fighting the Japanese not only in defense of China's territory, but also in defense of the League of Nations covenant, the Kellogg-Briand peace pact and the Nine-Poper treaty.

U. S. Battalion on Guard.

The Second Battalion of the Thirty-first Infantry, recently arrived from the tropical warmth of Manila, walked lines in the slum section of Shanghai.

This battalion was the first American army unit to go on duty. It took over a sector about a mile long on the edge of Soochow Creek, which had been under British patrol.

Smith Firm Claims Property of Pitts

Petition Is Filed Before Tax Board to Obtain Seized Assets.

A claim that all the Government-seized assets of G. Bryan Pitts, former F. H. Smith Co. head, to satisfy tax claims, are in law a trust fund of which the Smith Co. should be beneficiary, was set forth in a petition filed with the Board of Tax Appeals by the investment company yesterday.

Seeking to intervene in litigation before the board concerning the alleged nonpayment of income taxes by Pitts, the petition alleges that the former Smith Co. head embezzled more than $2,000,000 in cash and more than $1,000,000 in securities during the time in question. Unless the Smith Co. is allowed to intervene, the petition asserted, a true picture of the facts in the matter will not be presented as Pitts has stated he will not testify before the board because of criminal charges pending against him.

Pitts' true tax liability, said the Smith Co. petition, during the four years in question was approximately $2,000 a year. The petition protested against a purported settlement arranged by agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau with Pitts.

ments concluded at Washington and London, and we advocate completing the latter as soon as possible by the adherence of France and Italy.

3. We advocate proportional reduction from the figures laid down in the Washington and London agreements on naval tonnage as soon as all parties to the Washington agreement have entered this framework.

4. We advocate, as we long have done, the total abolition of submarines.

Would Protect Civilian Population.

5. We will join in formulating the most effective measures to protect civilian population against aerial bombing.

6. We advocate the total abolition of lethal gases and bacteriological warfare.

7. We advocate, as I have already stated, the computation of the number of armed forces on the basis of the effectives necessary for the maintenance of internal order plus some suitable contingent for defense. The former are obviously impossible of reduction; the latter is a question of relativity.

8. We agree in advocating special restrictions for tanks and heavy mobile guns; in other words, for those arms of a peculiarly offensive character.

9. We are prepared to consider a limitation of expenditure on material as a complementary method to direct limitation, feeling that it may prove useful to prevent a qualitative race, if and when quantitative limitation has been effected.

The American points generally were considered as a constructive contribution to the concrete plans placed on the conference table by War Minister Andre Tardieu of France and by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary.

Budgetary Stand Pleases.

The delegates seemed especially pleased at America's acceptance of the usefulness of the budgetary method of limiting armaments. This was considered a decisive step forward in the American attitude, as the proposal was flatly rejected by the United States delegation at the meetings of the conference's preparatory commission, which prepared the "draft convention."

There had been much speculation about whether Dr. Bruening would make a sharp retort to M. Tardieu, as the Nationalists at home had expected him to do, or whether he would confirm the reputation he made in the international conferences last summer for saying, in polished and gentlemanly words, things of the most delicate nature.

Even the French delegates were unstinting in their praise of the dignified manner and the consideration for the sensibilities of other nations with which Dr. Bruening voiced Germany's call on the rest of the world to disarm and, by indirection took issue with the theses of M. Tardieu, who had urged the establishment of a strong militarry force under the direction of the League of Nations.

tiated by the United States and rejected by Japan.

Local peace negotiations continued in Shanghai. Admiral M. M. Taylor, commanding the Asiatic Fleet, cabled that Admiral Nomura, commanding the Japanese fleet in Chinese waters, agreed to a truce on conditions that the Chinese forces withdraw 20 miles from Chapei and the Japanese retreat to Hongkew, which is the portion of the International Settlement policed by the Japanese.

The Shanghai situation thrust itself forward again in Congress yesterday. The House committee on foreign affairs refused to hear 100 men and women representing pacifist organizations on a resolution of Representative Fish (Republican), New York, intended to prohibit the export of arms to countries engaged in war.

At Secretary's Request.

The committee decided in executive session to table the resolution, and Chairman Linthicum (Democrat), Maryland, explained that the action was taken at the request of Secretary Stimson, who asked a postponement until the committee could be given further information about treaties.

Dr. Yen presented to Mr. Stimson a petition from 20 Chinese organizations and societies which seek the assistance of the United States in compelling Japan to respect Chinese treaty rights and retire from Chinese territory.

Dr. Yen said China is determined to defend its territory with all its resources and is convinced Western powers do not take seriously the suggestions from the spokesman of the Japanese foreign office that demilitarized zones be created about the leading Chinese cities. It was emphasized yesterday that the Grew appointment indicates no change in American policy.

It was estimated that it will be two months before Mr. Grew can take the oath of office and reach his new post. It is expected that Ambassador Forbes will remain at Tokyo until shortly before the arrival of his successor.

The Shanghai General Chamber of Commerce, Shanghai Bankers Association, Shanghai Labor Union and many other commercial and shipping organizations joined in the petition presented to the Secretary of State yesterday by Dr. Yen expressing appreciation of the stand the United States has taken to protect China and urging this Government to stand firm on the five-point peace plan the United States and Great Britain submitted to Japan and China.

After the tabling of his resolution to prevent the export of arms and munitions to warring countries, Representative Fish issued a statement in which he said:

"It is inconceivable to me that, after renouncing war, we should hesitate to renounce the sale and shipment of munitions of war made in the United States by private manufacturers for the sake of profit and greed, to kill people with whom we are at peace and with whom we have no quarrel. I know of nothing more likely to drag the United States into every foreign war than to permit such traffic in arms and munitions."

Troops Rushed to Keep Peace Parley Peaceful

Geneva, Feb. 9 (U.P.).—Steel-helmeted machine gun troops from Switzerland's standing army hastened to Geneva today to guard the disarmament conference against possible violence from Communist demonstrations scheduled for tomorrow night.

In this military atmosphere the United States and Germany went on record with their policies for the limitation of arms.

The troops arrived in trucks during the afternoon, authorities explaining the call for guards was merely a precautionary measure against any overt acts that might mar the conference.

short time the former minister's wife arrived there. Dignified and dry-eyed, she received condolences, saying she had prepared herself for such a tragedy while her husband was in the cabinet, but had hoped that the danger was over.

Late tonight the body was taken to the Inouye residence, accompanied by leaders of the Minseito party, who subsequently held a conference to discuss the future of their political organization.

The police, who held Konuma for murder, declared he had committed the crime because he blamed M. Inouye for financial policies that had put Japanese peasants in a desperate plight.

Police learned that the assassin, since his arrival in Tokyo last December, had lived at the home of Inajiro Terada, member of the famous Kokuryukai, the "Black Dragon" Society," made up of the most reactionary "patriotic" zealots in Japan.

M. Inouye was finance minister in the short-lived "earthquake cabinet" formed by Admiral Count Gombei Yamamoto immediately after the great Tokyo quake in 1923. He first took his place among most important leaders of the nation when he joined the Mamaguchi ministry in July, 1929. When Reijiro Makatsuki reorganized the cabinet in 1931 he retained his finance portfolio.

Only One Now Living.

The Mamaguchi Cabinet contained three men hailed by the majority of the nation as Japan's ablest leaders—the premier himself, Finance Minister Inouye and Baron Shidehara, who had the foreign portfolio. Of the trio only Baron Shidehara survives.

Mamaguchi was shot November 14, 1930, by Tomeo Sagoya, a member of a reactionaly society similar to the one with which Inouye's assassin apparently was affiliated. He lingered until October, 1931, when he succumbed to his wound.

It had been expected that if the Minseito party returned to power in the election February 20, M. Inouye would become premier.

During his last term as finance minister he did his utmost to keep Japan on the gold-standard. He was a strong advocate of friendship between Japan and the United States. As vice president of the American-Japan Society he made several trips to the United States and among his friends were many American leaders in finance and other fields.

CHINA AGAIN PLEADS FOR LEAGUE'S HELP

Yen's Talk Is Taken to Mean Invocation of Article XVI Is Imminent.

Geneva, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The Council of the League of Nations listened today to another emotional appeal from Dr. W. W. Yen, its Chinese delegate, to halt Japanese operations in Shanghai and admonished patience pending outcome of peace negotiations on the scene of hostilities.

Asserting that the Chinese army would continue to defend its territory to the utmost, Dr. Yen warned that in order to achieve a cessation in the fighting China would call on the council to employ every power authorized by the league covenant. This was taken to mean that invocation of Article XVI was imminent.

Chairman Joseph Paul-Boncour, French delegate, and Foreign Minister Sir John Simon of Great Britain, recalled that negotiations were now going on at Shanghai between the great powers and the combatants and said the council must hopefully await their termination.

Neutral Zone Is Object.

The first objective of the mediation, in which an American delegate is participating, they said, is the organization of a neutral zone between the belligerents and its occupancy by troops of the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy.

The session was turned into a debating forum on the anti-Japanese boycott by the Chinese and Japanese spokesmen. Dr. Yen said the weapon was the result of Japanese invasion and promised it would "die a natural death" as soon as Japan withdrew her troops.

"The Chinese can never be forced to buy Japanese goods," he added, "while Japanese soldiers remain on their soil."

Naotake Sato, speaking for Japan, flatly denied that the boycott was the result of invasion. It has a political meaning and is aimed to drive the Japanese out of China, he charged, and "we cannot tolerate such a movement and will not recognize any Chinese right to discriminate against our goods."

Wounding of American.

Dr. Yen declared that hundreds of civilians had been killed in the Shanghai battle and tens of thousands left homeless. Among the outrages, he said, were the bombing of an ambulance and the wounding of an American woman doctor "on an errand of mercy in the devastated area."

Two tense incidents marked the meeting. When M. Sato repeated his assurance that Japan had no territorial designs in China a wave of laughter swept over spectators outside the diplomatic sections. He fixed his gaze sharply upon the crowd and everyone held his breath for an instant. Then the chairman pounded with his gavel and the address was resumed.

At the end of a long Japanese discourse the meeting was adjourned without Dr. Yen being given an opportunity to reply. On leaving the hall a member of the Chinese delegation violently protested this omission and called the chairman's abrupt termination of debate a "shame."

First Lady Meets Arlington Women

More Than 100 Members of G. O. P. League Are Guests.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the President, yesterday afternoon received more than 100 members of the League of Republican Women of Arlington County. The First Lady met her visitors in the blue room.

President Hoover was detained in his office during the brief reception. After shaking hands with Mrs. Hoover they remained for several minutes chatting in groups in the blue and red rooms before departing.

The group was headed by its president, Mrs. Frances A. Harris.

SORE THROAT

There's a world of winter comfort in Bayer Aspirin tablets. If you take them only to break-up colds, you know only half the story. Some tablets crushed in a little water will relieve the sorest throat with one good gargle. That's what the specialists use in cases of sore throat. That's what you ought to use at home—every time you want throat comfort and protection from infection. Remember, every case of tonsilitis began with just a sore throat! Don't neglect any sore throat. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first tickling felt. Take a couple of tablets for that headache that comes with a cold—for neuralgia, neuritis, or similar pain. If it's genuine Bayer, it can't hurt the heart.

CHEST GOAL SOUGHT BY DIFFERENT WAY

Deficit of $191,003 to Be Collected in Skirmish Fashion by Units.

Members of the Community Chest "army," mustered out after yesterday's meeting at the Willard Hotel, when final reports showed the 1932 Chest $191,003.87 short of its goal of $2,601,000, decided on a new method of "warfare." Plans were laid immediately for the formation of a number of small groups of volunteers, to conduct a "guerrilla" warfare in behalf of raising the balance of the amount necessary to complete the goal of the Chest. These workers will advance in skirmish formation, sniping at every person who has not given or who, having given, could still give more.

Edward F. Colladay, chairman of the campaign committee, declared that "what has not been raised now will be taken care of, in some manner, before the year ends," John Poole, president of the Chest, said. "I am with you in spirit, no matter how much of the year it takes to put it across, and I feel that it will be met."

Further educational work, designed to bring home to Washingtonians the real need that exists was the solution advanced by Elwood Street, director of the Chest. Mr. Street pointed out that because of the splendid work of the Chest organizations in caring for those in need, that many people did not realize that the need exists. He pointed out further that, living in such a beautiful city, it was hard for many of them to think that any misery could exist in a place so favored.

Joseph D. (Radio Joe) Kaufman, chairman of the speakers' unit, paid a tribute to his organization, pointing out that it is on the job 52 weeks in the year. He told of splendid work done by the speakers in reaching 1,196 groups out of an estimated 1,200 they had expected to speak before. Mr. Kaufman also paid tribute to the work of W. W. Wheeler and others in organizing the speakers' division of the group solicitation unit, and announced that "we are with you in every possible way to raise this balance before the year is out."

Clarence A. Aspinwall, reporting for the special gifts unit, announced new gifts of $4,750; Sidney F. Taliaferro, for the schools unit, $680.03; H. L. Rust, jr., chairman of the metropolitan unit, $13,869.55; William Montgomery, reporting for Lloyd B. Wilson, chairman of the group solicitation unit, $13,299. The total for yesterday was $32,528.58. Audited figures for results obtained previously showed a total of $2,377,467.55, making the total to date, $2,409,996.13, leaving $191,003.87 yet to be raised.

Chairman Colladay, President Poole and Director Street, as well as the regional and division chairmen, paid profusive thanks to the workers for their accomplishments during the campaign.

Japanese Attache Sued on 2 Notes

Commercial Envoy in Capital Asks Immunity Against $5,500 Claim.

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The unexplained refusal of Yasuto Shudo, commercial attache of the Japanese Embassy at Washington, to honor two notes totaling $5,500 he is alleged to have signed in favor of one John M. Kelly and Hazel Shepard Kelly, was revealed in the Supreme Court today, when Justice Aaron J. Levy took under advisement the attache's motion to dismiss a suit to collect the money from him.

The suit was instituted against Shudo by the Union Mortgage Co., of Boston, which claims to have purchased the notes from the Kellys. Shudo asked that the action be dismissed on the ground that the Federal Constitution grants diplomats immunity from suits of such character in State courts. He declared also the immunity is, in effect, granted to his country and he has not the authority to waive it and submit to the suit.

One note was said to be dated July 15, 1930, and was for $2,500. The other, dated July 30, 1930, was for $3,000. Both notes fell due four months later. The Kellys were identified by name only.

MAN AND HIS PROPERTY

By H. G. WELLS

THE three main types of human persona differ most widely in their attitude to property. The first type is acquisitive, tenacious and preservative; the second is rapacious and consumes; the third professes to be more or less aloof from possession and gain, and to carry on the service of the community for satisfaction of a quite different type. Let us now look a little into this idea of property which is manifestly a very primary idea in binding man to man in a common effort and a mutual servitude.

* * * *

We live and breathe in a world of property, just as we live and breathe in air, and yet that idea is as little analyzed as air was 300 years ago. We—the generality—have as little ordered and explicit knowledge of its elements and pressures.

It is, for example, interesting to turn to the index of the latest edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica, that compendium of general knowledge and the current mentality, and note how far we are as yet from any understanding of the need for such an analysis. One finds a reference to certain legal articles thus:

Property: See Compensation, Conveyancing, Personal Property, Real Property.

Property, Devolution of: See Intestacy, Legitim, Will.

Property, Law of: See Real Property and Conveyancing.

And finally one little article, a column and a third long, on Primitive Property, in which alone is any realization of the fundamental significance of property ideas apparent. This is in a work which gives 74 columns of letterpress and 41 page plates to Pottery and Porcelain!

* * * *

THE article upon Primitive Property is compressed, but does recognize something of the subtlety and variety underlying the apparent simplicity of this fundamental concept of social ideology. Rivers, Lavelye, Malinowski and other explorers of this neglected territory are mentioned. Indeed, in spite of the silences of the Encyclopedia Britannica, there is already available a considerable amount of work which converges upon the problem we are suggesting. But it is dispersed in all sorts of books and publications. For example, we have the work of such a writer as Lowie (Primitive Society), the material gathered for us by Malinowski, piquant suggestions from that physical genius Jung, and the Yerkes' focusing of simian behavior, a mass of such work indeed, all ready to be assembled in a larger synthesis. That assembling waits to be done by some competent and industrious student, but we may, with a certain confidence, throw out some general anticipations of its conclusions.

* * * *

The idea of "mine" seems to be of much earlier origin than the idea of "me." Some birds, many predatory animals and gorillas, for example, seem to have very definite territorial ideas. Possessive jealousy is manifestly interwoven into the very substance of many mammals. Man, as he began to discover himself, discovered himself an owner. The linkage between himself and certain objects, places and persons must have appeared as something obvious and necessary to him. And not only was there a "mine" in his awakening and clarifying consciousness to keep him snarling warnings at his brothers and sisters, but also there was an "ours"—all sorts of other larger things that rallied the pack to a common defensive.

* * * *

THESE primitive appropriations were already becoming definite and recognized in the very earliest societies to which our knowledge or imagination extends. The establishment of taboos, on which, as we have shown, human social life rests, concerned not merely sexual ownership but many other forms of ownership, varying with the nature and use of the thing owned. The ownership of weapons and adornments must have always been very personal and thorough. The ownership of a strip of meat still on the body of the tribe's last kill was not nearly so well defined. Many sorts of ownership, and particularly the ownership of one's own body and life, were precarious, and may have been largely dependent on the will of the tribal chief.

* * * *

People write and talk of "primitive communism" and "primitive individualism." But both communism and individualism are highly abstract ideas—too abstract for my taste altogether, and with a little mental slovenliness either can be applied to savage conditions. Dr. Firth, in the encyclopedia article I have cited, very properly dismisses both these "labels." The statement I have made above and to which I return as the cardinal proposition in the matter is that originally significance of ownership was dependent altogether upon the nature and use of the object under consideration. In the development of savage ideas, as in the development of language, the particular came before the general. "My" meant what I have now or what I mean to monopolize: Woman, ax, bead, sunny corner or cave. Certain things I might covet but dare not touch because they were taboo to the headman or to some one else. And, as the common use of language testifies, "my" went beyond the idea of property altogether when one talked of my master or my enemy.

* * * *

FROM such indefinite beginnings, which, indeed, signified hardly more than that a thing could focus on "me," the intensification of "mine" progressed. The idea of "mine" tended to generalize. But this generalization of property was never perfect. From the beginning there seem to have been these plain divisions between, first the crude absolute property of a man in his nose-ring or beads; secondly, claims on services and particularly sexual property with certain customary reciprocities and limitations; and, thirdly, property in which there was manifestly a communal interest, such as hunting rights and collective cultivation.

Sexual property we will not discuss at this point. It does not concern this review of human activities very greatly, and the points where it does come in may be conveniently deferred for a special chapter on woman. The progressive emancipation of women and the social protection of children, seem likely, as we shall see, to relegate it, at no very distant date, to the world of private feeling altogether.

Rockefeller, Feeling Fine, Refutes Report of Illness

John D. Makes Light of Cold Which Kept Him at Home Two Weeks and Speaks Optimistically of Business Trend; to Play Golf Soon.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

The 93-year-old multimillionaire took a newspaperman's hand firmly in his own, squeezed it tightly and, with a twinkle in his eye asked:

"Does that feel like the grip of a sick man?"

It didn't.

Then he said, "I feel better than ever before."

Mr. Rockefeller has voluntarily kept himself close to The Casements, his winter home, since he contracted a slight cold two weeks ago. He feared to invite complications from the unsettled weather that prevailed for a while.

Although he has remained at home, Mr. Rockefeller has maintained a close touch with the outside world.

"With the improvement shown in the various sections of the country," he said, "the outlook is much brighter. I have talked with men whose opinions are important and I am much pleased with their optimism for an early return to normalcy in their respective sections."

Mr. Rockefeller was enthusiastic about his health. He said he had been entirely well for eight days.

Demonstrating his good feeling, he sang a little hymn while posing for his picture. It was a religious song in which he joins when attending church. His voice was clear and firm.

While the photographer was making ready to take the picture, Mr. Rockefeller smilingly said: "You should have that talking picture machine. Then I could sing a song for it."

Missing his regular attendance at church has been one of the major penalties of his confinement, Mr. Rockefeller said. He likes to go there and shake hands around after the services, but was afraid it might prove taxing under the circumstances and he did not want to disappoint any one.

He will make no attempt to resume playing golf for several days yet. However, he spoke of the links wistfully and indicated that if the present sunny weather continues he may play any day.

The sunken gardens where Mr. Rockefeller walked today are located directly along the bank of the Halifax River, which fronts The Casements. He appeared in a gray checked suit, with a soft gray felt hat and high black shoes, and carried a cane.

150,000 Workers Turn Down Wage Cut Plan

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Representatives of 150,000 employes of the building trades, meeting today as the Building Trades Council of New York City, Long Island and Vicinity, "absolutely and unqualifiedly" rejected a proposal of the employers that workers take a cut of 25 to 30 per cent in their wages.

John Halkett, president, pointed out that the unions already had suggested a return to the scale prevailing in 1928 and 1929, which would involve a reduction of about 10 per cent. The scale proposed by the employers, it was said, would put the men back to the level of 1923. The employers proposed that the reduction beecome effective May 1, at the expiration of the present contracts with the unions.

Hitler Reviews 15,000 Troops.

British Trade Balance Is in Favor of America

London, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—An overwhelming balance of trade in favor of the United States was revealed today in the House of Commons by Walter Rungiman, president of the Board of Trade.

In 1931, he said, American merchandise imported into Great Britain totaled more than £100,000,000 and in the same period British exports to the United States were only £25,000,000, including £8,000,000 in reexports.

BLACKS' SEA AND AIR FORCE PUSHED BACK

Hawaii Defenders Retire to Own Sector, but Down 47 Blue Planes.

Honolulu, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Sea and air forces defending Oahu Island were pushed back closer to their bases today as the Blue fleet expeditionary force threw its superior strength against the Black air corps of the Navy in the joint Army and Navy war game.

The Black forces of the Army, before retirement, however, theoretically accounted for 47 Blue aircraft. Figuratively, the Blacks also damaged the aircraft carrier Saratoga and several enemy destroyers. In the mimic warfare the Black forces are defending the Hawaiian Islands against the Blue invaders.

The Blue attackers meanwhile had theoretically shot down 26 Black airplanes, sunk three minecraft and damaged two defending submarines.

Black's Patrol Forced Back.

While suffering more heavily than the defense, the Blue invaders forced back the sea patrol of the Blacks to within 25 miles of the shoreline of Oahu Island, and compelled the Black air force to restrict its activities.

High ranking Army and Navy officers, umpiring the game of war, explained that while the main body of the blue fleet and the 26 transports it was escorting was yet unlocated, developments of air and sea fighting indicated the blue attackers were preparing the way for a nearby base.

The minecraft Gamble, "sunk" by blue destroyers north of Oahu shortly after 7 a. m., joined other "sunken" craft, the destroyer Breese and the minesweeper Tanager, at Pearl Harbor.

Two Destroyers Crippled.

Reports from the sea battle were that the submarines S-21 and S-20, from the Pearl Harbor base, had been battered by blue destroyers and crippled, but not yet ruled out.

Despite thousands of miles of flying, mostly over water, Army airmen suffered only one accident. Caught by a gust of wind, a bombing plane piloted by Lieut. Edgar R. Todd, overturned on an emergency field, without carrying injury. A Navy seaplane also made a forced landing off Wailuku and its crew was rescued by a tug.

Hawaii Attacking Plane Makes Forced Landing

Honolulu, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—A Navy seaplane of the Blue forces attacking Hawaii in war games made a forced landing on the ocean off Wailuku today, Army headquarters announced.

A tug was sent to the scene and rescued the plane's crew uninjured. First reports had said the plane fell.

Wreath Asked for Grave Of Washington's Mother

(Associated Press.)

The clerk of the House of Representatives would be authorized "to purchase a wreath to be placed on the grave of Mary, mother of Washington, at Fredericksburg, Va., on February 22, 1932," under a resolution introduced yesterday by Representative Bland (Democrat), Virginia.

The measure asks an appropriation not to exceed $50, and the appointment of one member from each House, both or either of whom would place the wreath.

Friends Will Put Smith In Massachusetts Race

(Associated Press.)

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, said yesterday friends of Alfred E. Smith are going to run him in the Massachusetts primary of April.

"Gov. Smith's statement," he said, "clearly indicates he is willing to accept the support of his friends in the primary and in the convention. So long as Smith is a receptive candidate the Massachusetts delegation is for him. There is no doubt that Massachusetts is overwhelmingly for Smith."

Moon and Venus Stage Long-Distance Meeting

The Moon and Venus appeared headed for collision last night, but missed it by some 93,760,000 miles. The two planets were in conjunction. When they swing into the same longitude they seem to be headed for each other.

Astronomers have the meetings of the planets figured out for about three years ahead. The moon is about 240,000 miles from the earth, while Venus is approximately 93,000,000 miles away.

Porto Rico's Budget Slashed by Beverley

San Juan, Porto Rico, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Personally presenting a reduced budget for the fiscal year 1932-33, Porto Rico's new governor, James R. Beverley, today laid down a "pay-as-you-go" policy in his first message to the Legislature.

The governor, who only recently succeeded Theodore Roosevelt, jr., who was sent to the Philippines in a similar post, suggested tax revisions lowering income exemptions for single persons from $1,000 to $800 and also a reduction for married persons.

10TH DISTRICT SPLIT IS VOTED IN VIRGINIA

Quick Passage of Compromise Measure Is Surprise to Some Members.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The General Assembly of Virginia today voted to split up the State's Tenth Congressional District between the Sixth and Seventh Districts, and to leave all others undisturbed.

The bill passed represents a compromise between proponents of the Hall-Wright and Early-Watts redistricting bills.

(Associated Press.)

The congressional redistricting bill passed by the Virginia General Assembly yesterday was almost the sole topic of conversation among Virginia members of Congress yesterday, but none had comment to make for publication.

Representatives Tucker, of Lexington, and Fishburne, of Charlottesville, who were thrown into the same district by the plan, indicated they might have something to say later. Both declined to announce now whether they would seek the nomination this year.

Each will have ten counties in the new Seventh District with the population of Fishburne's group slightly greater than Tucker's.

Quick passage of the bill by both branches of the Assembly in one day came as a surprise to at least several of the members, who believed a fight was in prospect over the Early and Wright bills. The compromise bill was substituted for those measures.

Seat in Commons Won By Government Party

South Croyden, England, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The first by-election held since the formation of the present National government today gave the Conservatives (supporting the government) the South Croydon seat in the House of Commons by a greatly reduced majority.

The vote was: H. G. Williams, Conservative, 19,126; R. P. Messel, Labor, 9,189. This gave the government a margin of 9,937, against 30,722 in the last general election.

BIGGS ORDERED HELD IN M'BRIDE SLAYING

Camp Springs Farmer Must Await Grand Jury Quiz Into Old Murder.

Although Leo Hazel, one of the three witnesses against Temple Biggs, does not believe the story of the killing of Barney McBride told by Biggs, the Camp Springs (Md.) farmer was held for the grand jury yesterday at a preliminary hearing in Marlboro.

Hazel thinks "Temple was just talking to hear himself talk," he said yesterday. When telling of the murder of the wealthy Indian oil man, whose body was found in nearby Maryland nearly ten years ago, Biggs did not give him all the details he gave another witness, Hazel added. Biggs is being held as an accessory to murder.

Woman Gives Alleged Details.

The other witness, Mrs. Lily W. Pumphrey, gave the chief evidence against Biggs yesterday. After telling Judge Thomas D. Griffith that Biggs told her of his part in the killing, she said he also warned her not to talk about it. Nearly three years ago, shortly after he told her his story, she said, he told her that he had been arrested by headquarters detectives in Washington, and held for ten days in connection with the case.

Mrs. Pumphrey told further details of the killing, which she says were told to her by Biggs. McBride was part Indian, and his assailants feared him for this reason and struck him from behind, she quoted Biggs as saying.

Habeas Corpus Writ Planned.

J. Frank Parran, attorney for Biggs, argued that the State had failed to show evidence of McBride's death and that a man could not be held as accessory to a crime when the principal had not been caught. After Judge Griffith had announced that Biggs would be held for the grand jury, Mr. Parran said he would file a plea for a writ of habeas corpus to obtain his release on bond.

Edward Smallwood, who lives at the District line, near the Southern Maryland pike, was arrested yesterday morning in connection with the case and is being held for investigation at the Marlboro Jail. Authorities have been informed that Biggs also told Smallwood of the killing, but Smallwood denies this. His arrest followed a series of daily questionings extending over about a week.

Ash Wednesday Services Set.

St. George's Episcopal Church, at Clarendon, will celebrate Ash Wednesday today with Holy Communion this morning at 10:30 o'clock. This evening at 8 o'clock there will be special services conducted by the Rev. C. E. Buck, of Washington. His subject will be, "The Father's Business."

Bids on Nurses' Home Are Ordered Rejected

Because all the recent bids on the construction of a nurses' home at the proposed Children's Tuberculosis Sanitarium exceeded the amount allotted for the project, the District Commissioners yesterday rejected them and instructed the municipal architect to include the specifications in the call for bids on the main building.

Municipal Architect Albert E. Harris told the Commissioners that the lowest bid offered, which was $92,900, exceeded by about $20,000 the allotment. He said that plans are now being modified for the structure.

New York Bank Elects Vanderbilt as Director

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—A strengthening of the alliance between the First National Bank and the railroad interests of the Vanderbilt family was indicated in the election today of Harold S. Vanderbilt as a director of that bank, succeeding the late Lewis Cass Ledyard.

Mr. Vanderbilt, a son of William K. Vanderbilt, is a director of the New York Central Railroad and its many subsidiaries. He was graduated from Harvard in 1907 and from the Harvard Law School in 1910. He saw active service in the World War as an officer of a submarine-chasing unit.

THE DISARMAMENT GAME.

Every nation attending the disarmament conference in Geneva has its own ideas about how the weapons of war should be limited and reduced. The national policies that have been expounded thus far are poles apart. Each government has searched through the whole list of armaments known to man and proposed the abolition of those that are the least useful to itself. If all the suggestions were accepted, the world would be hastily disarmed. But one proposition so completely counteracts another that agreement becomes virtually impossible.

The American policy, as enunciated by Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, does not make a momentous contribution to the Geneva controversy. The disarmed nations, including this country and Germany, had no opportunity to speak until France, the greatest military power of the world, and Great Britain, the greatest naval power, had already laid down their ultimatums. No one questions that the United States and Germany sincerely desire disarmament. But America is disarmed voluntarily, and Germany involuntarily. Hence, they speak with small voices amid the militaristic thunder that issues forth from Paris.

France brought forth the most repulsive possible program so far as the United States is concerned. M. Tardieu asked that all the nations join in contributing soldiers for a League of Nations army. All France knows that there is not the remotest possibility of securing an agreement to that proposition at the Geneva conference.

Great Britain and the United States meet this proposal with a demand for the abolition of submarines, France's chief naval weapon. Abolition of submarines is, of course, out of the question. It is a waste of time to ask France to cut off one of her mailed fists. Nevertheless, this game of one nation striking another in its most vulnerable spot goes on in all seriousness at Geneva. Each delegation is proposing drastic disarmament for all other nations, so that when the clashing viewpoints result in an agreement to disagree it can escape with the least possible responsibility for the outcome.

The viewpoints thus far presented are wholly irreconcilable. Germany has not even accepted the draft convention of the preparatory commission, and along with a number of other countries absolutely refuses to do so. Ten years of discussion for a general disarmament conference has succeeded in emphasizing the diverging viewpoints and in solidifying the policy of each government. Solution of the major problems that confront the delegates at Geneva would be a miracle.

The influence of the United States upon the conference is distinctly limited. In spite of the potential power of this country, its actual military strength is almost nil. Uncle Sam has nothing to trade for disarmament of the European powers. The American Navy is far below treaty strength, and the Army ranks along with that of Germany as a minimum force for the preservation of order and for national defense. Hence, the European powers will maintain their positions with slight regard for the wishes of America. They will decide among themselves whether to disarm or to continue supporting gigantic military machines that lay heavy burdens upon their taxpayers.

One purpose of the fantastical proposals that are being made at Geneva is to allow those nations that are unwilling to disarm to squirm out from under the responsibility for the conference's failure. Efforts will be made to blame the United States because this country will not agree to fight Europe's battles. But the onus of the controversy rests upon Europe. If the American delegation does its part, the militarists of Europe will be forced to recede from their intrenched positions or acknowledge before the world that they have no intention of disarming.

CHINA'S FACTIONS UNITE.

Observers have waited anxiously for some indication as to what effect the Japanese advance would have upon the national government in China. Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, until recently head of the national government, gave no aid in the defense of Manchuria. Whatever military strength China might have mustered would have been dissipated in an attempt to halt the Japanese in the northern provinces, but when an attack is directed against Shanghai the problem is quite different. Now the Chinese are fighting with their backs to the wall. Chinese civilization and national integrity are at stake. In the face of this crisis the Chinese factions are uniting to repulse the common foe.

The national government is functioning temporarily at Honanfu. The political evacuation of Nanking is not to be interpreted as the disintegration of the central government. Chiang Kai-Shek, who resigned in the interests of national harmony, is now back on the job as military leader in charge of the forces of all China. Wang Chin-Wei, Feng Yu-Hsiang, Chang Hsiao-Liang, Yen Hsi-Shan and other famous war lords who have taken a prominent part in China's recent civil strifes have joined in signing a call to arms. Believing that "active, sustained resistance" is the only alternative to humiliation and dismemberment for China, they appeal to the patriotism of all Chinese. Domestic quarrels have all been submerged in the face of what they term "a death struggle with Japan."

This new burst of national feeling will be watched with intense interest. The inability of the Chinese to maintain a stable government of their own has opened the door to Japanese aggression. Will China be able to maintain unity of purpose in this hour of peril? The fate of China may depend upon the answer to that question. Apparently a genuine attempt is being made to consolidate the Chinese, but there are formidable obstacles in the way.

The Chinese forces at Woosung and Shanghai have astonished the world with their capacity for resistance. It is well known that the Chinese make good soldiers when they are well trained and equipped. But China's armies lack the weapons of modern warfare as well as proper safeguards for defense. For example, the defenders of Shanghai have no steel helmets and almost no aircraft to launch against the Japanese bombers. In a desperate fight they are badly handicapped.

Nevertheless, China is a mighty nation and has extensive power of resistance. It may be that Japan's attack will awaken the Chinese to the futility of warring among themselves when a common enemy is ever at their door. If national sentiment spreads throughout the provinces as a result of the Japanese invasion it may be the turning point to a more positive and unified Chinese policy. Regardless of any outcome on the present fields of battle, China has the power to defeat Japan's aggressive tactics in the long run, if the Chinese people will stand together.

HITLER BOGEY GROWS LESS.

Herr Hitler has become less formidable than was feared a few weeks ago. His threats and unsupported claims, couched in glittering generalities, have been repeated so often they no longer arouse apprehension. His battle cry of reparations repudiation has been taken from him by Chancellor Bruening himself.

The refusal of Hitler and his party to consent to parliamentary reelection of President Hindenburg, without holding a general election, was expected to be a death blow to the chancellor, but Bruening still rules, and if elections are held in March it now seems possible that Hindenburg may not seek another term. He is 85 years old, and the rigors of a German electoral campaign, with the prospect of a repetition of the vituperation with which he was assailed before, do not appeal to him.

The sweeping victories of Hitler's Nazis in several elections for members of the Reichstag created something of a panic, and seemed to support Hitler's claims that he would control the Reichstag and enter upon a strong-arm policy by Germany. Analysis of the results of the various elections now shows that the Fascist strength in the coming legislative session probably will be but slightly greater comparatively than it was before. The number of his followers will be increased, but the Nazi gains have been made from the ranks of other Right parties, and the losses of the Social Democrats have gone to the Communist group. The result is that the Nazi strength would have to be trebled in the Reichstag before it could overcome the combined strength of the Left and Center.

WHAT PRICE SILVER?

It is difficult to believe that serious consideration will be given to Senator Wheeler's bill providing for the free coinage of silver at the old Bryan ratio of 16 to 1. Today that would mean the stabilization of the price of silver at $1 an ounce above its market value, an increase of over 300 per cent. Bimetallism in any event as the independent action of the United States would not be undertaken. There is, however, a more general feeling that an international monetary conference might be beneficial. This sentiment has grown because of the low level of commodity prices and the upset in the standards of so many countries following the British suspension of gold redemption.

There is likewise manifest opposition to any molestation of the American gold standard. There must be no tampering with the sound American dollar, the only currency in the world that has always and under all circumstances maintained its full value. That its high gold value becomes something of a handicap in meeting foreign competition from countries that now have cheaper money is evident. Just how much American efficiency and mass production can overcome this handicap is yet to be determined. Undoubtedly there is a decided tendency today to devote greater attention to the expansion of business at home, rather than to spend all effort in recovering in full measure the export percentage lost through the depression.

Manifestly the unfair feature of the situation in which commodity prices have reached such low levels is that all forms of contributions and contractual obligations remain fixed. The borrower, the mortgagor, or the taxpayer, in liquidating his debt, is called upon to pay sometimes two or three times the volume of his product than would have been required when the obligation was made. This is the situation that gives rise to the plan of those who advocate a more elastic monetary standard based upon some measure of average commodity prices, which would expand and contract with those prices, instead of being immovably fixed by gold.

More reasonable advocates of consideration for silver, if agreement can be reached with other nations, Great Britain at least, would stabilize the price at 32 to 1 rather than the old ratio. They point out that that was about the average price of silver during the fifteen-year period before the World War, or approximately 65 cents. Silver, naturally, could be pegged at that price by international agreement much more readily than at twice that value, and many silver advocates believe that 65 cents an ounce is the value best calculated to stimulate the flow of commerce between silver using and gold standard countries.

So many sophistries are advocated, and so many miracles promised in connection with the rehabilitation of silver, that the average person is greatly confused by claims and counterclaims. The prospect of the United States abandoning the gold standard, or in any way debasing its money, is an extremely remote contingency. With nearly half of the world's stock of gold and more than 90 per cent of its business transacted within the borders of the United States, there are few Americans who want to see the gold standard jeopardized in illusory attempts to capture a minor fraction of foreign trade.

It is claimed that the "record-breaking" craze has enveloped the world. We wish some one would break the one our neighbor insists on playing.

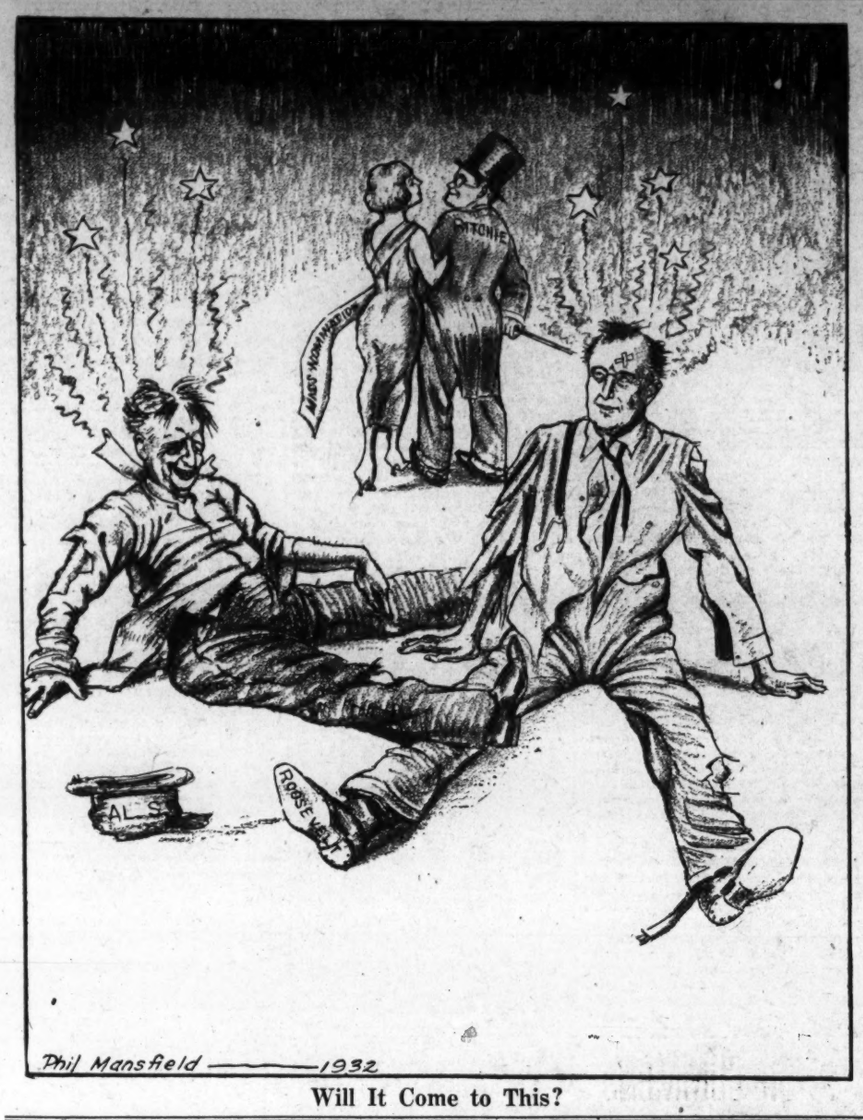
EVERGLADES PARK

From the New York Times.

The proposal of an Everglades National Park in Florida was taken up by the Seventieth Congress, which passed a bill directing the Secretary of the Interior to ascertain whether it would be practicable. In his report on December 3, 1930, Secretary Wilbur stated that "the park, if established under authority of Congress, would measure up to national park standards." The region to be set aside would include the end of the peninsula and several thousands of the keys in Florida Bay. About 25 per cent of the area of 1,300,000 acres is owned by the State. The rest would have to be obtained by gift, purchase or condemnation proceedings. East and west, through the northern part, runs the Tamiami automobile road connecting Miami and the town of Everglades on the Gulf side; and in the extreme southeast is the railroad running down to the keys, together with several towns and settlements. All else is wilderness, some of it never explored. It would become a sanctuary for animal, bird, tree and plant life. Nature lovers and tourists would be admitted to such parts as could be reached by power boats, automobiles and on foot.

A survey in a blimp, an airplane and in boats by Frederick Law Olmsted and William P. Wharton with the aid of guides, hunters and fishermen, was extended to the heart and confines of the Everglades country. They found "an essentially tropical flora, containing an astoundingly large number of genera, notably among broad-leaved evergreen trees and shrubs and among palms." In the north is a fine group of royal palms, already reserved by the State of Florida. Among the larger animals are bear, panther, wildcat and deer; in the waters the manatee and otter; several hundred kinds of fish, and a bird life that includes egrets, sandhill cranes, herons of several species, ibises and wild turkeys. It is believed that flamingoes would return to a sanctuary. The National Park Service, through its director, Horace M. Albright, has urged Congress to authorize it to take over this Everglades region. The auxiliary National Parks Association earnestly recommends it. There could be no other tropical park in the United States. Maintenance, which would be the only cost to the Government, would return to the people increasing dividends in travel, health and inspiration.



Will It Come to This?

POST HASTE.

Col. House finds that the Smith statement clarifies the situation. Yes, just like drops of ink in a glass of water.

The league commission to investigate Manchuria seems destined to arrive after that phase of the Chinese situation has become ancient history.

The dignified Senate can not exactly resort to hazing, but it must think up something befitting the contumelious crime of Huey Long.

If there is anything less appealing to most Americans than membership in a League of Nations it would be membership in a League of Nations with an army.

France has about as much expectation of securing acceptance of her proposal for a league police force as Japan has of approval of international control of Chinese ports. Watch for the alternatives.

Chancellor Bruening's equality demand was a necessary gesture because his important business just now is forestalling Herr Hitler. But wait for Signor Grandi! Mussolini knows that Italy has to say something to get the limelight.

The bimetallists will find it encouraging that Al Smith wants the nomination handed to him on a silver salver.

Col. Knox, who is seeking the slacker dollars, supports our idea: cultivate the great home market and consider export trade as velvet.

It is a disagreeable role to oppose any proposal of help for the unfortunate, but it is simply ignoring human nature not to realize that any distribution of direct Federal aid would immediately result in the loss of many times its value in private effort.

Al says he doesn't choose to run after the nomination. Does he think he can take it in a walk?

Memel, with a population mostly German, an "international city" under the supervision of Lithuania, has now arrested the council president—a sample of the practical politics of the League of Nations.

Senator Norris, an Al Smith Republican, says the Republicans should "nominate Hiram Johnson, Senator Borah, Gov. Pinchot, or some one like that." There is only one more like that—Norris of Nebraska; but the Senator probably never thinks of him.

Bridgers beware! Culbertson thought he could recover from that battle with a trip to Havana, but he's got to go to the hospital.

The statesmen in Congress should make a law to punish the mere politicians among them who insist on ignoring facts and figures in their repetition of misleading and false generalities. PAUL HUDSON.

Giving One Man the Right to Hunt Invites All Others to Buy Guns

By ROBERT QUILLEN

As a general rule, any writer or speaker can win public favor by denouncing injustice. All decent people hate unfairness, if they have no share in it.

But the man who points out the injustice of the income tax wins little sympathy. It is assumed that his interest in the matter is personal, and his plea for justice an effort to save his own purse. And most of his readers, being exempt from the tax, or nearly so, are unable to share his concern over a fancied wrong that does them more good than harm.

But their apparent freedom from harm is only temporary. Unrebuked injustice reaches out in search of new victims. The fire on your neighbor's roof may concern you little, but your indifference invites it to consume your house as well.

The income tax is not injust because it takes toll of incomes. All taxes, direct and indirect, are paid out of income. The unfairness is in the exemption, which enables nine men in ten to evade the tax entirely, and in the graduated rate which makes one man's burden proportionately heavier than another's.

If no incomes were exempt and all were taxed at the same rate, the tax would be as fair as any other.

When the Supreme Court gave its approval to the theory that a man with much should be taxed at a higher rate than a man with little, it established a principle that can be used to destroy initiative and ambition as Bolshevism does.

The first fruit of that principle was the chain store tax. The purpose of the tax was to help the little fellow by penalizing the big fellow.

Having declared the graduated income tax constitutional, the Supreme Court could not consistently do less for the graduated store tax. The principle was the same. If it is right to tax a small income 2 per cent and a great income 40 per cent, it must also be right to tax one store a reasonable sum and double the tax on each additional store.

But that is not the end. Here is a new gold mine for revenue—hungry politicians.

How long before the same principle will be applied to real estate and a great property taxed 80 mills while small ones pay but 10? And how long after that before the owners of great properties will raise rents and prices to even the score?

And do you suppose that tax-hungry, debt-burdened cities will neglect a source of revenue so easily tapped?

When confiscation is made legal, and the crowd approves it, government waste is inevitable. And the humblest citizen must help pay for waste, as he now pays for the waste of war.

Kansas City Star.

There are only two former Speakers of the House of Representatives living. One of them is Frederick H. Gillett, of Massachusetts, and the other is J. Warren Keifer, of Ohio. How many readers of political news would have remembered the latter if asked to name the living former Speakers? Not many, perhaps, for Gen. Keifer is 96. He was Speaker only two years, 1881-83. But he had even greater distinction as an officer in the Civil War, beginning as a major, serving throughout the conflict and achieving the rank of major general of volunteers. In the second year of the war, when he was only 26, he was in command of 10,000 men. He also served in the Spanish-American War.

A few days ago Senator Fess, of Ohio, called attention to the ninety-sixth anniversary of Gen. Keifer's birth, paid tribute to his public service and his character and called on Senator Norris, of Nebraska, a long and intimate friend of the general, to supplement his remarks. Senator Norris recalled Gen. Keifer's services in the Ohio State senate and in Congress, his extraordinary knowledge of national history, recorded and current, his literary attainments, and dwelt especially on his great interest in Shakespeare, resulting in the collection of a large Shakespearean library.

War's On.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Gov. Smith has a tremendous following in his party—a following that will back him with a fervor fired by their admiration of him and their conviction that he is the strongest leader around whom the Democrats could rally this year. That is one reason why the Courier-Journal believes that Mr. Smith's announcement is unfortunate for the Democratic party. For it certainly means a struggle between the Smith forces and the Roosevelt forces which, if it does not result in such a deadlock as that between Smith and McAdoo in 1924, may result not only in the defeat of both Smith and Roosevelt for the nomination, but in leaving the party so factionally embittered as to conduce more to the election of Herbert Hoover than to that of the Democrat on whom the convention finally may unite.

Appealing to the Hoarders.

Kansas City Times.

The effect of President Hoover's appeal to the hoarders to restore their holdings to circulation by making careful investments or depositing them in sound institutions is problematical. The hoarder is actuated by general lack of confidence or he distrusts his capacity to handle his money safely. As a type, he is not very susceptible to reason. Mr. Hoover does not expect his own appeal to produce the desired effect. He would have various State and local public service organizations stress the disservice the hoarders are doing to the country at a time when they would be of real service.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Democrat of the District of Columbia Can't See Victory and Liquor in the Same Bandwagon.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At the present writing it looks to me like Democracy would be hoodooed out of this year's presidential race, and old Jim Booze, as one of your correspondents calls him, will be the rail bird to cast the spell.

I didn't look at it that way a few months ago, but the different brands of Democratic licker talk of late have made me gloomy enough to express that belief. Only a few days ago former Candidate Al Smith, in a radio address, said that "the winning of the 1932 election is possible because of the work done for two and a half years in Washington under the leadership of John J. Raskob."

It makes no difference what they may say, John J.'s is a licker "leadership," and what it amounts to is shown by the licker stand of prominent and not quite so prominent Democrats inside and outside of Congress. Already they have come forward with a hundred and one different schemes to settle the licker question in one way or another, from 4 per cent beer to drinks of an unlimited alcoholic content, in fact.

And now this same wonderful 'Sidewalks-of-New-York" leadership has forced our most likely candidate, Franklin D. Roosevelt, to queer his chances with the statement that the prohibition law has "flooded the country with untaxed and illicit" licker in a presidential year, when discussion of the licker issue gets the soft pedal from all who have the welfare of the United States at heart.

The licker leaders' suggestion of brotherly referendum should fool no one. It just means that the 1932 Democratic platform must have a licker plank at least strong enough to get by as an evidence of good faith in licker territory. It means that in the political shadow of the Empire State Building there is still a foolish bunch, like that of 1928, that the dry Democracy of the South is not too rockribbed to shy at the idea af a wet President in 1932. Just imagine the good Methodist and Baptist dry sisterhood and brethren as they flock to the polls in licker leading strings.

Maybe this gloomy feeling wouldn't be so bad, if I had a vote out somewhere in wet territory, but the long-continued display of licker in politics as seen from Washington, D. C., has at last got me obfuscated.

And so that lets me out. I have not gone back on the idea of personal liberty and local self-government, but I can not get enthusiastic over a Democracy mixed up in liquor when it spells defeat. However, there is little consolation in the thought that President Hoover is in some respects a better Democrat than some Democratic leaders.

DISTRICT DEMOCRAT.

Obstacle to Release of Hoarded Money by Small Depositors and Investors.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: President Hoover's plea to bring out the hoarded dollars will hardly meet with the response it would receive until better protection has been given by the Government through Federal and State banks. The small depositor and investor who puts his life savings in a bank at a low rate of interest, only to see it go up like a smoke cloud, with little or no comeback against those responsible for the bank's failure, will hardly put his money into circulation again, until assured of protection against loss.

This country affords the poorest protection in the world to small depositors and investors. The laboring classes receive only 3 to 4 per cent on their savings, and that small interest is taken away by overtaxation on the invested dollar. Bank failures all over the country, in times of depression, bring untold hardships to the laboring classes and small investors. These small depositors in bank failures may receive from 5 to 25 per cent of their savings back, but in many cases they lose their whole life's savings. Then how can they be blamed for hoarding their money when they have little or no protection against loss? Let Congress throw the strongest safeguards around the small depositor and investor, and they will immediately respond to the President's call.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

JUDAS ISCARIOT.

Judas Iscariot got thinking bitter things
He'd heard much talk of kingships, but what leader with a crown
Would have to beg for shelter when he visited a town?
Of the miracles he'd witnessed he'd begun to have a doubt,
And they'd pay him thirty shekels if he'd point the Master out!

Judas Iscariot grew solemn-faced and white,
Fantastic thoughts of envy kept him wide awake at night.
The Christ was meek and lowly, and he couldn't clearly see
Why Caesar should be worried by this man of Galilee.
If He really is the Saviour, then no harm can come from this.
So for thirty bits of silver he betrayed Him with a kiss!

Judas Iscariot went out alone to die
Upon the ugly patch of ground the silver went to buy.
Some say he hanged himself; some that he was found,
A disemboweled body on that barren bit of ground.
But Judas Iscariot left this great truth behind:
The bitter stuff of jealousy is poison to the mind.

UNPLEDGED SESSION IS URGED BY SHOUSE

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

A Democratic national convention unpledged in advance to any candidate was favored by Jouette Shouse, chairman of the party's executive committee, in a statement last night to the Associated Press.

Asked to outline his position and that of the party headquarters over which he presides, Mr. Shouse denied directly that he, in combination with former Gov. Smith and Chairman John J. Raskob, was seeking to block the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He declared both he and the national headquarters had maintained complete impartiality, and that in advising that delegates be instructed for no candidate his sole desire was to leave the convention free to make its choice in view of conditions at the moment.

Silent on Smith Stand.

Mr. Shouse did not comment on the recent statement of Mr. Smith, which has rekindled discussion whether Mr. Smith and others are attempting to stop Gov. Roosevelt. It was in view of this widespread discussion that the executive committee chairman was asked his real intentions as a party official.

Among other things, he disclosed in his reply that he hopes to retire from party management after the convention, no matter who is nominated, and has no intention of accepting public office.

Mr. Shouse's statement folows in full:

"The influence of Democratic national headquarters has not been thrown and will not be thrown to the candidacy of any of the several distinguished gentlemen whose names have been mentioned in connection with the nomination for President.

Move Called Unwise.

"It would be wholly improper that this should be done. It would be just as unwise to direct that influence for the benefit of the leading candidate as to direct it for the benefit of the candidate who apparently has the least chance of success.

"From time to time articles have appeared in certain newspapers claiming a Smith-Raskob-Shouse combination to block the nomination of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

"At the recent meeting of the national committee in Washington Mr. Raskob called attention to a publication of this character and branded it properly as wholly without foundation. In spite of that fact, charges have emanated from friends of Gov. Roosevelt to the effect that such a combination exists, and I have been requested by the Associated Press to make a statement as to my personal attitude with reference to the Democratic nomination.

Opinion Is Reserved.

"I have not declared and I shall not declare for any candidate. I have placed at the disposal of each of the candidates, present or prospective, all of the information that our national headquarters has. I have talked personally in the frankest possible way with practically all of those whose names have been suggested for the nomination. I shall continue to do so whenever any one of them or the friends of any one of them seek information at my hands.

"I have been consulted by Democrats from all sections of the country as to particular candidacies. I have never advised any man in favor of any individual. I have repeatedly expressed the opinion that from the standpoint of party welfare it was unwise to attempt to foreclose the nomination months in advance of the convention. This has been my attitude with reference to nominations in the past; it is my attitude with reference to nominations this year.

"And because I so felt, where an expression has been sought from me I have not hesitated to voice the belief that it would be wiser, from the standpoint of party and country alike, not to instruct delegates to the convention in favor of any candidate save where such instruction is necessary under the primary laws of some of the States.

Trying Situation Stressed.

"Thoughtful men of all parties realize the trying circumstances which today confront practically every country of the world. In Europe there are persistent rumors of the danger of the downfall of this government or that. In the Far East there is a degree of confusion that carries with it the possible threat of serious war.

"No matter how great his experience or his knowledge, there is no man wise enough to foretell what may be the condition that will prevail at the time the Democratic national convention meets on June 27.

"In all probability that convention will be called upon to nominate the next President of the United States. It should be prepared to act wisely. It should be prepared to do what is best for party and country in the immediate circumstances that confront it. It should be unfettered by promises and instructions. It must try to give to its party the assurances of a winning ticket. It must try to give to its country the promise of wise and qualified administration if it is called upon to assume the burdens of government. For this reason and for this reason alone I have advised that the nomination be not foreclosed. That advice has never been volunteered save when it was sought. It will be given hereafter as heretofore when expression of my opinion is requested.

High-Class Man Urged.

"The only other thought I have endeavored to impress has been the desirability of selecting the highest class of men and women as delegates—a task extremely difficult if not wholly impossible where choice is made solely on the basis of the selfish interest of an individual candidacy.

"The only motive that influences me is the best service that can be rendered to my party and my country. I have no political aspirations. There is no office either elective or appointive that I would accept, nor do I desire, regardless of who may be the nominee or what may be his request, to continue to carry the responsibility of direction of party headquarters. Fortunately I shall be able to turn over to the new committee when selected by the national convention a party organization that functions efficiently and constructively. The knowledge of such service is sufficient reward for the effort expended."

When Washington Was Younger—No. 190

National Photo.

ON the corner of Fifteenth and G streets, where the Albee Building now stands, the famous old Riggs House shown above stood for over half a century, playing a silent part in many important developments, political and otherwise, of Washington.

It, since the hotel was first opened, was a political hotel, and few commercial men ever came to the Riggs House, for in the early days it was too far uptown. The record of this old hotel reads like a story of the comings and goings, the ebbs and flows, of American politics for the last three generations.

Originally it was a sort of Northern headquarters. This was in the '70's. In the '80's the character of the hotel underwent a change, and it became the stopping place of the Western contingent. As the newer hotels came into being and the concentration of wealth in the East became more pronounced the Riggs House lost its distinctively Northern and New England relationships and characteristics. Its clientele became more mixed.

This old place held the distinction of possessing the only billiard room in Washington ever frequented by a President of the United States. Here in the early days of 1881, when he was but newly inaugurated to the Chief Magistracy, came James Abram Garfield, night after night, to play the game with his chums of his new administration. Garfield was much loved at the Riggs House and his untimely end brought sorrow to more than one of the employes of the old billiard room, who had known and loved him first as a comparatively obscure member of Congress and for the short while as President.

Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana, and John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky, were probably the most distinguished guests of this old hotel. The suffragettes, in the old days when they were called simple woman suffragists and before the patronage of the cult became a fashionable fad, made the Riggs House their Washington headquarters.

Note the old-fashioned building on the right, now Keith's Theater. Not much of a traffic problem at that corner then.

MRS. OBEAR'S RITES WILL BE TOMORROW

Funeral Services Arranged for Life-Long Worker for Women's Rights.

Funeral services for Mrs. Legare Hill Bowles Obear, a member of the National Woman's Party and a life-long worker in the women's rights movement, who died Tuesday at her home in the Chastleton Apartments, will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock from the funeral parlors of Joseph Gawler's Sons, 1754 Pennsylvatnia avenue northwest. The Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, rector of All Souls Church, will officiate.

Mrs. Obear was the daughter of the late Col. John Bowles, of Kentucky, and a granddaughter of Joshua Hill, for many years a member of the House of Representatives and the United States Senate from Georgia. She was educated in Shorter and Lucy Cobb College, the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, Mass., and Corcoran Art School here.

Long an advocate of woman suffrage, Mrs. Obear worked for the adoption of the Federal woman suffrage amendment, and during recent years had been active in work to remove legal discriminations against women. She served as international hospitality chairman for the National Woman's Party.

Mrs. Obear was chairman of the Georgia branch of the National Woman's Party and was active in obtaining the passage of the law allowing local women to serve on juries. In 1929 she served as a delegate to the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom Conference at Prague.

JUDGE W. T. ROBERTS DIES AT HOME HERE

Federal Trade Board Official to Be Buried Tomorrow in Georgia.

Judge William T. Roberts, prominently known Georgian and an official of the Federal Trade Commission since 1914, died suddenly yesterday afternoon at his home, 1616 Kilbourne place.

Judge Roberts held various political offices in Georgia prior to his appointment by the late President Wilson as attorney for the old Bureau of Corporations in the Commerce Department, forerunner of the present Federal Trade Commission.

He was a member of both the State Legislature and State Senate of Georgia, later becoming Solicitor General.

Born in Coweta County, December 26, 1858, he established his law office in Douglasville, Ga., at the age of 22. His father, Lieut. Melville Roberts, was killed in Pickett's charge at Gettysburg. In 1886, Judge Roberts married Emma Quillian, whose family is well known in church and educational fields. She died in this city less than a year ago.

Since coming to Washington, Judge Roberts had been a member of the official board of Asbury Memorial Church South.

A short funeral service will be conducted this afternoon from the late residence at 3 o'clock. Funeral services and interment will be in Douglasville, Ga., tomorrow at noon.

BRITISH COMMONS SPURS TARIFF WORK

Anxiety Is Expressed Over Steady Withdrawal of Foreign Capital.

London, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The British government's 10 per cent tariff proposals were helped along by the House of Commons tonight, but two cabinet members voted against the government in an upset of British parliamentary precedent.

Necessary financial resolutions attached to the tariff plan were adopted by a vote of 452 to 76, after which the House adopted another resolution empowering a special tariff commission to impose additional duties.

The grave anxiety felt by those in charge of national finance at the continued movement of capital away from Great Britain previously had been expressed by Walyer Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, in a speech moving adoption of the resolutions.

Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary, and Sir Donald MacLean, president of the board of education, voted against the government. Both are free-trade Liberals, and several of their Liberal supporters, including three holders of ministerial posts, followed them into the opposition voting lobby.

Allowed Under Pact.

Their action, which was thought to be without precedent in British parliamentary history unless immediately followed by the downfall of the government, was under a recent "agreement to differ," by which free-trade ministers in the national government of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald were permitted to vote and speak against tariffs and still retain their cabinet posts.

There naturally was no question of the government's resignation, in view of the cabinet's special arrangement to meet the situation.

"There is a constant drift of capital out of this country and a reduction of deposits here," Mr. Runciman declared in his speech. "Every week French balances are going down in the city of London."

The president of the board of trade said that for the present Britain was able to stand the strain "quite well," but added that "if the pound shows signs of becoming weaker the French and the Americans will continue their withdrawals and will put their capital in what they think is a more secure place where values are less likely to decline."

Confidence Noted.

Mr. Runciman noted as an encouraging factor confidence in the British financial position shown both at home and abroad.

"Half the world has gone off gold, and moreover, gold is so distributed as to be at the service of practically two countries and none other," he said.

"Gold has ceased to function. There also has been the creation of a new national feeling accompanied by a sort of economic nationalism run mad. One of the effects of that nationalism run mad is to destroy a great deal of international trade and it is one of the causes of the embarassment of central Europe at this day.

Praises Proposed Tariff.

The proposed 10 per cent tariff, Mr. Runciman continued, will not lead to reorganization of British industries and "it won't wash clothes either," he added amid laughter, "but we hope it will provide nearly 30,000,000 sterling (normally about $150,000,000) of revenue without doing any undue harm to the country."

The opposing views held by the Liberals on the tariff proposals were expressed later by Gwilym Lloyd George, son of the former prime minister, who said that in the past Britain had led the world, but now it was going to follow wherever other countries chose to take her.

Committeemen Tell Views In Smith Statement Poll

Raskob Replies He Is Neutral; Duffy Says Vermont Group Has Already Indorsed Roosevelt; Gerard Answers Both Have Right to Aspire.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The Louisville Courier-Journal, conducting a poll of Democratic national committeemen, tonight had received replies from all parts of the Nation in response to its requests for opinions of the committeemen concerning Alfred E. Smith's recent statement regarding his candidacy.

John D. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, said: "As national chairman my position on candidates is absolutely neutral." Norman E. Mack, Buffalo, replied he did not want to make a statement "just now." Frank H. Duffy, Rutland, Vt., wired that the Vermont State committee had already indorsed Franklin D. Roosevelt. His telegram made no reference to Smith.

Excerpts from other replies follow:

James W. Gerard, New York, treasurer of the committee: "The enormous popular vote for Gov. Smith more than justifies his attitude. Both Gov. Smith and Gov. Roosevelt have the undoubted right to aspire to the greatest office in the gift of the American people."

Mrs. Florence Gardiner Farley, Wichita, Kans., vice chairman: "It may be that his statement will tend to block the candidacy of Roosevelt and throw some one from the Middle States into the fore. Under any circumstances Gov. Smith owed it (his statement) to the people."

Mrs. John R. Eskridge, Seaford, Del.: "I consider Smith's statement quite fair and that he is wise in announcing that he will not campaign for the nomination or support or oppose other candidates."

John S. Cohen, Atlanta, Ga.: "His name may be used in the East to stir up a little preconvention dissatisfaction and head off a few delegates, but the South and West will nominate Franklin D. Roosevelt and he will be elected."

Horatio J. Abbott, Ann Arbor, Mich.: "Mr. Smith's name is not likely to be presented at the national convention in Chicago. It is my opinion that he is not a candidate."

J. Bruce Kremer, Butte, Mont.: "The announcement of Gov. Smith does not indicate to me an active candidacy for the nomination. • • •

The sentiment throughout the country is strongly for Gov. Roosevelt."

Mrs. Charles G. Ryan, Grand Island, Nebr.: "Nebraska Democrats enthusiastically for Roosevelt and will not be sidetracked by Smith announcement."

S. M. Pickett, Reno, Nev.: "I do not favor nomination of Mr. Smith. (His statement) indicates to me that he intends to leave the matter in the hands of the convention and will vigorously support the nominee."

Robert Jackson, Concord, N. H.: "In New Hampshire we want the candidate who can get the most votes. We respect and admire Smith, but are convinced Gov. Roosevelt will be stronger in November."

Mrs. Dorothy B. Jackson, Concord, N. H.: "Gov. Smith's record is so honorable that we may rely upon him not to permit the use of his name to continue a deadlock."

James H. Moyle, Brooklyn, N. Y.: "A very clear declaration of willingness to serve, if not, in view of the circumstances, a modest expression of a desire to be called to lead the party if the later situation may become complicated."

HOOVER MOVES TO CURTAIL HIS DECORATIVE FUNCTIONS

entire membership at formal afternoon receptions at the Executive Mansion. From this, in particular, Mr. Hoover will ask, for a time, to be excused.

Pointing out that no less than 160 organizations will hold annual conventions in Washington during the next few months—the number has been greatly increased this year by the incidence of the George Washington Bicentennial program—the White House disclosed that "scores of these organizations" already have sought to arrange White House receptions.

"Although the President cannot grant these requests, because of the extraordinary demands upon his time," the formal announcement continued, "he will be glad to receive committees representing these organizations during office hours, so they may present their conclusions or lay before him such recommendations as their organizations have adopted.

"The courtesy of a reception, if extended to one association, should be extended to all associations. Hundreds, and sometimes thousands, of people attend each reception. To greet so many visitors presents a task too great for the President at such a time as this, when official demands occupy his every waking hour."

Increased Demands.

Official tabulations of the calls passing the White House switchboard were cited as evidence of the greatly increased demands upon the President's attention during the last two years.

In 1928, outgoing telephone calls totaled 37,760. In 1929 the number increased to 64,301. The next year the count was 77,055, and in 1931, 99,294. The high record for incoming calls prior to 1929 was registered in 1927 at 115,380. For 1930 this count was 308,270, and for 1931, 317,128.

Only a small portion of these calls, of course, required the immediate personal attention of the President. But the increase in both directions was mentioned as a good barometer of the constantly expanding volume of White House business. The count of White House mail and telegrams indicates about the same upward swing since the summer of 1930.

Increase in Callers.

During recent months President Hoover has seen an average of 22 callers daily at the executive offices, exclusive of groups and delegations calling with petitions and memorials. In addition, he has had several hundred officials, friends and counselors as dinner guests at the White House. The formal winter receptions have added thousands monthly to the list of those with whom the President has experienced the impact of personal contact. With the numerous extraordinary conferences incident to the emergency reconstruction program, plus the normal quota of legislative conferences with leaders of the House and Senate, demands upon the President's time grew insupportable. In the circumstances, curtailment of the social program was viewed as inescapable.

The quaint old custom of free-for-all handshaking at the White House had its beginning in the early days of the Federal Government.

Introduced By Jefferson.

Thomas Jefferson introduced the open door as a gentle rebuke to the "monarchial bearing" of the stern and austere John Adams. Once established, the custom soon became one of the so-called "sacred institutions" of the young and raw American democracy. In war or peace the freedom of the White House was the ultimate symbol of good government and by the time Andrew Jackson's administration was ended the privilege of presenting public questions to the President in person had become a vested right of the man in the street.

Abraham Lincoln found it necessary to abandon this higher distillate of pure democracy during the tumultous days of the Civil War, and during the World War Woodrow Wilson went so far as to close the gates of the White House grounds.

"Welcome" Sign Returned.

President Harding hung out the "welcome" sign once more, in 1921, and in the dear old days of 1928, when General Motors was selling around $354 a share, President Coolidge's nocturne receptions were achieving new attendance records almost every month.

By actual count of the White House police President Coolidge shook hands with more than 1,000,000 citizens between August, 1923, and March 3, 1929.

Soon after his inauguration, President Hoover sought gradually to reduce this encroachment upon his limited office hours, but one fine day in July, 1929, the noontime line numbered 1,834 patrons. The President's right hand was half crippled for three days afterward. That week the custom was abolished.

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—A master musician aided unemployed musicians to the extent of more than $25,000 last night.

New Orleans Mardi Gras Surpasses Recent Carnivals

New Orleans, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Brushing aside the worries of the workaday, New Orleans entertained its population and a vast throng of winter visitors today with one of the most brilliant carnival celebrations of recent years.

Reenacting the ancient pre-Lenten Mardi Gras custom of merrymaking, first observed here more than a hundred years ago, hundreds of thousands jammed the downtown sections masked and costumed in countless variations of imaginative characters to join in street dancing and to hail the glittering parades that swept in dazzling formations along confetti-covered pavements.

Tristram and Isolde sauntered through the shopping district, brushing shoulders with Satan and Cupid and more modern friends from the comic strips, while bands blared on every corner inviting all to dance on the wide business streets, which were given over entirely to pedestrians.

Rex, ruler of the carnival, impersonated by A. B. Freeman, prominent business man, rode into the city at the head of a dazzling procession of floats. Rex was followed by the Druids' king, Caractacus, whose pageant depicted the monsters of continental mythology. Comus later entertained the social register at a dazzling ball in Municipal Auditorium, to which Rex and his queen, Miss Yvonne White, were guests.

Midnight brought a sudden hush to the festivities as the chimes of ancient St. Louis Cathedral rolled out of the Vieux Carre, signaling the arrival of Ash Wednesday and drowning out the laughter of tired pleasure seekers and the last tinkle of clowns' bells.

Mardi Gras Band Parade Is Led by Senator Long

New Orleans, La., Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Senator Huey P. Long turned music master today and threatened to steal the show from Rex, king of the New Orleans Mardi Gras. He sent a rush call to Baton Rouge last night for the 160-piece band of Louisiana State University. The musicmakers arrived in New Orleans this morning and the senator led them through the streets, swinging a baton.

They marched right through the lanes of Mardi Gras merrymakers, the musicians playing stirring tunes and the senator bowing to the crowd. Police tried to stop the band parade at a red traffic light, but Senator Long shouted "stand back! This is the Kingfish." The police stood back and the parade moved forward.

PLANS SAVORY BEEF FOR DINNER.

MY dear Mrs. L., your complaint of your "digestion" is a fairly natural and expected one, but you don't want to attempt to correct it with "soft" and "therefore easily digested foods." On the contrary, after we are turned 40, indeed, frequently before many of us reach those years of discretion, we begin to be "digestion conscious," where theretofore we had not known what became of the stuffs with which we filled our mouths and subsequent inner man. The reason is simple — especially among those who, like you and me, work at indoor jobs and lead a sedentary life. We do not take sufficient exercise in the open air to keep our bodies active in their normal functionings, and laziness sets in. My prescription for you is this: Walk to and from your work. If the distance approximates twenty city blocks each way, it is not too far, except in inclement weather. But walk at least that far each day. Seems strenuous? You will find it difficult the first day or two. After that your whole system will respond in such abundant well being that you couldn't be induced to discontinue your exercise. Eat not "soft" but green foods, less meat than is your custom. In fact, take meat not more than twice a week for the present. Eat fish and eggs for protein, lots of "roughage," such as celery, lettuce, apples, raw carrots, string beans, cabbage, &c.

Jane Corbin INTERPRETS the MODE

Brown moire and tulle make a lovely dinner dress, very tight fitting as to bodice and autrefois as to decolletage. (A Dah-ray design).

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Ah, lovely Vienna! Almost a year ago—was that myself, flying from Paris to the City of Enchantment, flying over Prague, the city with the street of dolls' houses—driving through the huge parks with lilac in sunflecked, lilac-scented air? Stopping for heavenly coffee with its inevitable whipped cream and the huge plate of twisty, assorted and divinely fresh buns at each table. A coffee house on every other corner, a "beergarten" on every road that led away from the city. No, one doesn't drink beer in these inns—one drinks new wine, heady, insidiously so—if one thinks one is drinking a pleasantly flavored cider.

Marie Antoinette, the little redhead, and the last, last Queen of France, was Viennese. Austria gave to France her last queen, and France was, to say the least, unappreciative of the gift. Now Vienna gives to Paris a challenge—a style challenge. And Paris had better look to her laurels!

The least of the Viennese fads might be the partless and ringleted coiffure—the most recent showing of models by the Viennese couturieres. And then, here and there, one hears of or sees the Viennese toe on shoes, an exhibit of Viennese bags, the dancing of the Viennese waltz.

As to styles, Vienna would accentuate all that is feminine! The higher and decidedly accentuated bust, the slender waist below the bust and above the belt, and lovely lingerie touches worth a fortune.

Speaking of fortunes, Vienna offers the cloth of gold dress, eighteen carat gold, my deah, and guaranteed by its creator not to tarnish in 50 years!

• • • •

I humbly offer a discreet dinner dress in brown. There it is designed by myself and sketched for you today—brown, moire body and layer upon layer of brown tulle making the skirt—less 'n' less as the skirt descends. And the decolletage is both discreet and modest—a word, my deahs, that has come back into vogue!

• • • •

What do you think of the latest coiffure? Two sausage curls over the temples, reminiscent of the wigs of Louis XV days. Yours—if you can manage it.

Culbertson on Contract

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

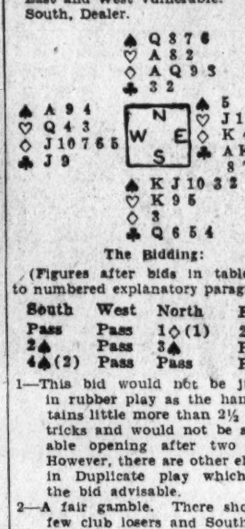
APPLYING BIDDING INFERENCES TO PLAY.

A GOOD Contract player early learns the lesson that he must make use in the play of inferences drawn as to location of honor-tricks adversely held, as disclosed in the bidding. Frequently this information furnishes the only reliable clew to the correct play of the hand, as is shown in the hand below, played by Mr. Charles H. Goren in the Atlantic City Pair Contract Championship.

East and West vulnerable.
South, Dealer.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1◇(1)	2♣
2♠	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♠(2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—This bid would not be justified in rubber play as the hand contains little more than 2½ honor-tricks and would not be a desirable opening after two passes. However, there are other elements in Duplicate play which make the bid advisable.

2—A fair gamble. There should be few club losers and South has a right to expect at least as much strength as North actually holds.

West opened the Knave of clubs, and East won two rounds in that suit and then shifted to hearts, leading the six. This trick was won with Dummy's Ace and a spade returned, which was won by West, who returned a heart, East's Ten forcing South's King. The making of the ambitious contract appeared now to be a simple matter if the trumps were evenly divided, for a heart could be discarded from Dummy on the top club and the two losers in the South hand ruffed with Dummy's remaining trumps. However, when the second lead of trumps disclosed that West had held three trumps originally and East but one, it was necessary to review the bidding. East had bid two clubs vulnerable opposite a passing partner. He has already shown the possession of five clubs, but did not hold the Ace of spades. If his hand did not contain the King of diamonds, his bid would be an invitation to disaster. Mr. Goren, therefore, played the hand upon the assumption that East held the diamond King and thus a perfect squeeze was developed. The low club was led and ruffed with the Queen of trumps in Dummy, the trump returned and overtaken and the top cards remaining in the South hand led to the bitter end. East was forced to discard the top heart or bare his King of diamonds. Quite craftily he descarded down to his lone King, but Mr. Goren refused to take the finesse in the diamond suit. The Ace was played in Dummy and the Queen of diamonds won the game-going trick.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: When your partner makes an Opening one-bid, what is the least number of tricks he is counting on you for?

Answer: Three.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

THIS IS JUST WONDERFUL!

DEAR Frances McDonald: Heartfelt happiness and inner contentment are not easily bared and shared, and do not lend themselves readily to advertising. Unhappiness is and does. And so we hear much from the unhappy wives and little from the happy ones. I am delighted that you have invited the happy wives to share your column and glad of an oppertunity to join those who have responded.

While we were students together 20 years ago, the man who is now my husband, an impetuous boy in the haze that is 19 years, fell violently and reverently in love with me. I was and am a large plain person, without social graces, of average intelligence, but without the average woman's domestic talents and feminine attractions. Yet we have been married fifteen intimate, happy years, and the haze has never lifted. He still treats me as if my company were a privilege. Don't ask me why—I have always wondered. The secret is in him—a capacity for intense love, loyalty and affection not granted to many, I think.

There were years of poverty, the grim months of the war when my husband left me to wear the khaki, coming back to start again at the bottom, working all day for a minimum wage, studying a profession in night schools, there were sicknesses, operations, weary bodies, in-laws, jangling nerves, threadbare clothes, paper soles in our shoes, and there were parents to be supported and all the ups and downs that complicate the lives of the average working people. But life with the man I married has always been a cheerful game, full of fun and adventure.

Happy? What wife wouldn't be happy with a husband whose eyes light with affection when he looks at her, who laughs with her over nothing, who enjoys a quiet evening at home, long walks and picnics in the woods, or a social evening with friends equally well, so long as she is pleased?

Faults? Of course he has them—large, obvious ones—but none that is petty or vicious. I used to get furious with him, just as you can be furious at an overgrown puppy when it barks at the moon during your most pensive mood, chases your pet cat, and romps all over your most cherished treasures with muddy feet. But you can't stay mad at a puppy who meant no harm, and whose eyes plead for forgiveness the instant it realizes it has displeased you. And puppies have a way of growing up into the most understanding and faithful protectors mankind knows.

Believe it or not, my husband has never uttered one word of personal criticism of his wife, and best of all, he lies like a gentleman and calls her beautiful. He is now successful in an honorable profession, and is liked and respected by men. He is well-informed and good company. He works and plays and loves with equal intensity. He is generous and tolerant. He enjoys life. And so does his

THE new Jelleffs

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ROSES.

NOW that the 1932 catalogues are available, we are all making lists of the new plants which we mean to set out when the weather permits. A large percentage of the plants on these lists will be roses. Some gardeners will be setting out their first roses, possibly in their first gardens, and for their benefit I want to explain some of the things they must understand if they are to be successful with these patrician, though rather whimsical, plants.

Roses are particular about soil. They are gross feeders and utterly refuse to live in poor soil. The worst looking clay, after being enriched with manure, will grow roses after the plants are established. While they like a heavy soil, they resent wet feet; therefore be sure to choose a well-drained location for them.

Roses have longer stems, bloom more profusely and are less susceptible to disease and attacks of insects when grown in carefully prepared soil. Always, when preparing a rose plot, dig the soil to the depth of 2 feet. Perhaps I should explain that by digging is meant real excavation, for the soil must be removed. In the bottom of the hole must be placed 5 inches of coarse cinders. This is used to insure proper drainage.

The soil that has been removed must be broken up and enriched with well-decayed manure. It should also be covered with 3 inches of good top soil. Then, aside from the well-rotted manure or compost, it is well to add 1 pound of bonemeal to 8 square yards of soil. Remember, I said in the beginning that roses were gross feeders, so they must have this extra food.

You may purchase either 1-year-old or 2-year-old plants. The former are smaller and cheaper and a bit more troublesome, but when established provide just as many blooms as the older plants.

Two-year-old plants are usually budded on strong roots, and have a decided crook at the surface of the soil, which is a sure sign that they are budded. When roses are budded on wild rose stocks, the tops are thought to grow faster and better than roses which are grown on their natural roots. Budded roses frequently send up suckers, which must be removed whenever detected.

When planting new roses, set them 2 or 3 inches below the mark where they were growing in the nursery rows. Budded roses must have the point of union between the top and the root on which they have been budded, well covered.

(Copyright, 1932.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed stamped envelope is supplied.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

AN AIRPLANE MENACE.

HEALTH officials propose some measures lest airplanes unduly expose people to disease. The proponents of flying tell us that the accident rate per mile flown is low. Our reference is not to fear of accidents. The quick change of air pressure due to rapid change in altitude may do harm to the hearing apparatus or may force infection into the sinuses. The rapid change of temperature as one changes altitude may increase the tendency to colds and pneumonia. However, there is not much medical experience on these diseases in their relations to flying that has found its way into medical literature.

The anxiety of health officials relates to diseases which can be transported by flying machines and fliers. Our precautions against the importation of diseases are based upon slower travel—people who move by trains and boats, and who pass through depots and docks. For a long time steamers sailing Caribbean waters traveled slowly and were five days or more between ports.

Quarantine law required that people coming from infected countries should spend at sea ample time in which to develop any contagious disease with which they might be infected. Officers examined incoming people at quarantine stations for fever and other evidence of developing disease.

Stimulated by Dr. Carl Michel, of the United States Public Health Service, Drs. T. H. D. and J. J. Griffitts, of the same service, examined airplanes to discover whether they carried mosquitoes. They were working in Miami and the airplanes were those in regular mail and passenger service from Porto Rico, Haiti, San Domingo and Cuban cities to Florida cities. They were able to prove by experiments of several kinds, as well as by routine examination of flying ships entering the port, that mosquitoes are carried by airplanes. The company that used mosquito repellant on their machines just as they were starting out was not contributing to the importation of our insect enemies.

This goes toward proving that the danger can be guarded against, so far as concerns commercial machines making scheduled stops at central points. In time there will be many private fliers, with no scheduled stops and passing through no controlled entrances.

After Great Britain had been free from hydrophobia for several years the disease was reintroduced by dogs brought in by private airplanes. Machines leave Porto Rico in the early morning, touch at Haiti, San Domingo and Cuba, and land in Miami by night. A man infected, but not yet sick with such disease such as yellow fever, dengue, plague, cholera, smallpox, or malaria, could fly into Florida from a Central or South American country and be a long distance inland before the incubation period of his disease had passed.

RAYNAUD'S DISEASE.

L. F. writes: What is Raynaud's disease? Is there a cure for it? Or any kind of treatment for relief?

REPLY.

A disease in which the infected finger or other part turns white and cold at times. A form of dry gangrene sometimes ensues. Some with Raynaud's spend the cold season in the far South. Some get benefit from alternate hot and cold bathing. An operation for Raynaud's is being tried.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:40 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:15 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:35 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.

A stormy atmosphere is augured for February 10, bringing vivid emotional experiences. The formation of influential friendships is shown, which may indirectly bring about the fulfillment of some cherished dreams. The influence, in the main, will mostly affect the junior members of the family.

The child born on this February 10 will have a quiet and an unassuming manner which readily makes friends, and which does not antagonize. It will be very patient; if it has a problem to solve, it will want no help. One of its finest qualities will be its everlasting loyalty, and it can be trusted to the limit.

Born on February 10 it is part of your charm that you never say or do the expected, the ordinary. There are many sides to your nature. With some people the serious, sincere, earnest side of your character comes to the front and reason prevails. Other people seem to reach all that is impetuous or unreasoned in your nature and to stir troublous, unknown depths in you—certain undefined trends of recklessness. You have a headstrong, impetuous self, and a calm, tranquil and self-possessed self. You are often dismayed at your own strange, dual-like personality. You can be magnificently inconsistent. You are capable of arguing for and against something, all in the same breath. The ingenuity of the excuses by which you justify yourself are monuments of elaborate sophistry.

You have a very sympathetic nature and you intuitively are always able to grasp the truth about things and to know what others feel and cannot express. In spite of many disappointments, you will always have faith in humanity. Adaptability is an outstanding quality of yours, and it is remarkable how you are able to adjust yourself to your environment and get the most out of it.

You should lead an orderly life and forego overeating as a safeguard against abuse of the heart function. Outdoor exercise is also essential to your health.

Successful people born February 10: Thomas Worthington, Governor of Ohio.

James Davidson, former Governor of Wisconsin.

William C. Noble, sculptor.

Ira Remsen, chemist.

MAN PLACED IN JAIL FOR $6.09 TAX DUES

Special to The Washington Post.

Bedford, Pa., Feb. 9.—Unless there is a truce declared in the battle between Walter Bennett, tax collector of Southampton Township, and Walter Bridges, of Chaneysville, the latter will have a long stay in the county jail here, where he has been a prisoner since January 25 for nonpayment of per-capita taxes. He was jailed because he would not or could not pay taxes amounting to $6.09. Each successive day makes more difficult the job of raising the amount required for his freedom.

According to the father of Bridges, his son has not been working steady and was unable to raise the tax money. The younger Bridges was brought here on a commitment of Tax Collector Bennett and today marked the end of fifteen days in jail in lieu of the payment of the original sum of $6.09.

Bridges' financial troubles continue to mount daily and unless a moratorium of some kind is declared the prisoner is doomed for a long stay. First there comes the item of costs in the case and added to this is the daily sum of 65 cents for "board and keep" at the jail.

A few days ago, Bridges' father came here with the tax money, but was informed the "ante" had been raised above the $10 mark, with the result that he was unable to obtain his son's release. Since that time the total has reached a sum of near $18 with 65 cents to be added daily unless some one comes to the rescue.

The arrest of Bridges is one of the first of the kind in this county for a long time and is attracting unusual interest among taxpayers. The county commissioners say they have no jurisdiction in the matter of granting exoneration, because the delinquent fees represent township taxes. Bridges resides in Southampton Township, near the Maryland line and according to officers, Bridges made a hasty trip across the line in Maryland when the tax collector appeared to make demands for payment.

Capital Men Heard In Mayflower Case

Pittsburgh, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—John L. Smith, receiver for the Mayflower Co. and Mayflower Hotels Corporation, of Washington, D. C., testified today as a Government witness in the trial of five officers of the American Bond & Mortgage Co. charged with misusing the mails.

Mr. Smith's testimony concerned early negotiations by which the bond and mortgage company took over the Mayflower Hotel.

The defendant officers of the New York and Chicago firm are accused of making false representations in the sale of second mortgage bonds of the hotel company. They are William J. Moore, president; Charles B. Moore and Charles C. Moore, vice presidents; Kenneth W. Moore, assistant secretary, and Harold A. Moore, secretary-treasurer.

Other Government witnesses were H. L. Merry, former manager of the hotel, and W. L. Browning, a director of the hotel company. Merry's testimony dealt with management of the hotel. Both are residents of Washington.

About The Showshops

With NELSON B. BELL

LINDA WATKINS, who earlier in the season was one of the most eagerly exploited "baby stars" of the films, admits frankly that she and Hollywood couldn't agree, so she has thrown her motion picture career overboard and hied herself back to Manhattan to stay, according to word from the erudite and informed Mr. Mark Barron, who scans the Broadway scene with a keenly observing eye.

This young, blonde actress, who won fame almost overnight, Mr. Barron points out, gave up a movie contract without a moment's hesitation when she decided that her ideas of stage acting could never be harmonized with the requirements of the talkies.

"I shall never go back to the movies," says Miss Watkins. "Money and fame do not particularly interest me. There is only one thing I want. I want to be a better actress, and I think the stage is the only place where I can be that."

Of course, there is the other side, too. From time to time, emissaries from the Fox East and West Coast offices have dropped the hint at this desk that the reason Miss Watkins' steady flow of publicity had suddenly ceased was that she was not easily amenable to direction and conceived it to be part of the function of a potential star to inform her employers on how to run their business. Jimmie Dunn was invariably cited as a shining example of what may happen to a player who assumes an opposite attitude. Jimmie has gone meteorically up; Miss Watkins, insofar as the cinema is concerned, sank into sudden obscurity shortly after the release of "Sob Sister."

And that's the way it goes.

An open letter to:
Rev. Francis J. Hurney,
Chaplain,
Catholic Actors Guild,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Father Hurney: It is with interest that I have just read your letter published in an afternoon paper, concerning Kate Smith and the genesis of her professional career.

Since you specifically name me in a postcript, I, perhaps, may be pardoned for assuming that I am inferentially, at least, concerned in the entire epistle.

Having shortly before writing this made the same request of Andrew R. Kelly, during a call at his office, I shall be glad to have you point out when and where this department has at any time impugned any statement that you personally played a helpful part in launching Miss Smith's career.

What I DID say was that Kate Smith was never a member of the St. Patrick Players and that it was not through the medium of that organization that she succeeded in gaining Broadway recognition.

I wonder if, like the editor to whom you addressed your letter, you may have failed to read the following paragraph in a morning contemporary, published on Sunday, February 7?

"You of Washington who knew Kate when she was one of the popular 'Saint Pat' Players and Father Francis Hurney was convincing everybody, including Actor-Producer Eddie Dowling, that Kate had stage possibilities, need not be told again that she finally got her chance in Eddie's production, 'Honeymoon Lane.'"

Surely, everyone in Washington with the interest of the theater at heart by now is aware of the influential part you played in the early careers of Helen Hayes, Patricia Bowman, Helen Ault, Marjorie Joesting and the many others who have attained eminence. It is, I believe, a considerable source of pride to the Capital.

May I take the liberty now of quoting from the first paragraph of your letter?

"Though she was never a member of the organization (The St. Patrick Players) it may surprise her (Kate Smith) to know how closely linked with her 'great chance' was that old Player group."

After all, Father Hurney, that is precisely what I said.

Very sincerely yours,
NELSON B. BELL.

P. S.—Please understand that I profess no omniscience in this matter. My only authority for stating that Kate Smith was never a member of the St. Patrick Players was Kate Smith. N. B. B.

Like the husband who is last to learn of his wife's perfidy—or vice versa—or the parent who will not believe anything ill of his offspring, Mr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, D. C., is reluctant to believe that there is dissatisfaction in the ranks of his symphonic ensemble.

Within a few hours of the time when Mr. Kindler phoned me that the implications of a recent paragraph were utterly without foundation, the mails brought additional evidence of a condition of which he seems to be unaware.

If Mr. Kindler will call at this office any afternoon at his convenience, I shall be happy to make known to him, to the degree that I can do so without violating confidences that I respect, something of the substance of the matter and to verify his reputed appraisal of music critics and members of the critical craft in general.

In commemoration of the birthday of George Washington and the opening of the bicentennial celebration, preparations are being made for an overture of some pretension at the Fox Theater. This will take the form of a musico-choreographic prologue that is to be called "Visions of Washington" and is to be presented, as I understand it, throughout the week of February 19.

A special ballet of 12 girls will be employed in this elaborate presentation—all local and now in rehearsal, under the direction of Helene Kearney, formerly in charge of the Fox Theater's free dancing school. Those who have been selected by Miss Kearney are Charline Springsguth, Irma Bradley, Eleanor Giovanetti, Bessie Cush, Margaret Oulahan, Margaret Cush, Betty Russ, Lois Van Wagenen, Rose Pincus, Frances Kane, Charlotte Tycer and Rosie Reitz.

Count them, please, and see if that makes twelve.

The local RKO-Keith Theater is still shooting at the topliners in the vaudeville field. As has already been announced here, among the early billtoppers will be Dorothy Stone and the Pat Rooneys, on the same bill but not in the same act.

The week that Constance Bennett will occupy the screen in "The Lady with a Past," the chief stage attraction will be Gus Van, the character singing comedian, formerly of the team of Van and Schenck.

Manager Hardie Meakin, at the moment, is bending every effort to secure Paul Whiteman and his famous orchestra to maintain the high level of artistry and box-office returns being set this week by Kate Smith.

"I see you often at the theater on first nights," writes A. B. C. D., "and notice that you seldom go out between acts. What's the matter, are you afraid someone will talk you out of your opinion?"

It isn't that. I don't smoke, I don't drink and I don't know any funny "lobby stories."

But, gosh, can I do tatting!

HOROWITZ FEATURES ORCHESTRA CONCERT

Fritz Reiner Also Wins Honor Conducting Philadelphia Symphony Program.

Vladimir Horowitz as piano soloist and Fritz Reiner as conductor with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra made last night's performance of that musical aggregation in Constitution Hall of even greater importance than usual.

The program, too, was full of charm and novelty. The symphony chosen was Prokofieff's "Classic Symphony" with its four enchanting movements, played with grace and vivid interpretation by the orchestra under Herr Reiner's facile baton.

The most unique number of the evening was Strawinsky's suite from "Petrouchka," also with four movements and a piano solo admirably played by Allan Farnham. In this the orchestra proved its prowess in the matter of variety, especially in the more modern schools of musical composition.

After the intermission Tschaikowsky's concerto in B flat minor for piano and orchestra with Vladimir Horowitz at the piano served a dual purpose in acquainting the audience anew with the genius of Horowitz as a pianist and the conductor's power of leadership.

Mr. Horowitz's technical ability, his gift for interpretation and mellow golden tone quality of his playing were added delights to an all-around satisfactory program.

$63,000,000 Will Go For 1932 Dividends

New York Life Insurance Firm Announces Sum for Policyholders.

The New York Life Insurance Co., one of the oldest and largest life insurance companies in the world, and which operates on the mutual plan, has announced that it has set aside for dividends payable to policyholders in 1932 the sum of $63,000,000. Its annual statement for 1931 shows that it paid to living policyholders in that year $156,096,109 in dividends, matured endowments, annuities and surrender values. These payments to living policyholders amounted to about two-thirds of the total of $227,583,935 paid to policyholders and beneficiaries. Death claims paid during the year amounted to $71,487,826.

The company's financial strength is evidenced by the fact that its assets exceed its liabilities by over $119,000,000. Its investments, which must be made as prescribed by law, are chiefly in a widely diversified list of first mortgages on real estate and bonds of the United States, States, counties and cities, railroads, public utilities and industries.

The statement, which has been published in this paper, shows the percentages of each type of investment to the total assets.

Petition Asks Congress To Honor Army Dentist

Resolutions petitioning Congress and the Secretary of War to retire Col. Robert T. Oliver, Dental Corps, U. S. A. with the rank of Brigadier General, thereby recognizing not only Col. Oliver's splendid record as a dentist and a member of the Army Dental Corps, but paying a tribute to the dental profession as a whole, were unanimously adopted last night by the District of Columbia Dental Society, meeting at George Washington University. The resolutions were introduced by Dr. C. Willard Camalier.

Dr. A. E. Rush, chairman of the essay committee, introduced Dr. R. O. Schlosser of Northwestern University, who spoke on "Some Fundamentals in Full Denture Construction." The paper was discussed by Dr. Charles J. Mess of the D. C. society, and Dr. G. W. Gaver, of Baltimore.

H. W. Gibson, president of the Camp Directors Association of America, and author of books on outdoor life, will address members of the Y. M. C. A. at the first membership dinner of the year tomorrow night at 6:15 o'clock at the Central Y. M. C. A. building.

Mr. Gibson will speak on "Cultural Development." He also will address the father and son banquet of the boys' department on Friday night.

There will be a special program of entertainment at the members' dinner, including the Y. M. C. A. Glee Club. Others assisting in the program will include F. Trappe, C. F. Keefer, M. R. Jameson, J. Nelson Anderson and Miss Marjorie G. Davis. Leonard W. DeGast, general secretary, will welcome the guests. The dinner is in charge of a committee including Seymour Goodheart, chairman; Lloyd Weidner, Robert Carrico, G. E. Chapman, Louis B. Nichols, W. K. Gladfelter, W. C. Woodward, Guy Lane and R. E. Myers.

VETERANS ATTACK FEDERATION'S VIEW

Aver Armed Service During Emergencies Should Not Be Bar to Jobs.

Armed service during emergencies must not be considered as a bar to the holding of any position in civil life, Disabled American Veterans of the World War declared in a resolution unanimously adopted at a mass meeting last night in the District Building.

The resolution took issue with the one adopted Saturday night by the Federation of Citizens Associations. The federation resolution, presented by its committee on laws and legislation, was in connection with the reorganization plan for the District Engineer's office.

National Commander E. C. Babcock told the gathering, "Military service may not be the only qualifying experience, but it must not be a bar to responsible civil employment." The resolution, adopted unanimously, will be presented to the State executive committee which meets tonight in the Transportation Building.

John Arthur Shaw, director of the veterans service, U. S. employment service, Department of Labor, told of the work done for disabled veterans.

Others who spoke were Lloyd Wymer, commander of Federal Chapter; W. C. Sorrells, of the Civil Service Commission; Department Commander Henry C. Johnson of New York; Department Commander Lee T. Turner, of Washington; H. B. Lawton, Veterans Administration staff; Charles Edwards, Veterans Administration; Capt. Thomas Kirby, national legislative chairman, D. A. V.; Ralph Chambers, national rehabilitation chairman, D. A. V.; Earl Hendrick, national rehabilitation officer; Ralph Werner, jr., department vice commander.

The veterans stated positively that the Commissioners have maintained a sympathetic attitude toward employment of service men.

SUM PAID OVER HELD FACE VALUE OF NOTE

Court of Appeals Rules That Borrower Need Only Pay Amount Received.

Holding that a note purporting on its face to represent an indebtedness for $10,000 and on which only $9,300 had been actually passed over to the borrower, was in fact a note for only the smaller sum, the District Court of Appeals, in a decision handed down yesterday by Chief Justice George E. Martin affirmed the action of the District Supreme Court in holding that the paper was good, but that the borrower need only repay the sum he had actually obtained.

A suit had been brought against the National Mortgage & Investment Corporation by Henry I. Quinn and Joseph Button, as receivers for the Providence Relief Association to cancel the $10,000 note, which the Mortgage company had purchased from Charles M. Marks.

The higher court held that Marks was an intermediary between the lending company and the borrowing association.

"For the purpose of avoiding the usury statutes an intermediary was employed and the note was made payable to him, whereupon in pursuance of the premeditated plan he professed to sell the note to the actual lender for $9,300 and this sum was paid as the real amount to the actual borrower. Such a transaction is fictitious and is not sustained by the courts. The loan will be considered for $9,300."

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 10, 1932 SPORTS

EASTERN FIVE BEATS TECH FOR SCHOOL TITLE, 41-32

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

WAITE HOYT was the recipient of his unconditional release by the Athletics, but he shouldn't feel hoyt.

Baseball has been kind to Hoyt, who was the boy wonder back in 1919 when he joined the Red Sox fresh from High School and made good as a big league regular. Since then he has cut in on full shares of seven world series. He figured in the series pool with the Yankees against the Giants in 1921, 1922 and 1923; with the Yankees against the Cardinals in 1926; against the Pirates in 1927, and against the Cards again in 1928.

Last year he caught on with the Athletics after being released from the Tigers in time enough to gain a full share of the proceeds of the series games with the St. Louis Club. He took the short end in 1921, 1922 and 1931.

Hoyt always claimed to have figured in the funniest deal in baseball in 1919 before he joined the Red Sox. He was with Newark, which notified him that he had been traded to New Orleans for Outfielder Al Nixon. The only thing funny about the deal was that neither Hoyt nor Nixon reported.

This thing called environment took an awful sock in the brisket in the Olympic skating events in which Irving Jaffee, a Jewish boy from the sidewalks of New York, who learned his skating two flights up in a refrigerated garage led the champions of Norway, Finland, Sweden and the other stars of the lands of ice and snow across the line in both the 10,000 and 5,000 meter races.

Strangler Lewis returns to the scene of his former flop tomorrow night when he wrestles Tiny Roebuck at the Auditorium. Lewis' last appearance in Washington was three years ago and he counted the house on his fingers and toes. Tomorrow, with Washington now ranking as the second best wrestling town in the East, 6,000 of the populace will gaze upon the Strangler's strangle.

Lefty Brown, of the Nats, will be an object of curiosity about the circuit next season. He got a raise.

The recent smashing of the world indoor record for the mile, formerly held by Paavo Nurmi, reminds this department that it was Nurmi who cruelly wiped out four records established by Jimmy Connolly, Georgetown's greatest middle distance runner. Connolly still boasts, however, that none will ever better his world record for two-thirds of a mile. They have discontinued races at that distance.

Connolly's pet trick at the Hilltop was a freak race with his friends. He would bet that he could lie on the flat of his back at the starting line, get up at the gun and beat his rival to the finish of 100 yards, although his opponent was permitted to toe the mark in a regulation start. I saw him do it.

With the National League sticking to the dead ball and Pepper Martin still on the loose, big league managers are now concentrating on catchers who can throw as well as catch.

Nestling in the scrap heap with the bustle and the hoop and the Liberty motor is Benny Leonard's projected comeback. Little has been heard of Benny since his quick knockout of Pal (oh what a pal) Silvers, six months ago.

Dizzy Dean, the Cardinal's loud speaker, already has invited the Rotarians, of Russelville, Ark., to watch him pitch the first game of the 1932 world series. According to Dizzy, the regular National League schedule of 154 games will be just a series of exhibition for the Cardinals.

Baseball makes strange bedfellows. Art Shires will not only be a teammate of Al Spohrer with the Braves but will also be his roommate, thus completely effecting reconciliation between the two. Spohrer was one of Shires' knockout victims in the latter's brief but bombastic boxing career.

Paul Dillon, Ex-G.U.Ace, To Join Howitzer Five

The Howitzer Giants, who start a three-game series Sunday in the Kensington Armory with the Vic's Sport Shop team, have added a good player to their lineup in Paul Dillon, star center with Georgetown University in 1929, 1930 and last year. He will replace Larry Boerner, who was injured in last Sunday's game.

The Giants journey to Frederick tonight to play the Y. M. C. A. team there and will leave from the Kensington Armory at 6:30 o'clock.

Jacobs Wins Fight With Gordon

Gains Decision After Nearly Stopping Philadelphian.

By JACK ESPEY.

THE IMPRESSIVE record and superior experience of Al Gordon, Philadelphia southpaw, meant little to Stumpy Jacobs, Hopewell, Va., flailer, last night at Portner's Arena, and the aggressive Virginia junior welterweight pounded out his second decision victory in as many starts for the Day Nursery Athletic Association.

As in his winning performance against Bobby Burns, of Baltimore, three weeks ago, Jacobs crowded his opponent from bell to bell, relentlessly tossing both fists to head and body and ever seeking a victory by knockout.

Gordon, who has met many of the leading boxers of the game at his weight, was kept busy throughout the eight rounds covering up from Jacob's unceasing fire. He discovered in the first round that Stumpy cared nothing about his reputation, for in this session the Hopewell crowd-pleaser drove him into the ropes three times, swinging with the zest of Babe Ruth out after bonus money.

Near Knockout
In Third

Jacobs came close to his goal in the last ten seconds of the third round when he caught Gordon in the latter's corner of the ring and landed a terrific right to the chin. The blow forced Gordon to pitch forward from the ropes onto Stumpy's shoulders and in this position the Philadelphian heard the sweet sound of the bell. He flopped, badly weakened, into the chair which was hurredly placed under his sagging body by attentive seconds.

Refreshed by cold water and smelling salts during the minute rest period, Gordon returned to the battle extending a right jab which temporarily held Jacobs away, but Stumpy soon resumed his reckless boring-in tactics and for the balance of the route pumped everything he had into Gordon's face and body. The Philadelphia veteran proved smart enough, however, to roll, duck and weave so that he caught many blows glancingly, and in the final round made his best showing of the bout on offense, ripping home numerous stiff blows to Jacobs' midriff.

Slugfest Marks
Semifinal

The crowd of 1,500 liked this and the preceding action, the keynote of which was sock, sock, sock. The greatest session of slugging witnessed at Portner's this season developed in one of the preliminaries between Jesse Belt, 145, of Washington, and Young Perry, 146, of Lawrence, Mass. Referee Charlie Short quite appropriately called it a draw after both boys threw haymkaers—and caught many of them—for four rounds. In the third round Belt twice went down for "eight" before he smashed his foe to the floor for "four," after which Perry again flattened Belt, who was star-gazing when the bell sounded Belt had Perry groggy in the next and final chapter.

The semifinal of 6 rounds resulted in a decision award to Walter Kirkwood, clever Norfolk middleweight, who administered a gory beating to Henry Irving, Washington slugger. Kirkwood, a lighter puncher, was on top of the local boy most of the way and outpunched him 2 to 1. He opened cuts on Irving's face in the fourth and seventh.

In the other bouts, all of 4 rounds, Benny Tillman, 146½, of Hazelton, Pa., outpointed Jack Quigley, 142, Washington, scoring a knockdown; Tommy Horn, 124, Baltimore, decisioned Billy Reed, for the latter's first defeat in professional ranks, and Bob Portna, 124, Naval Air Station, won the nod over Young Groves, 124, Washington.

Londos' Airplane Spin Disposes of Kirilenko

Detroit, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Jim Londos, recognized in most States as heavyweight wrestling champion, threw Matros Kirilenko of Russia in 27 minutes 3 seconds here tonight, using his famous airplane spin with a body pin as the coup de grace. It was a one-fall match.

George Kotsonaros, 198, took the semifinal, defeating Joe Komar, 245, in 19:50 with a series of body slams. Fred Grubmier, 200, won from Bill Middlekauff 208, in 12:05, with a hooked scissor.

J. C. C. TO SCRIMMAGE.

The J. C. C. Big Five will scrimmage with Vic's tonight at 9 o'clock.

Swiss Youth Is Bobsled Leader

Has Best Time for 2 Heats Down Daring Bob Slide.

U. S. 2-Man Sled Is Second, Breaking World Record.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 9 (A. P.). — Reto Capadrutt, slim young Swiss, with the face of a cherub and nerves of steel—the boy they're all afraid of—shot his two-man bob down the tortuous side of Mount Van Hoevenberg twice in world-record time today to distance all but the shrewdest of Yankee opposition in the greatest of all winter Olympic sports.

It was the start of the mad pursuit with death down the rock-studded mountainside the first two heats of the two-man bobsled competition. It took all the ingenuity Hubert Stevens, world record holder and ace of the United States forces, could muster to keep within shouting distance of the brilliant young sophomore from the University of Zurich.

As it was, Stevens salvaged the world record again out of the breath-taking tussle on the towering mountain, finishing the day with a dazzling, bullet-like dash on blow-torch heated runners, through the 25 numbing curves of the snow-crusted ice chute in 2 minutes 4.27 seconds, as compared with his world mark at the start of the day, 2:09.

Young Swiss Ahead
In Total Time

But in total time for the first two heats of the races that will be concluded tomorrow with another pair of runs, total time for the four determining the new Olympic two-man champion, Stevens, as well as the Olympic title defender, Jack Seaton, was forced to trail the sensational young Swiss by a margin wide in bobsledding.

Capadrutt, driving a pure white bob on knife-like runners that cleaved through the snow crust and sent him rocketing down the slide in 2:05:88 for the first heat, and 2:07:21 for the second, stood at the head of the list when the twelve bobs of eight nations had completed the day's runs with a total of 4:13:09. Stevens, despite his brilliant closing dash, past 10,000 howling spectators pleading for him to win back the record, totaled 4 minutes, 17:37 seconds for the two heats, 4:28 seconds back of Capadrutt.

Jack Heaton, an American, who spends most of his time abroad and who picked up a team for the fun of it to win the 1928 Olympic two-man title, had runs of 2:15:02 and 2:07:51 to hold third place with a two-heat total of 4 minutes 22:53 seconds.

Record Broken
Six Times

Although the twelve riders among them bettered the Old World record of 2:09 six times on the slide that sent six Germans to the hospital, two still in serious condition, during four-man practice runs, none but Stevens and Heaton are considered to have a chance to catch Capadrutt tomorrow.

Werner Huth, of Germany, has a total of 4:23:11 in fourth place; Lieut. Papana, of Roumania, 4:23:33 in fifth; Count Rossi de Montelera, Italy, 4:23:55 in sixth; Hans Kilian, Germany, 4:26:35, seventh; Max Houben, Belgium, 4:32:58, eighth; Agostina Lanfranchi, Italy, 4:33:55, ninth; Christian Hansez, Belgium, 4:33:75, tenth; Louis Balsan, France, 4:39:47, eleventh, and Hugo Weinstengel, Austria, 4:45:65 last.

There was only one hockey game on today's Olympic schedule. Canada smothered Poland under a rain of goals to win, 10 to 0, and increased its point total in the Olympic series to 10 points. Canada is undefeated in five games, while Poland is at the bottom of the list with as many defeats and no victory.

Karl Schaefer, from Vienna, Austria, world figure-skating champion, became the Olympic champion tonight, succeeding Gillis Grafstrom, of Sweden, by vote of seven judges of the Olympic competition hours after the free-skating final ended in the indoor arena.

Heated Runners Aid
Stevens

Stevens, if he fails to make up Capadrutt's tremendous advantage tomorrow, well may blame the luck of the draw for his defeat, just as his home-grown Yankee shrewdness may be credited with victory if it comes.

Forced to break trail on his first run and far behind Capadrutt in time, Stevens heated his runners with blow torches before the start of the second and slipped down the slide as though on grease to his new world mark.

With his runners smoking, he covered the distance to the first turn in 29 seconds, by far the fastest time for that stretch, and whistled on down at blinding speed as the crowd roared.

He was chuckling aloud, his frost-caked features cracking in a wide grin as he coasted to a stop.

Tech's Zone Defense Fails to Protect 18 to 13 Lead.

Business Sub's Shot as Gun Is Fired Beats Western.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

FOR the first time in eight years Eastern High grasped the final rung of victory in the high school basket ball series and hoisted itself to undisputed heights yesterday afternoon by defeating Tech High, 41 to 32, before more than 3,500 fans, who bulged the walls of Tech Gym and converted that structure into a thunderous bedlam of noise.

Three Eastern High youths, Al Kane, Bernie Lieb and Al Waters, played incomparable roles in molding their school's victory yesterday over the team that went into the final game abreast of Eastern and a slight favorite. Kane's shooting, Lieb's passing and Waters' defensive play represented the difference between the Eastern of yesterday and the Eastern of January 22, which succumbed to Tech, 26 to 32.

Eastern, forced to share first place in the series last year with Central, led all the way down the undisputed stretch during the second half of yesterday's game. Tech started more quickly, holding an 8-to-2 lead in the first quarters and an 18-to-13 advantages in the latter stages of the first half.

Eastern Takes Lead
On Kane's Shots

Barney Kane's inimitable one-handed shot with the score tied, 22 to 22, midway in the third quarter, cleared the way for Eastern. By the end of the quarter Eastern was out in front by 30 to 25 and was never less than seven points ahead on the way to the end. It was a rather decisive victory in the latter stages, with Eastern almost constantly in possession of the ball and Tech's hurried long shots missing for a change.

The teams started at top speed and throughout played in a manner befitting the championship-deciding fray of the year. Lieb was several inches taller than his man at center, Daly, and secured nearly every tap-off, aided by Bones Courtney or Bernie Phillips, Eastern 6-footers.

Tech opened the game with a furious assault on the Eastern basket, scoring nearly every time it was able to secure the ball. Waverly Wheeler was absolutely infallible early in the game, but was held more at bay in the second half. Everett Russell, playing his same high class floor game, was a lethal force, but not enough to offset the physical advantage Eastern enjoyed in height. Carrol Daly, playing a difficult role in center for Tech, in place of the scholastically delinquent Jim Reed, never quite fitted into the Tech play, although he tried harder than any one on the floor.

Tech Defense
Is Solved

Eastern confounded the Tech zone defense in the latter stages of the game with beautiful cutting and blocking and the runaway Kane. But four telling potshots, arching high over the Tech defense, were not to be overlooked in the final summation of the warp and woof of the victory.

Barney Kane, the in-and-outer of the series, acquitted himself well through the game. He was pretty close to schoolboy heights in every department of the game.

If Eastern's victory were fairly decisive, that can not be said of Business' 35-34 victory over Western in the preliminary. Davey Scher, who has been sitting on the Business bench so long that he knows the splinters by their first names (and who has probably been reading Frank Merriwell) sent Western skidding down to its eighth straight series loss with a totally unbelievable long shot.

Ball in the Air
At Final Gun

Timekeeper Haight was brandishing his revolver in the air, and the fingers in his trigger finger were tightening when Scher, a substitute guard, let fly. The gun went off before the ball had sailed 2 feet from Scher's hands, and while the horrified Western Club looked on, the ball struck the backboard and ducked down through the cords in much less time than it takes to say so.

Western was ahead from the start until it led, 32-26, in the fourth quarter. At this point Anthony Latona went out of the game on personals. And thereby hangs what is known as a tale.

Yesterday's was Eastern's first victory since 1924, when the team was manned by Tommy Hook, Julie Radice, Ralph Bennie, Joe O'Dea and Jack Smith. It was a particularly savory victory for the coach of the team, the veteran and rotund Chief Guyon, who will be removed as basket ball mentor with the opening of the spring term.

It was the final high school series game for several boys who have emblazoned indelible names for themselves in scholastic ranks, notably Everett Russell and Fred Thomas, Tech; Barney Kane and Bernie Lieb, of Eastern, and Anthony Latona, of Western.

2,000 SEE C. U. BOXERS WIN BY 5-2

Phillips of Miami and Stapleton Draw in Feature Bout.

GENTLEMANLY beak busting, as practiced by the undergraduates of Catholic and Miami Universities, was proferred to more than 2,000 fight fans last night at Catholic University Gymnasium, the result being a 5-to-2 victory for the Cardinal leather swingers, who have not accepted the scepter of defeat since 1930.

Catholic University won four bouts, lost one, and held two to draws. The decisions of the judges, Messrs. T. Mills and P. O'Connor, and the referee, Mr. J. Bateman, met with what sounded like unanimous accord, except in the middleweight bout, when Stan Phillips, a big, bronzed young Floridian, was given no better than a draw with the ambitious young C. U. middleweight, Jack Stapleton.

Phillips Rushes
Stapleton

Phillips, who actually made 164 yesterday morning by refraining from eating for almost two days, was 10 pounds heavier when he accomplished a few full knee bends in his corner last night, spat democratically on the ringside patrons, and went out after Stapleton. The C. U. man, whose cruching style made him seem half as large as the Miamian, literally sopped up punishment in the first dround, landing no more than two square blows, compared to a rain of heavily spun fists offered by the visitor.

Stapleton came back a bit in the second round but still retreated before the weight and aggressiveness of Phillips. Toward the end of the round Phillips' long fast began to tell a bit on him, but he finished up the round out in front, when Stapleton injured his right hand in dealing out a blow to Phillips' head.

Third Round is Spectacular

The third round was spectacular. The two boys stood out in the pitiless arc-light and hit each other with everything. Stapleton, almost without the use of his right, held his own and opened up an angry cut near Phillips' eye. The Miamian, growing visibly weaker, could make no headway in his bull-like haymaking rushes, and the bell found them giving all they had. The round saw the hilarious breaking of the amateur ruling which prevents yelling, and despite the pleas of officials the mob howled its appreciation.

The draw announcement brought howls of rage from the Miami bench. The blood-spattered Post score sheet showed Phillips won the first two rounds and called the third a draw.

Danny Pyne, unbeaten in college competition, remained so at the expense of Dick Burnett of Miami, in the light-heavy division. Burnett could not fight his way through a cream-puff door and Pyne dallied with him from the start.

The other bouts were: Flyweight, George Manley (M.) defeated Ruben Miro; bantamweight, Bill Calabrese (C. U.) and Bill Eavenson (M.), drew; featherweight, Harry Di Giacomo (C. U.) defeated Bob Nations; featherweight, Basil Maravelias (C. U.) defeated Fred Simmonette, and lightweight, Frank Stines (C. U.) defeated John De Mikus.

Legion Baseball Finals Given Manchester, N.H.

Indianapolis, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The 1932 championship series in the American Legion's junior baseball program for boys will be played in Manchester, N. H., it was announced today at national headquarters of the legion here.

The tournament will climax a season of nation-wide baseball competition, in which upward of half a million youths under 17 will participate. It will be played August 30, 31 and September 1.

The three-game series will bring together the championship teams of the East and West, which will be selected in sectional competition. The cities and dates for the sectional play have not yet been determined.

The legion series was played last year in Houston, Tex., between teams from Chicago and Columbia, S. C. The Chicago team won the first two games and the championship.

Columbus Ring Ace Two-Fisted Puncher

A double-barreled attack may be carried into the ring Saturday night when Gus Mirman, Columbus University's sensational light heavyweight, squares off for his boxing tiff with Springfield College's 175-pounder at the Strand Theater.

Already possessing a great left hook, Mirman also has been scoring with a sharp right in workouts this week. Noticing this pile driving wallop, Coach Dick O'Connel has encouraged the lad to throw punches with both hands.

Mirman last week surprised both his followers and teammates by easily outclassing Capt. Demedowitz, Washington and Jefferson's vaunted slugger.

3 BIG FIGHTS LISTED FOR PETROLLE

Will Meet Battalino, Canzoneri, Fields in Garden.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (U.P.).—Jimmy Johnston, manager of boxing at Madison Square Garden, rushed to the telephone tonight and gleefully announced that he had "closed" for Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, to fight three 15-round "naturals."

The smashing welter from North Dakota will meet Bat Battalino, former featherweight champion, in mid-March; Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, in April, and Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, in May.

Johnston said all bouts would be staged at the Garden, and the Fields and Canzoneri contests would be title affairs. He said he had completed negotiations tonight with Jack Hurley, Petrolle's manager, and that managers of the three other fighters had accepted the bouts.

Battalino Stripped of Title

Battalino recently was deprived of his crown by the National Boxing Association because of a questionable showing against Freddy Miller at Cincinnati in an advertised "title" bout. When the rugged Hartford Italian and Petrolle step into the ring, Johnston predicted, "an irresistible force will be meeting an immovable object."

Fields recently made a remarkable comeback when he regained his title from Lou Brouillard, of Boston. Experts believe the Los Angeles boxer may lose the bauble again when Petrolle starts hooking into his midriff. The Canzoneri-Petrolle match is expected to furnish plenty of fireworks, but again the Fargo Express will be a favorite because of Tony's recent poor showing against Johnny Jadick at Philadelphia, when Jadick won Canzoneri's synthetic junior-welterweight title.

CARDS VOTE NO DIVIDEND.

St. Louis, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals' board of directors was reelected at the annual business meeting here today. It was decided to declare no dividend at this time, President Sam Breadon explaining it was necessary to build a new $400,000 grand stand for the Columbus Club, a Cardinal farm. Officers elected were Sam Breadon, president; Branch Rickey, vice president; William DeWitt, treasurer and Clarence F. Lloyd, secretary.

Control of Bucs Held By Dreyfuss Family

Pittsburgh, Feb. 9.—For the present at least the family of Barney Dreyfuss will retain the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club, it was learned today.

Bennies Hope to Upset Loyola Five Saturday

Turning in one of its annual basket ball upsets will be the objective of Benjamin Franklin University's basket ball team Saturday night when Baltimore Loyola's tossers are entertained at the new Tech High School gym.

Two years ago the Franklins made an auspicious debut in the local college world by reversing a high powered Gallaudet combine. Last year Catholic University fell victim to the Accountants.

New York Lifts Ban On Schmeling, Jacobs

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission today lifted the suspension of Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion, Joe Jacobs, his manager, and Billy McCarney, Jacob's associate.

The three were suspended over a year ago for failure to go through with a promise they made when Schmeling won a title in a bout with Jack Sharkey that they would give Sharkey a return bout.

Today's action was forecast a week ago when the commission approved a contract for a bout next June between Schmeling and Sharkey.

G. W. Fails to Schedule St. John's Game Here

George Washington University has dropped its plans to stage a feature basket ball game here late in the season, having failed to secure the transfer of its game with St. John's of Brooklyn, which is scheduled to be played on the latter's court on February 26.

The Colonial authorities were especially desirous of bringing the famous St. John's team here, and when it was found that the Brooklyn team would not transfer the contest, it was decided that the balance of the G. W. schedule would be played as originally arranged.

The next opponent on the Colonials' list is Baltimore University which will invade the H street gym Saturday night. Coach Pixlee, since the William and Mary game in which the Colonials were pushed to win by two points for their ninth successive victory, has been warning his players against falling victims to overconfidence.

Sonja Henie, Olympic Queen, Leads Figure Skating Troupe

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 9 (A. P.).—While the bob runners drew all but a handful of the village folk and visitors to the steep sides of Mount Van Hoevenberg today, the women's figure skating champions and contenders of seven nations whirled through the first day of the Olympic competition, bright in vivid costumes, a composite picture of grace and rhythm.

Paced by Sonja Hewie, of Norway, champion of the world, and considered the greatest of all woman skaters, fifteen contenders for her Olympic title traced out the compulsory school figures of the program on the Olympic arena ice through the entire day. Tomorrow night the women close the competition with free skating.

Although there seemed little chance to beat the great Sonja as she whirled about the ice in a tight-fitting dress of brown satin, a string of pearls about her neck and a Norwegian emblem pinned to her dress with a diamond brooch, the perfection of the champion did not appear to bother Fritzi Burger, of Vienna; Maribel Vinson, of the United States; Yvonne De Ligne, of France; Vivi-Ann Hulten, of Sweden, or 12-year-old Megan Taylor, of Great Britain.

Campbell in U. S. for Record Attempt With 8-Year-Old Car

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Forty-eight years old, his hair thinning around the temples but his lust for speed undiminished, Sir Malcolm Campbell is here to risk his neck in an assault on his own land speed record of 245.733 miles an hour, established a year ago on the sands of Daytona Beach, Fla.

The popular Englishman, who has dedicated more than half his life to the conquest of space, arrived today aboard the Berengaria. A brief visit with friends here, and he will be away for Daytona Beach, hopeful of hurtling his Bluebird II down the sands at the greatest speed yet attained on land.

The 8-year-old Bluebird, originally built to travel 180 miles an hour already is in Florida, being groomed by four mechanics who accompanied it from England. It has been slightly revamped since Campbell established the record in it February 5, a year ago. Its nose has been sharpened and its horsepower increased from 1,450 to approximately 1,500.

If weather and beach conditions are ideal, Campbell said today, he may make his record attempt next

Six-Year-Old Up in Last Jump

Beats John F. by Nod With Gray Bird Next Over Finish Line.

Quorum, at 5-2, Wins Feature on Card at Havana.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 9 (A. P.).—Jack Howard, former race rider, saw his 6-year-old Islam score the closest victory of the meeting in the Fort Pierce Claiming Handicap, 1 mile feature, here this afternoon. It was a popular triumph, Islam being favorite at $4.80 for $2. John F. only lost the purse in the last nod and saved the place from Gay Bird by a half length. The time was 1:37 4-5.

Both John F. and the winner suffered bad racing luck. Kurtsinger had John F. in on the rail starting around the bend and then came to the outside entering the stretch. Islam was ridden very close by Gay Bird in the final furlong, Robertson doing the offending on the outside of the favorite.

Full Dress Runs Away Before Start

Auorum Beats Choice in Havana Feature

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Quorum, 4-year-old son of St. James, which once raced for George D. Widener, carried the silks of S. S. Friedlein to a clever victory in the Shrine Purse at Oriental Park today.

With Johnny Gilbert in the saddle, Quorum ran the 6 furlongs in 1:13, easily defeating Mrs. T. Carroll's Bright Spangle, the favorite. Quorum rushed into the lead at the rise of the barrier and, with a safe lead, held off the challenge of Bright Spangle in the stretch. Mrs. Emil Denemark's Easter Boy was third.

The bulk of the financial support went to Bright Spangle with the result that Quorum paid 5 to 2.

Wotan, $29.20, Cops Feature At New Orleans

New Orleans, La., Feb. 9 (U.P.).—Edward Haughton's Wotan, a son of Bunting and War Witch, ridden by Earl Pool, captured the $3,000 added Mardi Gras Handicap at the Fair Grounds today. Playtime was second and Spanish Play third. The race was at a mile and a sixteenth and attracted a field of nine.

A $2 straight mutuel on Wotan paid $29.20. The winning time was $1:46 3-5.

CAMPBELL ARRIVES FOR TRY AT RECORD

Monday, if not then, as soon thereafter as feasible.

"I would rather not predict what speed I will make," he said. "There's such a little difference between success and failure in this game. If everything is exactly right, the beach and the weather, there's a possibility I'll break the present record. All I can say for sure is I intend to get the last ounce of speed out of the old Bluebird."

Although he declined to predict he ever would attain a speed of 300 miles an hour, Campbell foresees a speed of almost twice that for future generations.

"There's absolutely no limit to the speed it is possible to make," he declared. "Every year we are making them faster, discovering means of adding horsepower and cutting down wind resistance. Who knows but what they will be traveling 400, 500 miles an hour one of these days."

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWAGGER STICK, $7.80, $9.00, $4.50; OLD JUDGE, $27.90, $11.60; STRAIT JACKET, $3.00.

SWAGGER STICK broke fast and was lucky in escaping early interference. He had to be hard ridden to stall off OLD JUDGE. Latter, bumped soon after the break, closed with a good burst of speed when he got clear and was gaining on the leader at every stride. STRAIT JACKET hung at end. POSTPONEMENT, a forward factor entire journey. MIKE REYNOLDS, off slowly, was bumped and crowded out of it.

THIRD RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:17. Off at 3:18. Winner, M. Lowenstein's ch. g. (5), by Stefan the Great—Rose Pompon. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:15, 1:40 2-5, 2:05 4-5, 2:31 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FETISH, $8.70, $3.90, out; SILVERY, $3.10, out; BOZO, out.

FETISH went to the front directly after the break and was rated under slight restraint all the way. SILVERY, on inside entire trip, was repeatedly blocked when Studley attempted to go through on inside. BOZO was always a forward factor. SKYWARD tired badly and CABILDO kept bearing out all through home stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:49. Off at 3:50. Winner, O. Blank's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PORT HARLEM, $3.80, $2.80, $2.40; MEMORIES DEAR, $4.10, $3.70; HAZEL GUMBERTS, $5.50.

PORT HARLEM, breaking rapidly, went right to the front and raced under slight restraint until top of home stretch, where she had to be shaken up to stand off a challenge from MEMORIES DEAR. Latter broke a bit slowly and had a lot taken out of her getting to the leaders and weakened after making a bold effort at furlong pole. HAZEL GUMBERTS closed going strong. PRIORESS and MAID OF HONOR tired. Latter was probably short.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,500. Fort Pierce Claiming Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:18. Off at 4:20. Winner, Jack Howard's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ISLAM, $4.80, $3.40, $2.60; JOHN F., $5.70, $3.90; GAY BIRD, $3.40.

ISLAM, slow to find his stride, worked his passage up on the inside rounding the far turn and came through in between JOHN F. and GAY BIRD in stretch run. GAY BIRD was laying against him all last furlong and the winner had to bump his way through. JOHN F. weakened when put to a drive. GAY BIRD raced under slight restraint to stretch turn, made a desperate effort, but hung in final strides. FULL DRESS ran away three furlongs on his way to the post.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:49. Off at 4:49½. Winner, E. J. Holland's b. c. SHIVA hugged the rail all the way. Robertson had him in hand until rounding the far turn, where he shook off opposition and held his field safe remainder of journey. WISE ADVOCATE closed stoutly last furlong. SUN TEATIME was used up following the pace. She was staggering at end to stall off DISCOBOLUS.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:16. Off at 5:19½. Winner, E. B. McAtee's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCARLET BRIGADE, $8.70, $4.10, $3.50; WORKLESS, $13.20, $7.30; MOROCCO, $4.90.

SCARLET BRIGADE was outrun for six furlongs, began to move up steadily after leaving back stretch and closing with a rush on the outside in stretch, took lead and drew far away with little effort. WORKLESS found his stride after entering back stretch, improved his position on outside and, after wearing down the leaders, assumed command when straightened out in middle of track, but was no match for the winner when challenged. MOROCCO was rated in good position, stole through opening on inside entering stretch and closed well. PRETTY PENNY was used up racing STRETCHER into defeat and had little left for main issue. STRETCHER quit after seven furlongs. TYPHOON was always outrun and appeared sore.

—Hialeah Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK, Miami, Fla., Feb. 9.—Six claiming races and an allowance sprint for maiden 3-year-olds make up the program at Hialeah Park tomorrow. Best among the various events is the fifth race, at 6 furlongs, which has an evenly balanced field. SINGLE STAR may have the edge on the field of seven sprinters. She beat a good field, including Sohieha, last week and takes off 8 pounds..

SALISBURY won Monday from Hamilton, and in fast time. He may make it a close finish. TOMBEREAU, a winner over Glenside the other day, also has a good chance. At the weights, SINGLE STAR seems to have a shade the best of it.

FIRST RACE—EL PUMA is overdue. This is the cheapest field in which EL PUMA has ever run, and seems to be confronted by only one formidable rival in SANSARICA, which was third to Fatalist last time out. MAKE SPEED, which followed a good race by a bad one, may make it a close finish.

SECOND RACE—MINT DRIFT, winner last time out from LADY BRACADALE, probably the best of the lot. LADY BRACADALE, by repeating her last race, should again finish second. DUSKY DAME has run well and will be a contender.

THIRD RACE—GIBBY'S CHOICE, making his first start since the Tropical Park session, should win the third. BOSAFABO'S last start showed a good race, and should be the contender. CHATTAHOOCHIE is as good as any of the others, and, on best races, would be dangerous. HIEOVER ran unplaced, but in a much better field, in the race won by Salisbury Monday.

FOURTH RACE—WAR SAINT, which beat Partisan at a mile in 1:39 last out, looks like the winner. PLEASE should land the place from GLENSIDE. It appears that most of the horses in this number have beaten the others at one time or another. GLENSIDE'S last race would make him very dangerous, for he beat Braggadoccio in 1:38 1-5, but he takes up 8 pounds, and this class of horses falter under weight.

SIXTH RACE—BLACK STOCKINGS, after a long rest, is selected. His last start was a month ago at Tropical Park, and he beat Nealon Kay easily. SWEEPMAR started last week and was third to Discobolus in fair time. BLUCH DINEEN has not started since December, but, on Maryland form, should get in the money.

SEVENTH RACE—PARTISAN is best in the finale. In his last start he ran a rattling good second. He takes off 4 pounds. LIONHEARTED is the dangerous opponent, and was third to Tea Cracker in fast time, but it was a short race. PUTTER always has a chance in this kind of field and should, at least, get third.

Takoma-S. S. Five Near County School Title

Holding their foes to no field goals, the basketers of Takoma-Silver Spring High School yesterday defeated Gaithersburg High, 33 to 3 to register their ninth straight victory in the Montgomery County League. The winners as yet have not been defeated in a league game and by virtue of this win virtually clinched the championship. Damascus, with two losses, still may capture the title should Takoma-Silver Spring meet reverses in its next three games, all that remain of the league schedule.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase Girls Win in League

Led by the shooting of Miss Lee at left forward, the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School girls sextet triumphed over the Damascus team yesterday at Damascus, 39-30, taking a step nearer the Montgomery County championship.

The Bethesda team assumed the lead at the start and increased its margin as the game progressed. A victory over Silver Spring in the coming game will clinch the title for Bethesda. On Tuesday the Bethesda girls play at Gaithersburg.

Maj. Ed R. Sapp, of Waycross, Ga., has consumed over 130 pounds of medicine, and he is still taking it. Severely injured and gassed during the World War, he was told that he was 47% dead. Today he is almost well, and a successful business man in his home town because, for over two years, he swallowed every half hour, a dose of powder, followed shortly afterward by a drink of milk. An outside business necessitated his employing a boy to accompany him during business hours with a supply of the powder and milk, and an alarm clock kept him on schedule during the night.

STATE RIVAL FACES MD. U. QUINTET

Washington College, Foe Tonight, Beat Old Line in 1931.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY, which has won nine straight games, meets one of its most respected rivals in basket ball tonight when Washington College, from Chestertown, Md., takes the floor at Ritchie Coliseum at 8 o'clock. Followers of the home quintet are looking for one of the hardest fought battles of the court season hereabouts.

Washington invaded College Park last year to hang a 33-32 defeat on Coach Shipley's array, and Maryland tonight will be acutely mindful of the fact that the Eastern Shore team intends to spring another surprise. Washington would rather gain a decision over Maryland than most any other team on its schedule.

Thus far Maryland has indicated that it is as strong, if not stronger than a year ago when it recovered from the Washington loss and went on to win the Southern Conference championship. Tonight's game has no bearing on the conference race, but Maryland regards it seriously, nevertheless.

Virginia Is Host To C. U. Five

Catholic University's basketers compete against Virginia tonight at Charlottesville in the first of two games they have scheduled in the Old Dominion. Tomorrow night they meet Virginia Poly at Blacksburg.

In both games, the Cardinals expect warm competition, but they face the issue confidently, their spirit boosted considerably by recent victories over Loyola and Bucknell. Coach Cotton's men have been inconsistent this season, first playing like champions, then like novices, and finally again in excellent form.

Mrs. Haynes Bid to Join International Team

Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, Middle Atlantic women's golf champion, yesterday received an invitation to join the group of American women golfers who are to visit Great Britain to compete in the international team matches. The party will sail on the Berengaria on May 4 and return June 10. The itinerary includes all the famous golf courses in Great Britain and France, and affords an opportunity to witness the British open and the British amateur tournaments.

Mrs. Haynes has not yet decided whether she will accept the invitation, especially as she had planned to play in the Southern Women's Golf Association championship at Hot Springs, Ark., on May 30.

Mihills Will Continue As Indian Spring Head

Herbert A. Mihills, who has served during the past three years as president of the Indian Spring Golf Club and who had declined reelection, yesterday agreed to hold the office for another year and his name therefore heads the list of officers for 1932 posted yesterday in the clubhouse. H. P. Brown has been named for vice president, with William M. Smith as treasurer, and H. H. Shinnick as secretary.

Eleven names have been selected for six places on the board of governors, as follows: Dr. George A. Baker, Thomas M. Belshe, C. F. Brookes, J. William Harvey, jr., Frank Kennedy, Dr. George W. Maxfield, D. M. McNeale, Charles F. O'Connell, William H. Pattison, Forrest Thompson and Fred Walen.

SHERWOOD HIGH COPS.

Sherwood High tossers yesterday avenged an early-season defeat at the hands of Mount Rainier High by beating the latter, 19 to 10, on the Sandy Spring court. The winners led all the way.

In a preliminary between girls' teams of the same schools, the Sherwood scored another victory, 29 to 20.

A. A. U. PLAY ATTRACTS GIRLS

Many Sextets Seek Court Crowns

Maude Parker Again to Direct Participation of Girls.

Post Sponsors Play in Senior and Junior Divisions.

MISS MAUDE PARKER, director of girls' activities in the District Playground Office, once more will be at the head of the girls' division of the District A. A. A. basket ball tournament, which, in conjunction with the men's events, will start March 1 at Tech High Gymnasium under the sponsorship of The Washington Post.

Miss Parker has served notably well in this capacity since the tournament was originated in 1926 by The Post. Her recognized aptitude in the handling of girls' athletics has made her a valuable adjunct to the tournament and a definite cog in the success of the women's events.

Two Classes for Women Tossers.

More interest than usual surrounds the women's events this year, which once more will be divided into two classes, girls and senior girls. The girls must be 18 or under.

The field is wide open in both events. The Rockville Girls, champions in the junior division of play last year, are participating in the senior ranks this year. The Eagles, last year's senior champions, are defending their title, but have dropped games this year to both Rockville Sextet and the Hoover Playground Girls.

Entries continue coming in to the sports department of The Post and the office of Charles M. Fyfe, in the Boys' Club, officials stations for amateur registration and entry blanks. Seven District championships are at stake, ranging through 100 pounds, 115, 130, 145 and unlimited men's events, and the two women's classes. The curtain rings down on entries February 23.

TEMPLE all but clinched the District League last night at Lucky Strike by handing to Lucky a 3-to-0 defeat. Temple is out on top by ten games now, and is showing no sign of letting up on the opposition.

At least it did not last night, when it scored games of 578, 642 and 612 to Lucky's 512, 600 and 588. Bird's 412 set, made up of games of 125, 150 and 137, was instrumental in the victory. Weidman, bowling for the first time since December, was the bulwark of the losers, with 96, 142 and 127.

THE best-matched wrestling show to be seen in Washington during the past year, including many of the appearances of Jim Londos, will be staged tomorrow night at the Washington Auditorium with more than a ton of choice rasslers brandishing arms and legs for Matchmaker Joe Turner and something close to 7,000 mat fans.

Ed "Strangler" Lewis, perhaps the greatest name in wrestling, heads the card, meeting Tiny Roebuck, former All-American tackle at Haskell. Roebuck has not been beaten in two months, while Lewis still lays claim to the "world's championship."

Two chronic show stealers, Fred Grobmeier and Fritz Kley, head the preliminaries. Grobmeier will meet John Maxos and Kley will match contortions with Jean Le Doux. Sammy Stein, the New York Jewish football player, takes on Alex Aberg in another preliminary and Matros Kirilenko is slated to open the show at 8:30 by tangling with Alois Kautski.

GAITHERSBURG BODY WINS PLEA FOR ROAD

Montgomery County oBard Agrees to Improvement of Chestnut Street.

Widening and improvement of Chestnut street for one-third of a mile from the Frederick road to Darnestown road was asked by a delegation from Gaithersburg, Md., which appeared before the Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday. Mayor William McBain and E. C. Gartner, president of the Gaithersburg Chamber of Commerce, headed the group.

Mayor McBain told the commissioners that the town probably can pay one-third of the cost of construction. It was pointed out that the road is in bad shape. Commissioner John B. Diamond said that the work will be done as soon as possible, probably in the spring.

The county commissioners directed that a hearing be held on the application of Michael Young, agent for the owner, for rezoning of the site on Conduit road, near Glen Echo, of the Silver Slipper, recently destroyed by fire, from residential to commercial, March 21, at the Bethesda County Building. The application has been disapproved by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The inn was a nonconforming building when the section was zoned residential and can not be rebuilt unless the property is rezoned.

The application for rezoning of property on Bradley boulevard, River road, and Potomac road from residential to commercial, made by Albert G. Hahn, was disapproved by the Park and Planning Commission, but no hearing has been requested.

Lacy Shaw, as president of the board of county commissioners, and Berry E. Clark, as clerk to the board, signed the 50-year bonds which have been advertised for sale for road and school purposes on February 17. The commissioners directed that County Policemen Windsor Poole, of the Bethesda substation, and Paul Watkins, of police headquarters, at Rockville, be granted $5 raises in salary, they having completed two years' service.

The commissioners adopted a resolution permitting the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission to use $20,038.48 which had been placed in the sinking fund for retirement of bonds.

Appropriations Slash Suggested as Tax Curb

If the Prince Georges County Taxpayers Association want lower taxes they should educate the public not to ask for appropriations, County Commissioner Frank Small yesterday told a delegation from the association.

The delegation, consisting of Joseph R. Blandford, Roger I. Manning and John Bowie, appeared before the board of commissioners to ask them for suggested means of cutting taxes. They asked the commissioners for written suggestions, but this was refused on the ground that they had not presented a written request.

The body was found by his son, Harry E. Heffner, near the house where the parent lived. In addition to this son he is survived by two others, Charles and Stephen Heffner, and a daughter, Mrs. William D. Griffith.

ARLINGTON TO MAKE ROAD NAME SURVEY

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With the rapid development of Arlington County, including undeveloped areas being subdivided the board has approved recommendations of County Manager Roy S. Braden for a comprehensive survey preparatory to uniform naming of all streets and highways.

Mr. Braden points out in his recommendation that such a program is vital to the proper development of the county. The present maps of the county show as many as 25 Arlington avenues and streets, he says.

To carry out this program Mr. Braden will call upon the various citizens' associations in the county to select one person in each to form the committee to work with the county manager.

Another recommendation which has the approval of the board is that of providing a comprehensive building code, together with plumbing ordinance and regulations regarding electrical work.

Installation of an automatic signal light at Frazier avenue and the Washington-Richmond highway to facilitate traffic conditions at this point is being considered, it was learned last night.

The Washington-Richmond highway being a State road the matter will be taken up with the State Highway Department, County Manager Braden reports.

County Manager Braden is announced as the principal speaker at the mass meeting being held tonight in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon, under the auspices of the Clarendon Citizens Association.

SUSPENDED PASTOR SUES FOR $100,000

Annapolis Minister Alleges He Was Slandered and Denied Civil Rights.

Baltimore, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The Rev. Dr. Joseph T. Herson, of Annapolis, a suspended pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, turned to the civil courts here today to seek $100,000 damages from each of two ministers of the faith who had preferred charges against him of "imprudent and unministerial conduct."

Dr. Herson, pastor, until last week, of Calvary Church at Annapolis, was suspended by a committee of investigation, meeting for two days in Baltimore to investigate charges brought by the Rev. Dr. Vernon N. Ridgely, superintendent of the West Baltimore district of the Baltimore Conference, and the Rev. J. E. Kemp Horn, a Baltimore Methodist Episcopal minister.

The suits charge libel and slander and Dr. Herson insists he "was denied in many respects, the ordinary rights and privileges accorded by law to even the vilest criminal." The preferring of the charges and the hearing of the committee of investigation, the suit alleges was the result of a scheme of Dr. Ridgely and Mr. Horn to give "such false and malicious statements the greatest publicity."

Dr. Herson's suit against Dr. Ridgely alleges that the imprudent and unministerial conduct implied an attempt to violate the moral law.

ALEXANDRIANS URGE ROAD FUND DIVERSION

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce has adopted a resolution favoring the passage by the Virginia State Legislature of what is known as the Eggleston-Lesner bill, providing for the diversion of funds collected from motor vehicles to the school funds, the amounts appropriated to each county and city to be based on the average daily attendance in the public schools during the previous year.

The matter was presented to the trade body by Dan S. Hollenga, business manager, and created considerable discussion. Those opposing the bill, on the grounds that it would seriously interfere with the present road-building program of the State, included James Bayne, Hannon, Norris, Harry Hammond and A. M. Remschell, while those speaking for the bill included Luther H. Dudley, C. Page Waller, E. Gorman Ridgely and Ward Boswell. A motion to adopt a resolution placing the chamber on record as favoring the adoption of the bill was offered by Mr. Dudley, a previous motion to refer the matter to the public relations committee having been defeated.

The principal reason for favoring the bill was that cities and towns would then receive a portion of the money, while under the present law no part of the money received from motor vehicle licenses or the gasoline tax may be allocated to cities and towns, but must be divided among the counties and the State highway commission for road uses.

Alexandria Lodge of Elks celebrated past exalted rulers' night on Monday night, all chairs being occupied by past exalted rulers, these being Harry F. Kennedy, exalted ruler; Howard D. Carter, esteemed leading knight; Clarence F. Johnson, esteemed loyal knight; H. A. Stewart, esteemed lecturing knight; George Kaus, esquire; Elliott F. Hoffman, secretary; Dr. J. J. Garver, treasurer, and W. E. Moore, chaplain.

It was announced by Exalted Ruler P. A. Kersey that so far there are 82 candidates for the George Washington prosperity class, which will be initiated February 22.

Officers for the year were nominated and will be elected later. Edward J. Fleming is the nominee for exalted ruler, and it is expected he will head the organization for the coming year. P. A. Kersey and E. F. Hoffman were named delegate and alternate, respectively, to the national convention of the order.

What is known as the Alexandria "Opportunity School," which is for adults and the purpose of which is to teach those who have not had the advantage of an education to read and write, was opened Monday night with 31 pupils in attendance. There were 11 whites at Lee School Building, which class is being taught by Miss Eulalie Gardner, and 20 colored in the Parker-Gray School.

The Jefferson School Unit of the Alexandria Parent-Teacher Association will meet at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon, in Jefferson School.

Judge William P. Woolls, of the Alexandria Corporation Court, has named W. Milton Glasgow and J. Owen Lynch as jury commissioners. These commissioners will select the names of 300 Alexandria citizens who will serve on juries, beginning with the March term of court.

Schafer Trustee Of Bowie School

Prince Georges County Taxpayers Appear to Ask Expense Cut.

Millard N. Schafer yesterday was appointed a trustee of the Bowie, Md., school at the regular meeting of the Prince Georges County School Board. He takes the place of Albert Gantt, who resigned without giving any reason, according to Superintendent Nicholas Orem.

A committee from the Taxpayers Association of the county also appeared before the board, asking that they suggest means of cutting the expenses of the school system. Mr. Orem agreed to answer any questions about school management if they were put to him in writing. The committee consisted of Joseph R. Blandford, Roger I. Manning and John Bowie.

The trustees of the Camp Springs School asked that electric lights be installed in this institution and two other schools nearby, but the request was refused for lack of funds. The Federation of Colored Parent-Teacher Associations, through a delegation, asked that bus transportation be provided for the colored high school pupils in the county. This request was filed.

Deer Are Roaming In Fairfax County

But Animals, Escaped From Mount Vernon, Are "State Wards."

For the first time in many years deer are roaming through the wilds of Fairfax County, Va. But nimrods had better not take a shot at them, they are "State wards."

Some weeks ago 14 deer escaped from the Mount Vernon Estate, where they had been kept in captivity for many years. The Mount Vernon Ladies Association, which controls the historic estate, immediately appealed to the State Inland Game and Fisheries Commission to assume control over their charges but did not request that the deer be returned.

Fairfax has no open season for deer and the secretary of the commission notified State Game Warden A. B. Carter, of Burke, that he will be expected to protect the deer and to strictly enforce the $50 penalty against any one killing a deer. In some sections of the State bucks may be killed during the hunting season but the does are protected at all times. Warden Carter yesterday stated that "Woe betide any one caught eating venison in Fairfax County."

STOCK PRICES DROP TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Rails and Utilities Hold Above Bottom Mark in General Decline.

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).The last trace of the January rally all but faded from the stock market today. It was a very dull session, thus adhering to the pattern followed in recent sessions, but the snail-paced decline was sufficient to send Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite to the new bear market low of 59.8, two-thirds of a point under the January 5 minimum.

Railroad and utility groups held above the old lows. Industrials, however, went through the resistance level established slightly more than a month ago, when Wall street was hoping that the first quarter of 1932 would bring much greater improvement in pivotal industries than has appeared. Many net losses were fractional. In few cases did they exceed a point.

Sagging commodity prices, plus the fact that no news of an invigorating character intervened to check the downturn, contributed to the sag which had behind it the momentum of a week's reaction. New estimates of the additional revenue required to meet Government needs may have deepened the shadows somewhat, although the cloud layer was pierced by the more or less cheering ray of market dullness. Transactions totaled only 1,156,221 shares.

Dividend Is Omitted.

Illinois Central omitted its $3 semiannual preferred dividend, a step which had been forecast. The stock, notwithstanding, broke 4 points. Numerous miscellaneous issues which had been tottering on the brink of new lows tumbled over, among them New York Central. However, losses in the rails were generally small.

U. S. Steel with an unfilled tonnage statement coming tomorrow, refused to exert itself, either during a spell of desultory short covering in the forenoon or during the subsequent decline. It closed 1¼ lower. American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Du Pont, Case, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Santa Fe and Allied Chemical closed 1 to 1⅝ off.

Bethlehem, General Electric, American Can, North American and Westinghouse gave up fractions. American Tobacco "B" and National Biscuit firmed. Auburn's break below 100 for a net loss of 8¾ was one of the day's few high spots. A few large blocks of General Motors changed hands in the afternoon.

Short Confidence Wavers.

Chart theorists could interpret bearishly the violation of the old lows, but brokers were disinclined to place too much importance on this development. Neither volume for the market's range has been noteworthy during the current phase of the bear market, and operators on the short side, many of whom are classed as amateurs, have appeared none too confident.

Some commission houses pointed out that the functioning of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had doubtless encouraged large security holders and dammed up potential sources of liquidation. It was admitted, however, that the outlook for stimulating news was rather negative.

Movement of revenue freight is uncomfortably small and should the trend continue unfavorable there would be a question as to whether the railroads could retain the benefits they received from the wage cut. Loading in the week ended January 30 totaled 561,157 cars, a decline of 1,781 cars.

One bankers' acceptance dealer increased the yield on 90-day bills, but others did not meet the change.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—All grains showed a decided downward trend today, largely as a result of New York stock market setbacks.

Adding to pressure on wheat was a report from the United States Department of Agriculture showing that domestic disappearance of that grain for the 1931-32 season was 14,000,000 bushels smaller than the previous season, indicating that feed use of wheat had been greaty overestimated by most traders. A continuing bearish factor was Government figures pointing to almost a billion bushels of wheat available for shipment or carryover in the four principal export countries previous to the end of the present crop year, June 30 next.

Wheat closed nervous, ⅛ to ⅞ under yesterday's finish, corn ½ to ¾ down, oats ¼ to ⅝ off, and provisions showing 2 to 10 cents decline.

Final prices on wheat were at almost the day's low point. The fact that houses identified with Farm Board agencies were offering the future delivery at around 57¾ did much to undermine the confidence of holders. Scattered liquidating sales developed early, and despite a transient rally at one time, remained in evidence from start to finish, especially during the last hour, when a fresh increase of 374,000 bushels in world stocks of wheat was announced.

Bearish action of wheat here was in the face of firmness of the market at Liverpool, where a substantial decrease of British port supplies had a strengthening effect. Chicago prices were lower, despite Winnipeg advices of better export demand, with overseas purchases of about 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian-grown wheat. Otherwise, Southern Hemisphere shippers apparently monopolized the world export trade for the time being. A forecast of colden weather in Kansas and Nebraska failed to act as an offset.

Corn and oats receded with wheat. Persistent slowness of shipping demand for corn was a handicap to bulls.

Provisions went to new low-price records for the season. Jackets and cash interests were sellers.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May, 56¼-⅜, 57¾; July, 57⅛-¼, 58¼-⅜; September, 58½-⅝, 59⅝-¾. Corn—May, 37½-⅝, 38¼-⅜; July, 39⅝, 40⅜-½.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS.

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Dow, Jones & Co. said today that Consolidated Gas Co. of New York would report for 1931 a balance available for the common stock of approximately $56,700,000, equal to $4.96 a share on the junior issue. This compares with $58,017,622 or $5.06 a common share in 1930. The stock is on a $4 dividend basis.

During the first three quarters of 1931 it was indicated that the big utility's net earnings for the year would equal if not exceed those of 1930, but later results were said to have been under expectations, partly because of unseasonal weather.

Best & Co. today reported a net profit for the year ended January 31 of $926,646, equivalent to $3.02 a share, compared with $1,265,438 in the preceding year, equal to $4.15 a share. The company states that the balance sheet shows an improved financial condition with no bank loans and with current assets six times in excess of current liabilities.

For the year ended December 31 the Allegheny Steel Co. reports net profit of $50,228, equivalent to $1.50 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock compared with $1,610,292 in 1930 or $2.25 a share on the common stock.

Net profits of $465,716 or $1.21 a share for the nine months ended December 31 were reported today by the Bulova Watch Co. For the final 1931 quarter net profit was $102,854, equivalent to 21 cents a share, contrasted with $152,964 or 40 cents a share in the 1930 quarter.

The Illinois Central Railroad Co. has decided to suspend dividend payments on the preferred stock series "A" the company announced today.

The dividend omitted today was the $3 semiannual payment. Dividends were paid regularly at the $6 rate since the creation of the preferred stock in 1922.

Today's action of directors eliminates both the senior and junior stocks of Illinois Central from the dividend paying list of rails. The company voted to suspend dividends on the common stock in October, 1931.

Philadelphia, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The Norfolk & Western Railroad Co. today declared the usual quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share on the common stock. It is payable March 19 to stockholders of record February 29.

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The Bulova Watch Co. omitted the quarterly dividend of 87½ cents on the preferred stock due for payment on March 1, it was announced today.

The General Asphalt Co. today declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents, payable March 15 to stock of record March 1. In the two preceding quarters the company paid 50 cents.

Cleveland, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—Directors of the Texas & Pacific Railroad today declared the quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent on the preferred stock, payable March 31 to stockholders as of record March 17.

The board of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad declared interest on 5 per cent noncumulative income bonds at the rate of 2½ per cent covering the six-month period ended December 31 and payable April 1.

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The Commercial Credit Co. today reported net income of $3,778,406 for 1931, equivalent to $1.73 a share, compared with $4,316,000, or $2.03 a share in 1930.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—After holding fairly steady during the greater part of the day, cotton turned easier in the late trading which seemed to be inspired by the easier tone of the grain and stock market.

May contracts after selling off from 6.79 to 6.75 early, rallied to 6.77 and closed at 6.75, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 4 to 7 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 point on March, but generally 1 to 6 points lower in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. There was some trade buying of near months, and brokers who sometimes act for Japanese interests were again credited with buying March. Contracts were supplied by Southern selling and scattering liquidation.

Houses with Liverpool and continental connections were among the buyers on the decline, which seemed also to attract a little more trading buying generally in small lots.

Later offerings increased and while the trade continued to buy on the dips, prices eased off slightly in the late trading. March closed at 6.55 and October at 7.11 or at approximately the lowest prices of the day.

Much of the day's business represented further evening-up in the near months, mostly in the way of switching from March and May to later deliveries. These operations were accomplished without much change in the differences, and at the close March was 56 points under October compared with 58 points at the close of the previous day.

Liverpool cables reported hedging and Bombay liquidation with a poor off-take in that market, and said business in cotton cloths was restricted with buyers cautious. Exports today 40,025 making 5,317,350 so far this season. Port receipts, 45,854. U. S. port stocks, 4,832,539.

BOND SALES LEAVE MARKET UNCHANGED

Federal Issues' Turnover Results in Both Gains and Declines.

New York, Feb. 9 (A.P.).—The bond market steadied today, but was unable to maintain early improvement. Volume expanded considerably, much of the increased business coming in the earlier hours, when prices were firmer. Sales amounted to $10,367,000 principal amount. The averages closed unchanged.

Substantial turnovers in several United States Governments, notably the Liberty first 4¼s, attracted attention. The group tended to rally until afternoon, when news that the Treasury would need more money than had been anticipated suggested the possibility of new security financing. Final changes in the group were mixed.

Rails were somewhat unsettled, although many of the larger losses were in second-grade and speculative issues which again encountered a thin market. Miscellaneous heavy spots included Baltimore & Ohio refunding 6s, down 5¼; Boston & Maine 5s of 1967, off 2⅛; Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s, off 2 to 3 points; Rock Island general 4s, with a loss of nearly 4, and some Missouri Pacifics. Omission of the Illinois Central preferred dividend brought out offerings of that road's refunding 4s, which lost 2¼. Nickel Plates firmed moderately. Texas & Pacific B 5s dropped 5 points to a new low.

Industrials and utilities were mixed. Columbia Gas May 5s reacted 1¾ net, and one sale of Fisk Rubber 8s sent the price 3 points lower. Goodyear 5s, on the other hand, improved, together with International Telephone 5s, Utah Light & Traction 5s and Utah Power 5s. Shell Union Oil bonds were heavy. Western Union 5s of 1960 made a new low, off 2 points. Pacific Telephone 5s dipped under par, also to a new minimum.

Foreigns traded quietly. Issues of Japan and New South Wales were rather active and made higher levels. German Government 7s reacted 1½.

LEADERS AID PLANS OF MORRIS BANKERS

Experienced Financial Men, Outside of Organization, to Address Convention.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

As is customary with Morris Plan conventions, this year's national convention of the Morris Plan Bankers Association to be held in this city in October, will be characterized by speeches by persons of national prominence, outside of the association. Many of the sessions of the convention will be devoted to matters of particular interest to executives of Morris Plan Banks, but there will also be provided various features of entertainment for the delegates and their wives and guests, in this case, doubtless, comprising a boat trip to Mount Vernon and possibly to Wakefield, or some other excursions to the many points of interest in the vicinity of Washington.

The Morris Plan system of industrial banking was founded by Arthur J. Morris in 1910 when he organized the Morris Plan Bank of Norfolk, Va. Mr. Morris originated the idea of the Morris Plan when he was a student at the University of Virginia. Since that time there have been organized Morris Plan Banks in more than 108 cities, many of which have branches either in the same city or in various cities of the same State.

There are the Morris Plan Bank of Virginia, of which Thomas C. Boushall is president, and Philip Woollcott, senior vice president, with branches in a number of cities in Virginia; the Morris Plan Bank of Providence, R. I., of which Theodore Francis Green is president and Howard E. Gladding, secretary, with branches in that State, and the New York Morris Plan Co., having ten branches in the City of New York. The founder of the Morris Plan no doubt will be one of the guests of honor and perhaps may be persuaded to talk on the inception of these institutions, which have done such outstanding service in their specialized field of banking.

Loans Since 1910.

Morris Plan institutions since their inception in 1910 have made loans to more than 7,000,000 persons in an aggregate amount of more than $1,500,000,000. These institutions have done a constructive service which is appreciated not only by the millions of people whom they have served, but by thinking people in all walks of life.

Commenting on the award to his office of the president of the company's trophy for business gains in the central division contest, P. D. Sleeper, general agent, Washington agency group of Aetna Life Insurance Co., had the following to say yesterday:

"I believe the fact that the Washington agency has been given this award in competition with a great many other agencies in a large important national organization will be of general interest as news, and as an offset in Washington toward a great deal of 'depression talk.' The fact that life insurance is generally sold to many people in different lines of business indicates that much of the depression around Washington is simply 'talk' and not borne out by the actual situation. In addition, the fact that in the Aetna Washington office the average policy sold in 1931 exceeded $10,000 per policy is a further indication that the public in general is becoming more and more interested in life insuranc for protection and investment.

Washington Pleases Luther.

In announcing the award to General Agent Sleeper, Vice President Kendrick A. Luther, of the company, states: "The writing of this letter gives me a good deal of pleasure. The company's selection for the award of the president's trophy in the central division of our national organization has been made and Washington is the choice for outstanding accomplishment during 1931.

"For your information, in making these awards, the following requirements were taken into consideration: Per cent of increase in new business; per cent of business from all-time organization; per cent of business from new organization (under contract for less than two years); average premium per thousand for 1931; per cent of gain or loss business in force; per cent new business from old policyholders; actual gain or loss of regionnaires.

In sending the trophy along to you as soon as it is ready, I am confident that this merited honor will act as a stimulus to you and your associates throughout the territory you control in 1932. My very best wishes to you and the Aetna-izers who by their work have made this selection possible."

New "Section" Introduced.

For the first time in railroad operation, a new "private section" Pullman sleeping car is in use on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The innovation provides space between the berth and the curtain so that the occupant can stand erect while undressing. Curtains may be drawn to give privacy in the day time also, if desired.

Each section has individual heating and ventilating, lavatory, clothes hangers, thermos bottle and electric fan. Smoking is permitted. There are four of these private sections and ten regular sections in the car. Seats in all sections are adjustable. The Capitol Limiteds of the Baltimore & Ohio, between Washington and Chicago, have these new cars.

25 Years Ago Today

FEBRUARY 10, 1907.

Thomas Alva Edison, the inventor, celebrated his fifty-ninth birthday and said that he was through with serious work and would devote the rest of his life "to playing with electricity."

The relations between Haiti and Germany have become so strained over matters of international finance that it is feared that there may be an outbreak in Port au Prince against the foreigners.

THE DICTATOR AND THE DIET.

("Mussolini Condemns Dieting by Women; Orders Fad Stopped"—Headline.)

GIRLS, you'd better do some eating—
Life is short and time is fleeting;
Help yourself to bread and butter—
Let the dietitians sputter!
Eat your fill of mashed potatoes,
And go easy on tomatoes!
What your views are does not matter—
Mussolini likes you fatter!

II.

Sugar up your coffee plenty—
Six or eight lumps, maybe twenty!
Take a lot of salad dressing,
Though your figure be distressing!
Cereals are fine and dandy—
Likewise griddle cakes and candy;
All about you let the fat play—
Mussolini likes you that way!

III.

All reducing is exhausting—
Take some layer cake and frosting!
Help yourself to stacks of wheat cakes
And a lot of sausage meat cakes;
Have some syrup and molasses,
Cherry pies and apple "sasses!"
Guide your diet by this token—
Mussolini, he has spoken!

IV.

MADAM, cut out this reducing—
Let the calories go cruising!
Never mind about your figure—
Let your waist and arms get bigger!
Have some pork and beans for dinner—
Nothing's gained by getting thinner;
Let the starches boss and rule you—
Mussolini wouldn't fool you!

V.

Take some ice cream when you like it——
Have some ham where'er you strike it!
Of rich sauces don't be chary—
Always eat what you can carry!
After dinner drink some sherry—
Eat and drink until you're merry!
Act like any summer boarder—
It's a Mussolini order

VI.

Duckling's nice with lots of gravy—
It will make your figure wavy;
Lots of toast and butter, girly,
Makes a figure big and burly;
When there's turkey, take some stuffin'—
Never miss the red-hot muffin!
Though your figure will be blighted,
Mussolini'll be delighted.

VII.

LOTS of milk consume each morning—
Never mind the faddist's warning!
Ban those dainty salad lunches—
When you're eating, pull no punches!
Worry not of chins excessive—
Rolls of fat are so expressive!
What if you should look a fright, dear?
Mussolini's always right, dear!

DEMANDS ARE MADE FOR FREE TRANSFER AT MERGER HEARING

TRACTION EXECUTIVES TO BE HEARD ON FEB. 18

Keech Repeats Criticism of Measure Before House Subcommittee.

Congress was asked to write a free transfer proviso into the merger bill, even at the risk of higher street car fares, at hearings yesterday before the utilities subcommittee of the House District committee.

William McK. Clayton, chairman of the utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Evan H. Tucker, president of the Northeast Citizens Association, made this request of the House subcommittee.

William A. Roberts, assistant Corporation Counsel, opposed the provision, contending that traction revenues are on the decline everywhere, that it costs more for bus than street car passage, and that the Clayton proposal would extend transfer rights even to the Chevy Chase deluxe line.

To Hear Traction Officials.

John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., asked that traction officials be heard orally before that or any other amendment were written into the bill. Chairman Loring M. Black, jr., told them to appear at the next House hearing on the bill February 18.

Mr. Clayton in making his request pointed out that the bill in its present form provides for free transfers only between the connecting portions of the street railway lines of the merged company.

Mr. Tucker declared it would be better to pay a higher fare than endure the present transfer "nuisance."

Mr. Roberts, representing the Public Utilities Commission, opposed demands of the sightseeing companies that the traction companies be excluded in the bill from engaging in the "chartered bus business." He said the commission could see no reason why the merged company should not operate its buses on a charter basis between the peak traffic hours.

Suggests Compromise.

He suggested that a compromise might be worked out on the matter of requiring traction companies to pave between their tracks. The bill now before Congress would shift the entire burden of this paving to District taxpayers. On the other hand, Mr. Roberts declared that the law requiring the companies to bear all of the expense "is obsolete and a relic of hours-car days."

Chairman Black expressed himself as opposed to incorporating a reduced fare for school children provision in the bill, after Mr. Roberts explained that constitutionality of the present 3-cent school fare is now being contested in the courts.

Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel, who recently proposed wholesale amendment of the merger bill at hearings before the Senate District committee, yesterday put forward the same amendments before the House subcommittee. He is in favor of a simple merger resolution, that would not go into the merger details. He aired his views further in a letter yesterday to Chairman Arthur Capper of the Senate District committee. He said:

Defends Criticism.

"While it may appear from what has gone before that the resolution in question is being rather severely criticized, a close examination will reveal that most of that which has been attacked is in no wise essential to a mere merger of street railways and is in my opinion large surplusage."

Other witnesses yesterday included George E. Sullivan, vice president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Edwin H. Young, of the Central Business Men's Association. Both favored the merger in principle, but suggested amendments. Mr. Sullivan declared the bill as drawn would give the consolidated company a monopolistic power superior to Congress.

Senate District committee hearings on the merger will be resumed Friday afternoon at 2:30.

Bill on Trackage Rates.

The Public Utilities Commission would be authorized to change trackage rates paid by the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Railway to the Capital Transit Co., under proposed merger legislation, in a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), Maryland.

The company now pays the Washington Railway & Eectric Co. 10 cents for every passenger it carries over its tracks. There is no provision in the merger bill covering the item.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, introduced two bills to regulate private employment agencies in the District, and to require insurance companies to operate under District charters in Washington. Simiar bills have been introduced in the House.

3 Capital Girls Hurt In Winchester Crash

The condition of Annie Sanford, 15 years old, of 1213 K street southeast, was still regarded as serious at Emergency Hospital last night. She was brought in early yesterday morning after an automobile accident in Winchester, Va., in which two other Washington girls were less seriously injured.

The Sanford girl suffered deep cuts about her face, a fractured hip and a possible skull fracture. Ethel Marie Pier, 17 years old, of 920 C street southwest, was cut about the face, and Mary Fields, 15, also slightly injured, refused hospital treatment. The girls were brought to the hospital by a man whose name was not learned. Henry Sanford, father of Annie, said last night that he did not know the details of the accident and that his daughter had not been able to talk since she reached the hospital.

NEARLY 6,000 VIEW MASONIC EXERCISES

Knights Templar Prize for Best Drill Awarded to Columbia, No. 2.

While nearly 6,000 persons watched, drill teams representing six commanderies in their annual competition executed a flashing manual. The first prize for the drill was $125 and a purple pennant. The winning team was commanded by Charles D. Shackelford.

Second prize, $75 and a gold pennant, was awarded to Washington Commandery, No. 1. Honorable mention went to Orient Commandery, No. 5.

Columbia Commandery also won the general prize, which was $50. Brightwood Commandery, No. 6, took the first award of the inspection prizes. To DeMolay Commandery, No. 4, went the second ribbon.

In the sword drill which followed the team event, Ernest F. Gude, of DeMolay Commandery, was awarded the gold medal. Silver medal was won by J. C. Johnson, of Brightwood Commandery, and bronze by W. J. Hill, of Columbia Commandery, and honorable mention by George Brown, of Orient Commandery.

The drills were judged by William D. Asnip, of Philadelphia; Charles MacBride, of Philadelphia; O. Byron Lear, of New Jersey, and Leon E. Stimson, of Chicago.

Prizes were awarded by Dr. Frank E. Gibson, chairman of the prize committee. The ball was opened with a grand march which was led by Grand Commander Eugene E. Thompson.

In attendance were heads of allied Masonic bodies in the city and grand commanders with their staffs from the jurisdictions of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Boys Club Plans To Add Rifle Range

Teams in Marksmanship Will Be Trained for Special Contests.

A rifle range will be opened in the near future as an added activity at the Boys Club of Washington, it was announced yesterday. The club is also installing a new health clinic, which will include a dental clinic under the direction of Dr. John McIntyre.

Rifle teams will be formed to compete against each other for places on the club's representative team which will be trained to compete with other boys club and high school teams. Medals for different stages of competition will be awarded. The range, plans for which are considered by the National Rifle Association as among the finest in the city, will be under supervision at all times, and the team members will be instructed in the fine points of handling a rifle.

The Boys Club is open to all Washington boys, especially those who are unable to pay high membership fees. The club includes in its program athletics of all kinds under the direction of Harry Child, vocational training classes, library, games rooms, junior civic club harmonic band and Boy Scouts. All activities are under the direction of competent supervisors and instructors.

$2,151 Loot Taken From Store.

Burglars, who forced a door of the leatherware store of Camalier & Buckley at 1141 Connecticut avenue, escaped with merchandise valued at $2,151.70, police were told yesterday.

Civic Regime To Be Sought For District

A complete franchise for a city government in Washington, providing for mayor, aldermen, and everything—all to be elected, of course—will be demanded by the Takoma Park Citizens Association under a resolution authorized at a meeting of the organization last night at the Takoma Park branch of the Public Library.

The association ordered its executive committee to draw up the resolution pertaining to the desired change in the government of Washington. The resolution is then to be presented to the Federation of Citizens Associations by the two delegates from Takoma Park.

The association also decided to make plans for a mass meeting of District citizens in an attempt to interest large groups of Washington residents in the proposed change in government.

Lawyer Convicted On Fraud Charges

Peter P. Richardson to Appeal in Case Brought by Woman Client.

Peter P. Richardson, colored lawyer, yesterday was found guilty of false pretenses by a jury sitting in the court of Justice F. D. Letts. The jury had deliberated overnight, and when it reported with its finding of guilty yesterday a recommendation of leniency accompanied the finding.

Upon the motion of Irvin Goldstein, assistant United States attorney, who prosecuted Richardson, he was permitted his freedom upon a bond that was increased from $2,000 to $2,500.

The charge against Richardson was that he procured the signing of a deed from Mrs. Alberta Terrell conveying to him a small house owned by the woman. Mrs. Terrell testified that she thought she was signing a deed of trust, when it turned out, she said, that it was a deed to her property. Richardson acted as his own attorney. He filed notice of an appeal.

Traffic Law Violator Cites First President

James D. Waring yesterday invoked the Father of His Country to aid him in a parking trouble when he was brought into Police Court.

Arrested for illegal parking in front of the Press Club Building, Waring told the judge that he had cruised about the neighborhood trying to find a place to park so that he could take a picture of George Washington—one that he had painted—into the building. Unable to find one, he parked double and was given a ticket. Judge Ralph Given took his personal bond.

Police Told How to Pick Out Tipplers

Observable symptoms should be the only factors a policeman should consider in making arrests for drunkenness, Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, yesterday instructed all police personnel in the Daily Police Bulletin.

"In case of serious charges involving intoxication," said Gen. Glassford * * * decide definitely in your own mind whether the man is drunk or not drunk.

"Do not weaken your case by permitting your prisoner to drive a car or by submitting him to walking or other tests," said the instructions.

Another Chinese Victimized In Fake Fur Bargain Racket

The fake fur salesmen are making it a tougher Chinese New Year every day. Chin Poy, proprietor of a laundry at 1938 Fourth street northwest, fell victim yesterday, but he did not even get any furs to remember the fakers by. All he got was a song and dance for his $70.

A fellow national and laundryman, Coy Num Lee, was victimized Monday at his place of business, 823 Kennedy street northwest, by the same pair. In this case, however, Coy Num Lee received two pieces of fur in exchange for $30 in cash and $40 worth of jewelry. Of course, the fur was alley cat, but it was still fur and more than Chin Poy got.

The two men came to him yesterday and told him a hard luck story. They had been forced to get out and peddle their valuable furs from place to place because of a drop in the market, they said. They were willing to let him in on a good thing and would give him some pieces worth at least $140 for $70 in cash.

Chin Poy parted with the $70 and the men walked out of the store. He waited for them to bring him the furs. Instead they got in a truck bearing New York license tags and drove away, he told police.

WOMAN PAYS $600 FOR GLASS JEWELS

Diamonds which, police say, Mrs. Anna Lubora, of 4412 Seventh street northwest, borrowed $600 in cash to buy turned out to be glass when she had them appraised.

She told police she had been duped out of the money by three men, one of them posing as a Russian sailor. The "sailor" engaged her in conversation in the 4900 block of Eighth street northwest, she said, and while they were talking another man came up.

The "Russian" produced a gold coin, which he said he had brought from his native land, and the newcomer paid him $2 for it. Then, Mrs. Lubora told police, the man pulled a purple plush case from his inside pocket and opened it.

"Why, those are valuable diamonds," the second man exclaimed.

The Russian explained that he formery worked for Russian nobility and after the Soviet revolution, had escaped and smuggled the diamonds out of the country with him. While they were discussing the diamonds, another man approached whom the second man appeared to know. This person estimated that one of the diamonds alone was worth $675.

It was suggested that Mrs. Lubora and the two men go in together and buy the diamonds from the sailor. Mrs. Lubora told police that one of the men handed the sailor a large roll of cash, he said contained $1,000.

Mrs. Lubora was told to meet the sailor at Seventh and Upshur streets northwest later in the day with $600 and get her share of the diamonds. The woman told police this was done. A jeweler later told her she had bought several bits of cut glass.

The delegation will consist of Past Department Commander of the Department of Maryland Everett F. Warner, James W. Lyons, William B. Wells, John P. Hanck, Robert J. F. McElroy, Shelton T. Cameron, Wendell C. Hill, Arnold Crumbaugh, and R. Alden Webster.

KING SCORES RULE CENTRALIZATION IN TALK TO LAW BODY

ASSERTS OTHER NATIONS TAKING OPPOSITE STEPS

Terming the United States today as "the most tyrannical bureaucracy" the world has known, Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, a member of the Senate District, finance and judiciary committees, delivered an attack on the tendency of the Government toward centralization last night at the eighth annual dinner of the Barristers Club of Washington at the Carlton Hotel.

Speaking for an hour before a gathering of 300, including justices of United States courts, the District Supreme Court and the foremost lawyers of the Capital, the senator declared that "there is scarcely a matter pertaining to the people that is not deposited at the doorstep of Congress."

Points to Other Nations.

"We are compounding the 48 sovereign States into one protoplasmic mass," he told the lawyers.

"We need a return to the constitutional Government. We need constitutional literacy instead of constitutional illiteracy. The manhood of the people is becoming undermined by this growing centralization. They are expecting the Government to help them in everything."

Senator King observed that while government in this country is being centralized that other nations, such as Great Britain, are decentralizing.

Senator King was introduced by David A. Pine, president of the Barristers. An elaborate entertainment program was presented. It included: Dorothy Wilson Halbach, Washington singer, John Mulholland, a magician, also of Washington and acts from local theaters engaged for the occasion through Hardie Meakin, local theater manager.

Guests of Honor.

The guests of honor were Chief Justice George E. Martin, of the Court of Appeals of the District; Associate Justice Charles H. Robb, of the Court of Appeals; Associate Justices D. Lawrence Groner, Jennings Bailey, Peyton Gordon, Jesse C. Adkins, Oscar R. Luhring, Joseph W. Cox, F. Dickinson Letts and Daniel W. O'Donoghue, of the Supreme Court of the District; former Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy, of the Supreme Court of the District; former Associate Justice Wendell P. Stafford, of the Supreme Court of the District.

Chief Justice Fenton W. Booth, of the United States Court of Claims; William J. Graham, presiding judge of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals; Logan Morris, chairman of the Board of Tax Appeals; District Municipal Court Judge George C. Aukam and the following Police Court judges, Gus A. Schuldt, John P. McMahon, Isaac R. Hitt and Ralph Given.

Mother-in-Law Sued For $100,000 by Mute

Robert Wortman, a 30-year-old deaf mute, yesterday filed a $100,000 suit against his mother-in-law, Mrs. Julia Mary Higgins, 1235 C street northeast, for allegedly alienating the affections of his wife, Thelma Wortman, who is also a mute.

Wortman told the court through Attorneys Saul G. Lichtenberg and Joseph B. Silverman that he was married in 1927 and that he and his wife lived happily until January of last year, when, he charged, his mother-in-law persuaded her to leave him. He is an employe of the Department of Commerce.

Youth Given Larceny Term.

Arrested after Frederick Money, of 125 Eighteenth street southeast, had pursued him several blocks, Anthony S. Cono, 18 years old, yesterday was sentenced to 360 days in jail on a charge of petty larceny.

CITY WINS APPEALS ON 2 ASSESSMENTS

Two victories and one loss were recorded against the District Commisssioners in decisions handed down yesterday by the Court of Appeals. All were assessment cases.

The case that went against the District was won by Joseph J. Moebs, who obtained a cancellation of an assessment for paving a section of the roadway on Connecticut avenue. The Government contended that the assessment was not made under the obsolete Borland law, but was based instead on a special act of Congress. Moebs owns a triangular piece of land south of Dupont Circle, on which the Dupont Circle Apartments have been erected.

Because objections were not seasonably filed in regard to an assessment of damages and benefits by a jury as regards property owned by Shannon & Luchs and Archbishop Michael J. Curley, for Catholic interests, the court disallowed a protest against several Northeast assessments. The rules say that such objections must be made within 20 days, whereas the two did not object until 70 days had gone by.

The third decision was based upon the fact that James J. Walsh, one of the owners of some Mintwood place property, was not served with notice of condemnation proceedings in a case in which the Commissioners were attempting to establish a new building line. The court held that service by publication was sufficient and that personal service in "these cases was not jurisdictional."

90-Days Given Harker On Obscene Art Count

A 90-day jail sentence was meted out to James Henry Harker, youthful baker's helper, yesterday in Police Court when Judge Ralph Given pronounced sentence after having considered the circumstances under which Harker was allegedly carrying an obscene picture.

Harker was the central figure in the trials of James Mostyn and William R. Laflin, who, as members of the Police Department, were found guilty of having beaten him in a cell at the First Precinct Station. Charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct are still to be faced by Harker.

Citizens Commend New Bus Service

Officials of the Washington Rapid Transit Co. last night discussed with members of the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association bus service affecting the community of that group. E. D. Merrill, president of the bus company, and Alexander Shapiro, assistant general manager, were the speakers.

Many member attending the meeting expressed gratification at the recent addition of extra buses by the Rapid Transit Co. during evening rush hours and reaching to the distant limits of Sixteenth Street Heights. At a previous meeting criticism had been voiced by members with regard to the bus service.

The association was read a letter from Chief Engineer of the Fire Department George S. Watson indicating that plans were in progress for the erection of a fire station somewhere south of Takoma Park and which would increase fire protection for the Sixteenth Street Heights area.

CONFERENCE IS HELD ON DISTRICT BUDGET

House Group Tells Officials Economy Program Will Be Strictly Followed.

Lines of economy to be followed by the House District appropriations committee in applying the knife to the District budget were outlined to local officials yesterday at the first executive committee conference on local appropriations.

Commissioners Luther H. Reichelderfer and Herbert B. Crosby, together with the District tax assessor, auditor, corporation counsel, engineer of highways, chief clerk and playgrounds director, were in conference with the committee all morning. Hearings on the bill will be continued at 10 o'clock today.

Officials were advised that the economy program adopted by the House will be strictly followed in its application to District items. Additional building projects or other improvements that would mean large improvements will be looked on with favor, they were told.

Representative Robert G. Simmon (Republican), Nebraska, former chairman of the subcommittee, pointed out that in other appropraition bills this session committees were advised to increase no items, insert no new ones nor countenance transfer of items from one division to another.

Officials were further notified that the Pou rule adopted by the House, prohibiting increase in salaries or filling of vacancies without Presidential testimony of the essential character of the work, would be rigidly applied to District appropriations.

Nurses' Aid Sought In Diphtheria Fight

Health Officer Asks Group to Report Promptly; Help Pledged.

In an address yesterday before the board of managers of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, at their headquarters in the Albee Building, Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer, asked the organization's support in his program for adequate protection of the community against diphtheria.

His program, Dr. Fowler declared, has been approved by the District Medical Society, and many more persons will avail themselves of the protection afforded their children against the disease if they understand that the giving of toxin antitoxin is a simple and painless process, easily administered by their family physician.

Grand Exalted Ruler Here for Elks' Fete

Contrary to earlier reports, which indicated that he would be unable because of illness to attend the fiftieth anniversary banquet of the Washington Lodge of Elks, to be held at the Mayflower Hotel tomorrow at 8 p. m., Grand Exalted Ruler John R. Coen arrived in Washington yesterday.

He was greeted by a committee from the local lodge and escorted to the Mayflower Hotel, where he has since been resting so as to complete his recovery in time for the anniversary festivities, which commence with the initiation of a class of 100 candidates at the local clubhouse at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Lafayette Park Is Revealed As Home of 92 Tree Species

Learn about trees in Lafayette Park.

The area across from the White House is an arboreal laboratory, according to the American Forestry Association.

The park has 92 different and distinct species of trees, more varieties than are found in any other park in Washington.

A map showing the location of each has been published by the Forestry Association. It was prepared by Dr. Frederick V. Coville, distinguished scientist of the Agriculture Dpeartment.

PART OF CATHEDRAL OPENS FOR REGULAR WORSHIP ON MAY 5

Gen. Pershing, in Inspiring Talk, Urges Completion of Project.

TRIBUTE TO MELLON IS PAID IN RESOLUTION

Mrs. Hoover Praises Work of Mrs. Brown as Head of Women's Committee.

An inspirnig summons for Washington Catnedral to go forward to completion was sounded by Gen. John J. Pershing, chairman of the national committee of Washington Cathedral, at a luncheon yesterday given by him for members of the committee and other friends of the cathedral project in the refectory of the College of Preachers in the Cathedral Close.

Following Gen. Pershing's remarks came the announcement by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, that the choir and sanctuary of the cathedral, the finished portions of the main floor of the edifice, will be opened for regular public worship on Ascension Day, May 5. By a singular coincidence, the beginning of regular services on the main floor will fall on the twentieth anniversary of the beginning of worship in the Bethlehem Chapel, the first portion of the cathedral to be completed.

Mrs. Hoover Is Present.

Eighty guests were present, including Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Andrew W. Mellon, the new Ambassador to Great Britain; the Assistant Secretary of the War Department and Mrs. F. Trubee Davison, the Undersecretary of State, William R. Castle, jr.; former Senator George Wharton Pepper and Mrs. Pepper, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general of the D. A. R.; Mrs. Grace Lincoln Hall Brosseau, honorary president of the D. A. R.; Mrs. William Adams Brown, of New York, chairman of the national woman's committee of Washington Cathedral; Mrs. John D. Sherman, presidential commissioner of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission; Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, the Dean of Washington and Mrs. G. C. F. Bratenahl, Miss Mabel Boardman, Dean Warren P. Laird, of the School of Fine Arts of the University of Pennsylvania; former Senator William Cabell Bruce, of Maryland; Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. Frederic Rhinelander, daughter of the late Bishop Satterlee, and other leaders in church and state and civic movements.

In concluding, Gen. Pershing said: "Washington Cathedral will represent the ideals of our democracy. People from every section of our country and from every walk of life will participate in its perfection. Thus the cross that crowns its tower will proclaim the message of Christianity to all America."

Tribute Paid to Mellon.

A tribute to Ambassador Mellon was paid by the luncheon meeting concurring in a resolution adopted by the Chapter of the Cathedral praising both his service as Secretary of the Treasury for eleven years and as the treasurer of the Cathedral's executive committee.

This resolution, signed by Gen. Pershing and Bishop Freeman, was presented to Mr. Mellon at the luncheon.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, after the address of Mrs. William Adams Brown, chairman of the national women's committee of the Cathedral, of which the First Lady is honorary chairman, spoke a few words of appreciation of Mrs. Brown's work as chairman.

Held Aid to Employment.

Former Senator George Wharton Pepper, of Pennsylvania, another speaker, proposed that construction of the Cathedral represented the best means of depression relief in alleviating unemployment, because it was a permanent structure and "not artificially created work of a transitory nature."

In his concluding address, Bishop Freeman declared:

"The sobering events of recent years have placed a new challenge upon Christian institutions. Materialism and our ill-placed security in purely human institutions have tragically failed us. Not in the artistry of Washington Cathedral does its strength reside, but in what it stands for and witnesses to. Placed as it is in the Nation's Capital, it stands before men boldly challenging them to recognize the fact that God has made and preserved us a Nation."

Cathedral Council Named.

The bishop also announced the appointment of a cathedral council to aid in an advisory capacity in the cathedral project.

In the pilgrimages to the choir and sanctuary, on the main floor of the cathedral, following the luncheon the participants in the meeting were shown the plans for the service which will be held next spring. A visualization was obtained by the group through this visit of the grandeur and inspiring beauty of the cathedral as it will look when completed.

At the conclusion of the pilgrimage the women guests attended a meeting of the national women's committee of the cathedral in the cathedral library. This meeting was presided over by Mrs. William Adams Brown of New York, its national chairman.

Two Crossings at Birney SchoolCalled Dangerous

More adequate police protection for children at the Birney School, on Nichols avenue southeast, will be asked by the Hillsdale Civic Association, it was decided at a meeting last night. Members declared that dangerous crossings of Nichols avenue near the school—namely, Morris and Howard roads—were often allowed to go unpoliced when the children were going to and from school.

The organization also decided to ask for a traffic light at Howard road and Nichols avenue southeast and for a stop sign at Morris road and Nichols avenue southeast. The association will also urge that street lights be turned on later in the evening and left on later in the morning

HOOVER SPURS CHANGE IN BASE OF REDISCOUNT

PROGRAM DESIGNED TO OFFSET HOARDING

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN

Leaders of both parties in the House and Senate pledged their support yesterday to immediate action on a bill to broaden the base of rediscount in the Federal Reserve System.

The projected bill, in the view of its principal advocates, will serve to check the current distressing deflation of bank credit, to release a considerable volume of presently sterile gold in the national banking system, and, if necessary, to pave the way for an increase in circulating currency to offset hoarded dollars.

As outlined last night in a formal joint statement issued by Senators Walcott and Glass and Representatives Steagall and Strong, the project represents the most far-reaching modification of the national banking practice since the establishment of the Federal Reserve System.

To Speed Legislation.

Under an agreement reached yesterday in two White House conferences, identic bills will be introduced in both Houses of Congress today, and efforts will be made to complete legislative action on the plan within ten days.

As now contemplated, the broader discount base will be accepted by all parties as an emergency measure, for one year only. By vesting the Federal Reserve Board with greatly increased discretionary authority on rediscount eligibility, the new arrangement promises to establish for the first time in United States history effective central bank checks upon both inflation and deflation of money and credit.

On the whole, the bill embodies the plan advocated by President Hoover during the last two years. Senator Glass, of Virginia, will sponsor the measure in the Senate.

Would Release Vast Credits.

The first result of the proposed arrangement will be to assure every member bank in the Federal Reserve System of the complete liquidity, if advisable, of its entire investment portfolio. This, it is anticipated, will at once release vast stores of potential bank credits now frozen by the determination of many bankers to maintain abnormally large currency reserves.

By substituting sound member-bank assets for the excess gold reserves now held against the greatly expanded Federal Reserve note circulation, the bill also will release for normal banking credit service nearly $1,000,000,000 of the reserve system's free gold.

This provision strikes at the heart of the prevailing credit stringency, which arises out of the fact that in many centers gold reserves against currency in circulation have been running as high recently as 75 or 80 per cent, against the 40 per cent required by law.

Due to Hoarding.

These excessive gold reserves have been necessitated by the sharp falling off—due to hoarding—in the rediscount paper eligible for reserve against Federal Reserve notes.

Potentially, the new law will substitute sound bank assets for this excess gold, thereby releasing a vast amount of sterile gold for normal credit operations.

Although the projected expansion of Federal Reserve authority does not link directly with the operations of the recently established Reconstruction Finance Corporation, some of

Roosevelt Is Indorsed by 1st Florida District

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, was indorsed here today by the Democratic executive committee of the first Florida Congressional District. At the same time the committee commended former Gov. Alfred E. Smith for his statement and his attitude regarding the nomination, and recommended that the vice presidential nominee be chosen from the Southern States.

3 Suspects Captured After 5-Mile Pursuit

Gunfire Precedes Seizure of Alleged Bandits After Theft of Taxi; One Said to Answer Description of Sniper.

A police radio cruiser bearing a hold-up victim and three policemen last night overtook three alleged bandits after a 5-mile chase through Rock Creek Park. After their car, a taxicab they had allegedly stolen a few minutes earlier, was cornered in a blind lane off Military road, one of the men pulled an automatic pistol and attempted to shoot down Detective Sergt. E. F. Lewis, but the pistol jammed, according to police.

The trio then attempted to escape on foot, but were captured when police fired several shots into the ground and they halted. All of the men said they had only recently come to Washington.

They were taken to headquarters, where they gave their names as Willard Messick, 24 years old, of California; William G. Duffy, 22 years old, of Macon, Ga., and William McKinney, 18 years old, of Fitchburg, Mass.

Inspector F. S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, said one of the men answered the general description of the man wanted in connection with the slaying of Paul Riedel and the shooting of Gordon T. Backus, Helen Andrews and Doris Beall.

Police said E. M. Morningstar, 25 years old, of 330 Fourteenth place northwest, operator of an independent taxicab, picked the three men up last night at Twenty-first street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

They ordered him to drive to 1640 Albemarle street northwest. There is no such address.

At Twenty-ninth and Albemarle streets northwest, they said, one of the men pulled a pistol and ordered Morningstar to turn over his cash.

Morningstar said he told the men he was willing to give them his money and cab, but pleaded with the man holding the pistol not to shoot because he was the sole support of a wife and two children.

"Just give us your money and go on down in the woods and stay for half an hour and you'll be all right," Morningstar said the bandits told him.

They got $2.70 from him and forced him from the car.

His taxicab, driven by one of the bandits, had not disappeared from sight when No. 1 radio cruiser bearing Private R. J. Thompson and Sergts. J. J. Tolson and E. F. Lewis, turned into Albemarle street. Morningstar hailed them and hurriedly explained what had happened.

The taxicab turned into Rock Creek Park and the chase started in earnest.

DISTRICT BODY FIXES BUDGET LIMITATIONS

House Group Puts 4 Curbs on Uses of Funds Under $6,500,000 Plan.

Restrictive policies that will limit local budget items on four points, left open in past District appropriation bills, were agreed to late yesterday by the House District appropriations subcommittee.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, declared the committee "bound" on the following principles.

1. No new projects will be sanctioned in the present bill.

2. No increases will be voted in any budgetary item.

3. Reallocations or transfers of funds from one item to another, or reductions in one item to increase another, are excluded.

4. Reappropriation of unexpended balances for purposes other than originally appropriated are ruled out.

Meanwhile, Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), Illinois, announced he will insist on elimination of any additional jobs provided in the budget, invoking the Pou rule.

"It is my understanding that some 250 more positions are called for than were provided under the 1932 budget. There may be some of these, such as teaching assignments, that might be essential. I will ask that all of the others be cut out."

The Cannon statement was issued preparatory to consideration of the first items in the bill at 10 o'clock this morning. District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, the first witness, will testify on general salary provisions of the measure.

"The committee is working under limitations never before placed on a District appropriations subcommittee," Chairman Cannon said. "We consider ourselves instructed not only to reduce the Federal lump sum to $6,500,000, but bound by joint action of the various subcommittee chairmen on the four points I have named."

Asked what his stand would be on any emergency appropriation that

Spanish Premier Wins In Vote on Prison Ship

Madrid, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Premier Afana's government got a substantial majority in Congress today when he threatened to resign and called for a vote on a demand by eight deputies of the Left that the prison ship Buenos Aires be ordered back to Barcelona.

The ship sailed this morning with 110 political prisoners, bound for the penal colony in Spanish Guinea, and the premier's threat followed a tumultuous debate.

Trammell, U.S. Embassy Secretary in Rio, Is Dead

Rio de Janeiro, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Harvey Eric Trammell, secretary of the United States Embassy, died today after an emergency operation for appendicitis.

Born at Rector, Ark., in 1896, he came here less than a year ago from Colombia. He was wounded in France during the war and entered the consular service in 1926. A widow and two children survive.

THREE NATIONS URGE DRASTIC ARMS CUTS

Italy Asks Virtual Abolition of Aggressive Weapons at Geneva Parley.

Geneva, Feb. 10 (U.P.).—Japan, Italy and Poland, adding to the varied proposals for throttling war, presented their plans for limitation of armaments at today's session of the League of Nations' Disarmament Conference.

The Japanese plan, announced by Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese Ambassador to London, envisaged reduction in number and caliber of battleship guns, reduction or abolition of aircraft carriers, regulation but not abolition of submarines, prohibition of aerial bombardment and the prohibition of poison gases and bacteria.

Dino Grandi, youthful, suave, Italian foreign minister, went much further and pledged his government to the abolition of virtually every aggressive weapon of warfare, including capital ships, submarines, aircraft carriers, heavy artillery, tanks, army aircraft, chemicals and bacteria.

Foreign Minister August Zaleski, of Poland, announced his government is "heartily in support of all proposals calculated to make nations of bad faith shrink from the risk of aggression." He regretted, he said, the draft convention of the conference's agenda, which Poland fully accepted, but which had not limited "war potentials." This was taken to refer to

Concord to Fight Seizure of Bridge

Rally Against Taking Over of Span by U. S. for National Shrine.

Concord, Mass., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—No one, not even the Federal Government, backed by the Army, Navy and Marines, is going to take the Old North Bridge away from the people of Concord without a fight. The red coats tried it, and the consequence is history.

Senator David I. Walsh's recently announced plan to take over the famous bridge and battlefield as national shrines has caused Col. Robert E. Goodwin, Raymond Wheeler and Edward W. Sheehan, the local board of selectmen, to rally modern Minute Men to the defense. They resent that at this late date there should be any insinuation that Concord can not look out for her own Revolutionary shrines.

At the annual town meeting next month the townspeople will be asked to consider an article in the warrant "to determine whether the town will take any action by way of protest or otherwise concerning the proposal of the United States Government to seize and take over the battleground and the Old North Bridge."

The other two machines were found Monday by Royal Air Force searchers.

SENATE DEBATE ON DOLE DRAWS GALLERY CHEER

Borah and Fess Clash on Jobless Relief Legislation.

IDAHO LEADER ASSAILS HOOVER PLAN STAND

Ohioan Hurts Hand Pounding Desk as He Attacks U. S. Gift View.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The question of a Federal appropriation for the victims of unemployment—or a "dole," as the opposition calls it—plunged the Senate into the most exciting debate of the Seventy-second Congress yesterday.

The principals were Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, and Senator Simeon D. Fess (Republican), of Ohio, two statesmen who, though located on the same side of the aisle, are polar opposites in much of their political philosophy.

Senator Fess, expounding the views of President Hoover, contended that the succor of unemployment victims is a local problem, one for the States and municipalities to handle. Thus far, he said, they have handled it. To make an appropriation out of the Federal Treasury now, he said, would be to open the floodgates and "turn the Treasury inside out."

Demands Called Limitless.

"There is no limit to the demands of men out of work," he said. "They will demand that the Government take care of them and say 'the Government owes me a living.'"

Senator Borah, in a thunderous voice, assailed this argument. He compared present conditions in this country with conditions abroad during the last war.

"True the armies left their dead and dying," he said, "but who can paint the picture of desolation and ruin and blasted hopes behind the army of unemployed.

"I am interested in saving the lives of the people. Call it a dole or what you like.

Galleries Add Applause.

"A Government which will not protect those who protect it is flying a flag which is a dirty rag, contaminating the air in which it flies."

The galleries applauded both Fess and Borah, thus violating the rules. Also, at one point, there was the sound of hissing.

Senator Fess, erstwhile schoolmaster, and ordinarily a mild individual, pounded his desk so vehemently during the debate that he skinned his knuckles and drew blood.

"If we leave this relief problem in the hands of the politicians," he said, "God help America."

The measure on which the Senate

Cooper Again to Enter Ohio Governor's Race

TAMMANY IS SPLIT ON ITS ALLEGIANCE

Minot, N. Dak., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith, of New York, will be listed as a Democratic presidential candidate in the State preferential primary election March 15 on the initiative of a North Dakotan. The Secretary of State announced today that consent of the candidate was not necessary.

E. H. Stenvick, former postmaster here, said he would circulate nominating petitions in behalf of the 1928 Democratic standard bearer, and hoped to file for him by late Saturday, the deadline for such action.

Stenvick said he had not consulted Smith, but refused to abide by the decision of the State Democratic convention, which indorsed Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York. Roosevelt's name was filed yesterday.

More Filings Probable.

The new law interpretation, announced at Bismarck by Secretary of State Robert Byrne, was expected to open the way for more filings than had been expected. Previously the law was interpreted as requiring acquiescence of candidates before they were entered formally.

Byrne said filing is official as soon as he accepts nominating petitions after finding them adequate. Names will go on the ballot unless specific requests come from candidates that they be withdrawn.

Roosevelt, only Democratic aspirant on the ballot, thus far, was filed with his permission, Byrne said. Joseph I. France, former Maryland senator, also acquiesced to his filing as the only Republican thus far.

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Tammany Hall, which traditionally goes into political battles with a united front, is at present split three ways as the Democratic National Convention approaches.

New York State will cast 94 votes when the balloting for a presidential nominee begins in Chicago, and 48 of these delegates will be from New York City.

Normally Tammany controls most of these 48, but the political observers believe as things now stand, that no one candidate can count on even a majority of this bloc on the first ballot.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt has aroused the ire of many Tammany leaders by not squelching the Hofstadter legislative committee's investigation into the Tammany municipal government. Nevertheless, he has a sizable following in the organization.

Roosevelt's Tammany Friends.

Senator Capper Commends Washington Essay Contest

Approval of Congress Is Expressed by Kansan; Boys and Girls Are Urged to Send Compositions in Soon So They May Get Full Consideration.

"Members of Congress as well as other public spirited citizens approve highly of The Post Washington Essay Contest, which brings such a splendid opportunity to the boys and girls of Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland," said Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, yesterday. Senator Capper has taken an active interest in the affairs of the District since coming to Washington a number of years ago to serve the Sunflower State in the Upper House of Congress.

"The action taken by The Washington Post," continued Senator Capper, "might well be followed by other American newspapers as a means of increasing the interest of the youth of the land in the bicentennial celebration.

"The generous cash prizes given by The Washington Post to the 103 winners are an added stimulus to all who compete, I feel sure. Besides the individual pride which will be aroused through the awards, it is safe to predict that the schools from which these fortunate winners are selected will rejoice, too, over the victory.

"The life of George Washington is filled with inspiration for young and old alike. It is a wholesome lesson in industry, obedience and a determination to win against heavy odds. George Washington worked hard for every advantage which came to him. With few educational advantages at hand, he read every available book which came to hand. Indeed, he did more than read them; some of them were committed practically to memory and their influence remained with him throughout his life.

"I shall watch the columns of The Washington Post after the close of the contest to see the names of the winners. Certainly they will have my hearty congratulations and I commend The Washington Post for

U. S. Expresses Fear For Citizens in China

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Fresh instructions were dispatched yesterday to American Consul General Edwin S. Cunningham by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson in view of the imminent climax to the heavy fighting in and around Shanghai, it was learned here last night. The concern of the State Department for the safety of some 3,200 civilians in the war-torn area heightened considerably upon reports from consular and naval officers of an impending general action on the Shanghai front.

The State Department has endeavored to allow the American consul on the spot the widest possible discretion in view of the emergency nature of all developments. However, certain aspects of the situation were studied by Col. Stimson and his assistant, James Grafton Rogers, and the chief of the Far Eastern division of the department, Dr. Stanley Kuhl Hornbeck, for their bearing on international legal complications.

A sudden rout of the Chinese forces defending the Chapei forts or the equally to be feared triumphal return of the Chinese might precipitate a sudden problem of international law within the district of the International Settlement itself. The irruption of any large force of armed troops within the neutral area, defended as it is by a large but inadequate force of allied guards, might endanger the lives of all the inhabitants, civilian as well as military.

The intensive nature of the recent engagements between the excellently

Steps at Concentration Spurred Under Cover of Darkness.

Gen. Chen to Give Additional Financial Aid; Shanghai Chamber Asks Funds.

Shanghai (Thursday), Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Lives of United States Marines occupying part of a Chinese cotton mill in the American sector of the International Settlement were endangered today by two bombs dropped on the building by Japanese airplanes. Five Chinese workmen in the mill were killed and fifteen wounded. The Marine detachment, which was occupying the opposite end of the building, was jarred, but unharmed. A misdirected shell fell in the heart of the settlement's business district at about the same time and injured an Indian Sikh watchman. It was thought to have come from a Chinese antiaircraft gun.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Shanghai, Thursday (Feb. 11.—The greatest concentration of guns, manpower and ammunition of the entire Shanghai-Woosung engagement was in progress this morning as the Japanese and the Chinese got ready to fight it out to the finish.

The troops were massed about the Woosung forts, where the Chinese have stood up for a week under almost continued bombardment and aerial attack.

The concentration movement was carried out under the cover of darkness last night and early this morning. Passengers aboard steamships from Japan that docked at Shanghai late yesterday said they had passed a dozen Japanese troopships. Neutral sources here received a code message from Japan saying two Army divisions, about 20,000 men, had embarked for the front.

Chinese Getting Ready.

In the sector about the north station only two lines of trenches remained manned. Hitherto three or four lines have held full complements of men. A gap of half a mile existed between the Chinese front and the support lines after the shift had been completed.

Japanese field pieces, unloaded from ships in the Whangpoo, were picked up from the Shanghai docks by motortrucks that rumbled away to the north.

Both the Japanese and Chinese combed the Shanghai area for whatever materials of war they could lay their hands on.

Japanese trucks rushed bales of American cotton into the Woosung sector for use in protecting strong points from Chinese machine gun bullets and artillery shells. These bales, ideal for the purpose, were picked up at Japanese-owned cotton mills along the edge of the Whangpoo—mills which have been closed since the outbreak of the Shanghai trouble, throwing more than 40,000 Chinese out of work.

Washboards Are Used.

The Chinese had to content themselves with less serviceable materials of war. They carted great quantities of wooden beams and iron into the Woosung area and even requisitioned washboards with which to build shelter roofs and to buttress the sides of their trenches. Chinese troops went through villages on the outskirts of Shanghai, where usually most of this

HURLEY WARNS U. S. NOT TO FREE ISLES

Asserts Independence Would Mean Economic Disaster for Philippines.

(Associated Press.)

Solemn warning was given yesterday by Secretary Hurley of the War Department that immediate withdrawal of the United States from the Philippines would bring about economic disaster and invite revolution and anarchy in the islands.

He told the House insular committee "the political chaos in the Orient today is such that in my opinion this is no time to deal with Philippine independence."

Publicly revealing for the first time the result of his personal investigation last summer in the Philippines, the War Secretary charged Filipino political leaders with suppression of the right of free speech and creating a condition which prevents open discussion of the independence issue under penalty of ostracism.

Secretary Hurley directed harsh criticism toward the Hare independence bill, calling it "destructive and in no way a courageous measure for dealing with the Philippine problem."

Until Filipinos shall have made far

Mellon Charges Dropped by House

Judiciary Committee Says Further Proceedings Unwarranted.

(Associated Press.)

Impeachment charges against Andrew W. Mellon were dropped by the House judiciary committee yesterday as the veteran financier prepared to step from the Treasury direction into England's Court of St. James.

Upon this exchange of duties and Mellon's impending resignation from the Cabinet to take the oath of ambassador, the lawyer representatives based their agreement that "nothing justified further proceedings."

Chairman Sumners announced his committee was unanimous on this point, viewing impeachment proceedings as virtually equivalent to an ouster suit.

Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, sponsored the charges to obtain Mellon's removal from the Treasury post he occupied eleven years.

French Debt Obligation Holds, Herriot Declares

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Eagle, in a dispatch from Paris, quoted Edouard Herriot, former premier of France, as saying: "I cannot accept the theory that Germany's failure to pay France relieves France of the obligation to pay America. We signed an agreement and we must keep it."

The Eagle's correspondent says M. Herriot will publish his opinion in his newspaper, L'ere Nouvelle.

25 TOKYO STUDENTS HELD FOR PROTESTS

Handbills Urging Cessation of "Imperialistic War" Are Distributed.

Tokyo, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The first public demonstration of any moment against Japan's course in Shanghai and Manchuria took place today at the Imperial University.

Twenty-five students were arrested for participating in a protest meeting at which handbills, urging the people to "stop this imperialistic war," were distributed.

Eight hundred students, assembled in front of the main lecture hall of the university, heard speeches by four of their colleagues and then attempted to parade through the streets in the vicinity, carrying red banners. The police dispersed them and arrested the leaders.

Handbills were circulated in the university throughout the forenoon and posters were pasted on university buildings. The posters read, "Down with the Students' Patriotic Association!" and "Down with empire day!"

Tomorrow is "Kigensetsu," the national holiday which celebrates the supposed anniversary of the founding of the empire in 660 B. C., by Immu Tenno, a descendent of the sun goddess.

While the police pressed ahead with their investigation to determine exactly what was behind the assassination yesterday of Unnosuke Inouye, leader of the opposition party, it was learned that Kijuro Shidehara, former foreign minister and the sole survivor of Japan's famous triumvirate of liberal statesmen, was seriously ill. The baron suffered a fainting spell and an attack of cerebral anemia Monday night.

Brazilian Soldiers Kept From Invading Uruguay

Santana, Brazil, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A cavalry regiment revolted tonight in its garrison here and attempted to cross the Uruguayan border to Rivera to rescue Brazilian soldiers detained there in connection with the killing of a Uruguayan civilian during the Mardi Gras celebration last night.

Troops and police of Uruguay spread out near the street which divides the two countries, but Brazilian army officers persuaded the cavalrymen to return to their barracks before they reached the boundary.

DEMANDS ARE MADE FOR FREE TRANSFER AT MERGER HEARING

Keech Repeats Criticism of Measure Before House Subcommittee.

Congress was asked to write a free transfer proviso into the merger bill, even at the risk of higher street car fares, at hearings yesterday before the utilities subcommittee of the House District committee.

William McK. Clayton, chairman of the utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Evan H. Tucker, president of the Northeast Citizens Association, made this request of the House subcommittee.

William A. Roberts, assistant Corporation Counsel, opposed the provision, contending that traction revenues are on the decline everywhere, that it costs more for bus than street car passage, and that the Clayton proposal would extend transfer rights even to the Chevy Chase deluxe line.

To Hear Traction Officials.

John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., asked that traction officials be heard orally before that or any other amendment were written into the bill. Chairman Loring M. Black, jr., told them to appear at the next House hearing on the bill February 18.

Mr. Clayton in making his request pointed out that the bill in its present form provides for free transfers only between the connecting portions of the street railway lines of the merged company.

Mr. Tucker declared it would be better to pay a higher fare than endure the present transfer "nuisance."

Mr. Roberts, representing the Public Utilities Commission, opposed demands of the sightseeing companies that the traction companies be excluded in the bill from engaging in the "chartered bus business." He said the commission could see no reason why the merged company should not operate its buses on a charter basis between the peak traffic hours.

Suggests Compromise.

He suggested that a compromise might be worked out on the matter of requiring traction companies to pave between their tracks. The bill now before Congress would shift the entire burden of this paving to District taxpayers. On the other hand, Mr. Roberts declared that the law requiring the companies to bear all of the expense "is obsolete and a relic of hours-car days."

Chairman Black expressed himself as opposed to incorporating a reduced fare for school children provision in the bill, after Mr. Roberts explained that constitutionality of the present 3-cent school fare is now being contested in the courts.

Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel, who recently proposed wholesale amendment of the merger bill at hearings before the Senate District committee, yesterday put forward the same amendments before the House subcommittee. He is in favor of a simple merger resolution, that would not go into the merger details. He aired his views further in a letter yesterday to Chairman Arthur Capper of the Senate District committee. He said:

Defends Criticism.

"While it may appear from what has gone before that the resolution in question is being rather severely criticized, a close examination will reveal that most of that which has been attacked is in no wise essential to a mere merger of street railways and is in my opinion large surplusage."

Other witnesses yesterday included George E. Sullivan, vice president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Edwin H. Young, of the Central Business Men's Association. Both favored the merger in principle, but suggested amendments. Mr. Sullivan declared the bill as drawn would give the consolidated company a monopolistic power superior to Congress.

Senate District committee hearings on the merger will be resumed Friday afternoon at 2:30.

Bill on Trackage Rates.

The Public Utilities Commission would be authorized to change trackage rates paid by the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Railway to the Capital Transit Co., under proposed merger legislation, in a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), Maryland.

The company now pays the Washington Railway & Electric Co. 10 cents for every passenger it carries over its tracks. There is no provision in the merger bill covering the item.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, introduced two bills to regulate private employment agencies in the District, and to require insurance companies to operate under District charters in Washington. Similar bills have been introduced in the House.

3 Capital Girls Hurt In Winchester Crash

The condition of Annie Sanford, 15 years old, of 1213 K street southeast, was still regarded as serious at Emergency Hospital last night. She was brought in early yesterday morning after an automobile accident in Winchester, Va., in which two other Washington girls were less seriously injured.

The Sanford girl suffered deep cuts about her face, a fractured hip and a possible skull fracture. Ethel Marie Pier, 17 years old, of 920 C street southwest, was cut about the face, and Mary Fields, 15, also slightly injured, refused hospital treatment. The girls were brought to the hospital by a man whose name was not learned. Henry Sanford, father of Annie, said last night that he did not know the details of the accident and that his daughter had not been able to talk since she reached the hospital.

NEARLY 6,000 VIEW MASONIC EXERCISES

Knights Templar Prize for Best Drill Awarded to Columbia, No. 2.

Second prize, $75 and a gold pennant, was awarded to Washington Commandery, No. 1. Honorable mention went to Orient Commandery, No. 5.

Columbia Commandery also won the general prize, which was $50. Brightwood Commandery, No. 6, took the first award of the inspection prizes. To DeMolay Commandery, No. 4, went the second ribbon.

In the sword drill which followed the team event, Ernest F. Gude, of DeMolay Commandery, was awarded the gold medal. Silver medal was won by J. C. Johnson, of Brightwood Commandery, and bronze by W. J. Hill, of Columbia Commandery, and honorable mention by George Brown, of Orient Commandery.

Boys Club Plans To Add Rifle Range

Teams in Marksmanship Will Be Trained for Special Contests.

A rifle range will be opened in the near future as an added activity at the Boys Club of Washington, it was announced yesterday. The club is also installing a new health clinic, which will include a dental clinic under the direction of Dr. John McIntyre.

Rifle teams will be formed to compete against each other for places on the club's representative team which will be trained to compete with other boys club and high school teams. Medals for different stages of competition will be awarded. The range, plans for which are considered by the National Rifle Association as among the finest in the city, will be under supervision at all times, and the team members will be instructed in the fine points of handling a rifle.

The Boys Club is open to all Washington boys, especially those who are unable to pay high membership fees. The club includes in its program athletics of all kinds under the direction of Harry Child, vocational training classes, library, games rooms, junior civic club harmonic band and Boy Scouts. All activities are under the direction of competent supervisors and instructors.

$2,151 Loot Taken From Store.

Civic Regime To Be Sought For District

A complete franchise for a city government in Washington, providing for mayor, aldermen, and everything—all to be elected, of course—will be demanded by the Takoma Park Citizens Association under a resolution authorized at a meeting of the organization last night at the Takoma Park branch of the Public Library.

The association ordered its executive committee to draw up the resolution pertaining to the desired change in the government of Washington. The resolution is then to be presented to the Federation of Citizens Associations by the two delegates from Takoma Park.

The association also decided to make plans for a mass meeting of District citizens in an attempt to interest large groups of Washington residents in the proposed change in government.

Lawyer Convicted On Fraud Charges

Peter P. Richardson to Appeal in Case Brought by Woman Client.

Peter P. Richardson, colored lawyer, yesterday was found guilty of false pretenses by a jury sitting in the court of Justice F. D. Letts. The jury had deliberated overnight, and when it reported with its finding of guilty yesterday a recommendation of leniency accompanied the finding.

Upon the motion of Irvin Goldstein, assistant United States attorney, who prosecuted Richardson, he was permitted his freedom upon a bond that was increased from $2,000 to $2,500.

The charge against Richardson was that he procured the signing of a deed from Mrs. Alberta Terrell conveying to him a small house owned by the woman. Mrs. Terrell testified that she thought she was signing a deed of trust, when it turned out, she said, that it was a deed to her property. Richardson acted as his own attorney. He filed notice of an appeal.

Traffic Law Violator Cites First President

James D. Waring yesterday invoked the Father of His Country to aid him in a parking trouble when he was brought into Police Court.

Arrested for illegal parking in front of the Press Club Building, Waring told the judge that he had cruised about the neighborhood trying to find a place to park so that he could take a picture of George Washington—one that he had painted—into the building. Unable to find one, he parked double and was given a ticket. Judge Ralph Given took his personal bond.

Police Told How to Pick Out Tipplers

Observable symptoms should be the only factors a policeman should consider in making arrests for drunkenness, Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, yesterday instructed all police personnel in the Daily Police Bulletin.

"In case of serious charges involving intoxication," said Gen. Glassford * * * decide definitely in your own mind whether the man is drunk or not drunk.

"Do not weaken your case by permitting your prisoner to drive a car or by submitting him to walking or other tests," said the instructions.

Another Chinese Victimized In Fake Fur Bargain Racket

The fake fur salesmen are making it a tougher Chinese New Year every day. Chin Poy, proprietor of a laundry at 1938 Fourth street northwest, fell victim yesterday, but he did not even get any furs to remember the fakers by. All he got was a song and dance for his $70.

A fellow national and laundryman, Coy Num Lee, was victimized Monday at his place of business, 823 Kennedy street northwest, by the same pair. In this case, however, Coy Num Lee received two pieces of fur in exchange for $30 in cash and $40 worth of jewelry. Of course, the fur was alley cat, but it was still fur and more than Chin Poy got.

The two men came to him yesterday and told him a hard luck story. They had been forced to get out and peddle their valuable furs from place to place because of a drop in the market, they said. They were willing to let him in on a good thing and would give him some pieces worth at least $140 for $70 in cash.

Chin Poy parted with the $70 and the men walked out of the store. He waited for them to bring him the furs. Instead they got in a truck bearing New York license tags and drove away, he told police.

WOMAN PAYS $600 FOR GLASS JEWELS

Borrows Money to Purchase Fake Diamonds From 3 Confidence Men.

Diamonds which, police say, Mrs. Anna Lubora, of 4412 Seventh street northwest, borrowed $600 in cash to buy turned out to be glass when she had them appraised.

She told police she had been duped out of the money by three men, one of them posing as a Russian sailor. The "sailor" engaged her in conversation in the 4900 block of Eighth street northwest, she said, and while they were talking another man came up.

The "Russian" produced a gold coin, which he said he had brought from his native land, and the newcomer paid him $2 for it. Then, Mrs. Lubora told police, the man pulled a purple plush case from his inside pocket and opened it.

"Why, those are valuable diamonds," the second man exclaimed.

The Russian explained that he formery worked for Russian nobility and after the Soviet revolution, had escaped and smuggled the diamonds out of the country with him. While they were discussing the diamonds, another man approached whom the second man appeared to know. This person estimated that one of the diamonds alone was worth $675.

It was suggested that Mrs. Lubora and the two men go in together and buy the diamonds from the sailor. Mrs. Lubora told police that one of the men handed the sailor a large roll of cash, he said contained $1,000.

Mrs. Lubora was told to meet the sailor at Seventh and Upshur streets northwest later in the day with $600 and get her share of the diamonds. The woman told police this was done. A jeweler later told her she had bought several bits of cut glass.

KING SCORES RULE CENTRALIZATION IN TALK TO LAW BODY

ASSERTS OTHER NATIONS TAKING OPPOSITE STEPS

Terming the United States today as "the most tyrannical bureaucracy" the world has known, Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, a member of the Senate District, finance and judiciary committees, delivered an attack on the tendency of the Government toward centralization last night at the eighth annual dinner of the Barristers Club of Washington at the Carlton Hotel.

Speaking for an hour before a gathering of 300, including justices of United States courts, the District Supreme Court and the foremost lawyers of the Capital, the senator declared that "there is scarcely a matter pertaining to the people that is not deposited at the doorstep of Congress."

Points to Other Nations.

"We are compounding the 48 sovereign States into one protoplasmic mass," he told the lawyers.

"We need a return to the constitutional Government. We need constitutional literacy instead of constitutional illiteracy. The manhood of the people is becoming undermined by this growing centralization. They are expecting the Government to help them in everything."

Senator King observed that while government in this country is being centralized that other nations, such as Great Britain, are decentralizing.

Senator King was introduced by David A. Pine, president of the Barristers. An elaborate entertainment program was presented. It included: Dorothy Wilson Halbach, Washington singer, John Mulholland, a magician, also of Washington and acts from local theaters engaged for the occasion through Hardie Meakin, local theater manager.

The guests of honor were Chief Justice George E. Martin, of the Court of Appeals of the District; Associate Justice Charles H. Robb, of the Court of Appeals; Associate Justices D. O'Donoghue, of the Supreme Court of the District; former Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy, of the Supreme Court of the District; former Associate Justice Wendell P. Stafford, of the Supreme Court of the District.

Graham, presiding judge of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals; Logan Morris, chairman of the Board of Tax Appeals; District Municipal Court Judge George C. Aukam and the following Police Court judges, Gus A. Schuldt, John P. McMahon, Isaac R. Hitt and Ralph Given.

Mother-in-Law Sued For $100,000 by Mute

Robert Wortman, a 30-year-old deaf mute, yesterday filed a $100,000 suit against his mother-in-law, Mrs. Julia Mary Higgins, 1235 C street northeast, for allegedly alienating the affections of his wife, Thelma Wortman, who is also a mute.

Wortman told the court through Attorneys Saul G. Lichtenberg and Joseph B. Silverman that he was married in 1927 and that he and his wife lived happily until January of last year, when, he charged, his mother-in-law persuaded her to leave him. He is an employe of the Department of Commerce.

Youth Given Larceny Term.

Arrested after Frederick Money, of 125 Eighteenth street southeast, had pursued him several blocks, Anthony S. Cono, 18 years old, yesterday was sentenced to 360 days in jail on a charge of petty larceny.

CITY WINS APPEALS ON 2 ASSESSMENTS

Two victories and one loss were recorded against the District Commissioners in decisions handed down yesterday by the Court of Appeals. All were assessment cases.

The case that went against the District was won by Joseph J. Moebs, who obtained a cancellation of an assessment for paving a section of the roadway on Connecticut avenue. The Government contended that the assessment was not made under the obsolete Borland law, but was based instead on a special act of Congress. Moebs owns a triangular piece of land south of Dupont Circle, on which the Dupont Circle Apartments have been erected.

Because objections were not seasonably filed in regard to an assessment of damages and benefits by a jury as regards property owned by Shannon & Luchs and Archbishop Michael J. Curley, for Catholic interests, the court disallowed a protest against several Northeast assessments. The rules say that such objections must be made within 20 days, whereas the two did not object until 70 days had gone by.

The third decision was based upon the fact that James J. Walsh, one of the owners of some Mintwood place property, was not served with notice of condemnation proceedings in a case in which the Commissioners were attempting to establish a new building line. The court held that service by publication was sufficient and that personal service in "these cases was not jurisdictional."

90 Days Given Harker On Obscene Art Count

A 90-day jail sentence was meted out to James Henry Harker, youthful baker's helper, yesterday in Police Court when Judge Ralph Given pronounced sentence after having considered the circumstances under which Harker was allegedly carrying an obscene picture.

Harker was the central figure in the trials of James Mostyn and William R. Lafin, who, as members of the Police Department, were found guilty of having beaten him in a cell at the First Precinct Station. Charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct are still to be faced by Harker.

Citizens Commend New Bus Service

Officials of the Washington Rapid Transit Co. last night discussed with members of the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association bus service affecting the community of that group. E. D. Merrill, president of the bus company, and Alexander Shapiro, assistant general manager, were the speakers.

Many member attending the meeting expressed gratification at the recent addition of extra buses by the Rapid Transit Co. during evening rush hours and reaching to the distant limits of Sixteenth Street Heights. At a previous meeting criticism had been voiced by members with regard to the bus service.

The association was read a letter from Chief Engineer of the Fire Department George S. Watson indicating that plans were in progress for the erection of a fire station somewhere south of Takoma Park and which would increase fire protection for the Sixteenth Street Heights area.

CONFERENCE IS HELD ON DISTRICT BUDGET

House Group Tells Officials Economy Program Will Be Strictly Followed.

Lines of economy to be followed by the House District appropriations committee in applying the knife to the District budget were outlined to local officials yesterday at the first executive committee conference on local appropriations.

Commissioners Luther H. Reichelderfer and Herbert B. Crosby, together with the District tax assessor, auditor, corporation counsel, engineer of highways, chief clerk and playgrounds director, were in conference with the committee all morning. Hearings on the bill will be continued at 10 o'clock today.

Officials were advised that the economy program adopted by the House will be strictly followed in its application to District items. Additional building projects or other improvements that would mean large improvements will be looked on with favor, they were told.

Representative Robert G. Simmon (Republican), Nebraska, former chairman of the subcommittee, pointed out that in other appropraition bills this session committees were advised to increase no items, insert no new ones nor countenance transfer of items from one division to another.

Officials were further notified that the Pou rule adopted by the House, prohibiting increase in salaries or filling of vacancies without Presidential testimony of the essential character of the work, would be rigidly applied to District appropriations.

Nurses' Aid Sought In Diphtheria Fight

Health Officer Asks Group to Report Promptly; Help Pledged.

In an address yesterday before the board of managers of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, at their headquarters in the Albee Building, Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer, asked the organization's support in his program for adequate protection of the community against diphtheria.

His program, Dr. Fowler declared, has been approved by the District Medical Society, and many more persons will avail themselves of the protection afforded their children against the disease if they understand that the giving of toxin antitoxin is a simple and painless process, easily administered by their family physician.

Dr. Fowler was assured of the association's cooperation after he pointed out how the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society could help his office by reporting cases needing immediate attention.

He was greeted by a committee from the local lodge and escorted to the Mayflower Hotel, where he has since been resting so as to complete his recovery in time for the anniversary festivities, which commence with the initiation of a class of 100 candidates at the local clubhouse at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Gen. Pershing, in Inspiring Talk, Urges Completion of Project.

Mrs. Hoover Praises Work of Mrs. Brown as Head of Women's Committee.

An inspirnig summons for Washington Catnedral to go forward to completion was sounded by Gen. John J. Pershing, chairman of the national committee of Washington Cathedral, at a luncheon yesterday given by him for members of the committee and other friends of the cathedral project in the refectory of the College of Preachers in the Cathedral Close.

Following Gen. Pershing's remarks came the announcement by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, that the choir and sanctuary of the cathedral, the finished portions of the main floor of the edifice, will be opened for regular public worship on Ascension Day, May 5. By a singular coincidence, the beginning of regular services on the main floor will fall on the twentieth anniversary of the beginning of worship in the Bethlehem Chapel, the first portion of the cathedral to be completed.

Mrs. Hoover Is Present.

Eighty guests were present, including Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Andrew W. Mellon, the new Ambassador to Great Britain; the Assistant Secretary of the War Department and Mrs. F. Trubee Davison, the Undersecretary of State, William R. Castle, jr.; former Senator George Wharton Pepper and Mrs. Pepper, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general of the D. A. R.; Mrs. Grace Lincoln Hall Brosseau, honorary president of the D. A. R.; Mrs. William Adams Brown, of New York, chairman of the national woman's committee of Washington Cathedral; Mrs. John D. Sherman, presidential commissioner of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission; Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, the Dean of Washington and Mrs. G. C. F. Bratenahl, Miss Mabel Boardman, Dean Warren P. Laird, of the School of Fine Arts of the University of Pennsylvania; former Senator William Cabell Bruce, of Maryland; Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. Frederic Rhinelander, daughter of the late Bishop Satterlee, and other leaders in church and state and civic movements.

In concluding, Gen. Pershing said: "Washington Cathedral will represent the ideals of our democracy. People from every section of our country and from every walk of life will participate in its perfection. Thus the cross that crowns its tower will proclaim the message of Christianity to all America."

Tribute Paid to Mellon.

A tribute to Ambassador Mellon was paid by the luncheon meeting concurring in a resolution adopted by the Chapter of the Cathedral praising both his service as Secretary of the Treasury for eleven years and as the treasurer of the Cathedral's executive committee.

This resolution, signed by Gen. Pershing and Bishop Freeman, was presented to Mr. Mellon at the luncheon.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, after the address of Mrs. William Adams Brown, chairman of the national women's committee of the Cathedral, of which the First Lady is honorary chairman, spoke a few words of appreciation of Mrs. Brown's work as chairman.

Held Aid to Employment.

Former Senator George Wharton Pepper, of Pennsylvania, another speaker, proposed that construction of the Cathedral represented the best means of depression relief in alleviating unemployment, because it was a permanent structure and "not artificially created work of a transitory nature."

In his concluding address, Bishop Freeman declared:

"The sobering events of recent years have placed a new challenge upon Christian institutions. Materialism and our ill-placed security in purely human institutions have tragically failed us. Not in the artistry of Washington Cathedral does its strength reside, but in what it stands for and witnesses to. Placed as it is in the Nation's Capital, it stands before men boldly challenging them to recognize the fact that God has made and preserved us a Nation."

Cathedral Council Named.

The bishop also announced the appointment of a cathedral council to aid in an advisory capacity in the cathedral project.

In the pilgrimages to the choir and sanctuary, on the main floor of the cathedral, following the luncheon the participants in the meeting were shown the plans for the service which will be held next spring. A visualization was obtained by the group through this visit of the grandeur and inspiring beauty of the cathedral as it will look when completed.

At the conclusion of the pilgrimage the women guests attended a meeting of the national women's committee of the cathedral in the cathedral library. This meeting was presided over by Mrs. William Adams Brown of New York, its national chairman.

Two Crossings at Birney SchoolCalled Dangerous

More adequate police protection for children at the Birney School, on Nichols avenue southeast, will be asked by the Hillsdale Civic Association, it was decided at a meeting last night. Members declared that dangerous crossings of Nichols avenue near the school—namely, Morris and Howard roads—were often allowed to go unpoliced when the children were going to and from school.

The organization also decided to ask for a traffic light at Howard road and Nichols avenue southeast and for a stop sign at Morris road and Nichols avenue southeast. The association will also urge that street lights be turned on later in the evening and left on later in the morning.
